CANADIANS BACK FREEZE PLAN

Times News Services

TORONTO — Latest Gallup poll surveys indicate Canadians strongly favor a plan to impose wage-price freezes as a curb to inflation.

In the survey just released six out of 10 adults (60 per cent) favored a freeze while only half that number (31 per cent) dissented.

In 1966 a similar survey showed only 54 per cent in favor of a freeze, with 34 per cent opposed.

Following is a breakdown of the results according to occupations across Canada:

	Good Idea	Poor Idea	Can't Say
National	60%	31%	9%
Occupation
Professional/Executive	59	34	7
Clerical	63	27	10
Labor	58	34	8

Spending Hike Held to 7.5%

OTTAWA (CP)—The government asked Parliament today for $14,812,786,336 to pay its bills, including old age pensions, for the new fiscal year starting next April 1, an increase of 7.5 per cent from spending estimates for the current fiscal year.

Tabling the spending budget in the Commons, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the increase is mainly due to the growing cost of carrying the public debt, paying higher grants to the provinces and supporting programs already authoribed by Parliament.

In the limited field in which the government has room to adjust its spending from year to year, the increase for 1970-71 is only 3.8 per cent.

Last year at this time, the government asked for $13,617,651,503, an increase of 9.4 per cent over the previous year. Since then, supplementary spending appropriations for 1969-70 have amounted to $66,446,526, and a further $94,000,000 may be needed in the next few weeks before March 31.

MORE FOR AID

Mr. Drury said major increases in the new year will go towards regional economic expansion, the government's bilingualism program, postal services, Indian and Eskimo affairs, foreign aid and some other programs.

This will make it necessary to rein in many other services, and the number of government employees will be cut to 247,859 by March 31, 1971, from 255,401 on March 31, 1970.

Mr. Drury called the restraint on government spending increases and reduction in the government's staff as important contributions to the government's fight against inflation.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson will present his taxing budget early in March, showing how he intends to raise the money to cover the spending estimates. It is expected he will end this fiscal year with a surplus of about $500,000,000, and plan for another surplus in 1970-71 as an anti-inflation move.

FORM CHANGED

The 1970-71 estimates were presented in the traditional blue-covered book, but in a new form containing many more summaries and descriptions of individual programs. The new 1¾-inch book is printed in English and French.

By major categories, and in rounded figures, government outlay increases in 1970-71 will be: Health and welfare up $415,000,000, to $3,149,800,000 from $2,734,800,000 in 1969-70; economic development and support programs up $149,300,000 to $1,817,900,000 from $1,668,500,000; educational 600,000 from $301,900,000; and interest on the public debt up $143,100,000 to $1,799,700,000 from $1,656,600,000.

The defence budget for the new year is $1,816,600,000, an increase of only $700,000 from 1969-70.

The government does not count payments from the old age security fund, for basic pensions now amounting to $79.58 a month to everyone 65 and older, as part of its budgetary expenditures. These pensions are paid out of special income, sales and corporation profits taxes, but they are part of the government's total outlay.

In addition to actual outlays in 1970-71 for all government services, including old age pensions, the government plans to make loans and investments — principally in Crown corporations—amounting to $842,508,100.

Estimates At a Glance

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the government's main spending estimates for the 1970-71 fiscal year starting April 1, presented to Parliament today:

Total outlays set at record $14,812,786,336, up 7.5 per cent from $13,778,098,029 for 1969-70.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury says "controllable expenditures" held to 3.8 per-cent increase.

Health and welfare expenditures mount to $3,149,800,000 from $2,734,800,000. In addition, old age pension payments climb to $1,903,000,000 from $1,760,000,000.

Public debt charges climb to $1,799,700,000 from $1,656,600,000.

Defence budget held to $1,816,600,000, an increase of only $700,000.

Medical care insurance, if all provinces participate, climbs to $440,000,000 from $370,000,000.

Foreign aid increased to $192,700,000 from $179,200,000.

Policing Key To Price Curb

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Federal and provincial governments next week will be asked if they are ready to police Canadian firms which seriously violate a proposed program of voluntary price restraints.

Their answer will go one step further in determining the success of this week's meeting between the prices and incomes commission and leaders of business, industry and professional groups.

Pricing Policy Announced

Monday commission chairman John Young was able to announce a broad consensus for a policy of pricing criteria had developed from the meeting.

This policy was developed simultanously with a review program to ensure that firms would abide by the rules of the game, which in the commission's words are:

"Revenues produced by a price increase are to be less than the increases in costs that led to the price change, unless the increase in price is needed to improve a demonstrably inadequate rate of return on capital investment."

The commission itself does not have the strength necessary to deal with instances of "flagrant non-compliance" and this added muscle would have to come to a great extent from government.

It is proposed to set up a small review staff consisting of senior government officials and business executives seconded to work with the commission on a temporary basis.

Questions from Staff

The review staff could request information needed to determine relevant revenue and cost changes from firms, as well as studying operating records.

One of the main reasons for conducting detailed reviews would be to differentiate between cost changes arising from a change in sales volume, and those caused by a change in the price of inputs.

For review purposes 1969 would be used as the base year, except for special cases when this period was obviously unsuitable.

The commission proposed that the reviews would be concentrated on "important price increases by major firms and by market leaders in smaller sectors."

Less important price increases could be drawn to the commission's attention through such channels as the Consumer Affairs Department which now operates Box 99 specially for consumer complaints.

Unit Cost Variations

The commission said that in 1970 some firms might well experience unit cost increases as a result of a temporary decline in their sales volume or output because of adverse market conditions.

"Such cost increases cannot be regarded as automatic justification for an equivalent price increase," it said.

On the other hand, other firms might have decreased costs because of greater efficiency or increased sales.

Such firms would be expected to pass on some of these savings to the consumer in the form of lower prices.

No indication was given as to what possible penalties offenders might face if the program goes forward.

Presumably this would fall under the term "appropriate action" which the prime minister and the premiers will be asked to consider at their meeting next week.

Other Agreements Made

Following are other areas of agreement reached at this week's meeting:

● Business firms generally, if called upon to do so, would reduce the number and size of price increases they would normally make in 1970.

● The conference recognized that domestic price criteria should not be applied to goods sold mainly in export markets. The commission will keep the position of export industries under review and if it appears that some developments in this area are impairing the general price restraint program, it will seek "appropriate solutions" to the problems.

● Business firms would be prepared to co-operate with the prices and incomes commission in such reviews as it might decide to conduct.

● The conference recognized that farmers do not

Danger to B.C. Feared In New Tanker Route

Oil tankers bringing petroleum from the newly-discovered Alaskan oil fields might present a pollution problem to B.C., Hunter Vogel (SC—Langley) said Tuesday in the budget debate.

Vogel told the legislature that a fleet of three 100,000-ton tankers owned by the Atlantic-Richfield company will be transporting oil from Prudhoe Bay to a new $100-million refinery on Puget Sound.

"The point is what route will tankers take," as they pass the B.C. coast?

"Will it be through the Strait of Georgia or on the outside along Vancouver Island and past Victoria?"

The MLA said he thought the provincial government should have a voice in what route will be taken and who will have jurisdiction over the coastal waters.

The problem of oil tankers in B.C. waters will have to be faced regardless of whether any oil drilling is done off the coast, Vogel said.

Vogel said that he wanted the Gulf of Georgia protected from pollution, and the federal government is not the power to turn to for protection.

He said that the only offshore oil drilling going on at present is under the auspices of the federal government, and charged that this was being done in spite of pollution risk.

"Ottawa claims jurisdiction," Vogel stated, "but Ottawa has demonstrated that

OIL SHIPS FACE RIGID CONTROLS

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday more rigid controls governing tankers in territorial waters may be considered as a result of the grounding last week of the Liberian tanker Arrow off the Nova Scotia coast.

He suggested as well that additional navigational aids may have to be considered and said the grounding incident may give some indication of how controls should be applied.

The stern of the tanker, meanwhile, has broken free of the rock on which it grounded, but is being held in place with three tugs. Salvage officials plan to tow it 400 miles to sea and sink it off the continental shelf.

Phosphate Limits To Be Established

INJUNCTION ORDERS END TO SLOWDOWN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three mechanical unions were ordered today to end their slowdown at Pacific Press Ltd., which produces the Sun and the Province newspapers in Vancouver.

An injunction sought by the company was granted in British Columbia Supreme Court after three days of argument.

Meanwhile, two unions involved in the contract dispute with Pacific Press Ltd. announced Tuesday they will hold strike votes in the next two days.

The Vancouver Mailers' Union said it would hold a vote today and the International Typographical Union told members they would vote Thursday.

Pact Accepted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nurses at 69 British Columbia hospitals have voted 94 per cent in favor of accepting a new two-year contract providing a 15.5 per cent wage increase and a shorter work week.

140 Top $200,000 In Earnings

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics tabled in the Senate finance committee today show that 1,665,920 Canadian taxpayers earned less than $3,000 in 1967—and 140 Canadians made more than $200,000.

The committee, considering the government's policy paper on proposed tax changes, received the figures from Arthur W. Gilmour, senior adviser to the committee.

Mr. Gilmour's statistics showed that approximately 65 per cent of taxpayers earned less than $5,000 in 1967, representing 3,698,530 of the 6,655,683 taxpayers listed.

Of those 6,655,683 taxpayers only 8,388 made more than $50,000.

. . . But Labor Leaders Cool

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian labor leaders today termed price-restraint policies announced at a prices conference in Ottawa Tuesday as a "ploy," "bluff" and "joke."

Others said business would use their price restraint as an excuse to hold down wage offers in labor negotiations.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said that if Canadian businessmen "want to hold prices for about 10 years and let the rest of us catch up, that's fine."

"It's another Trudeau ploy. . . . I don't believe it."

"I think this all just a big bluff," said William Houle of Ottawa, president of the 16,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

"If the corporations can restrain their prices now, it proves they've been gouging all along. Why are prices cut so much after Christmas . . . ?"

Francis Eady, executive assistant of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, questioned business intentions. He cited a recent announcement by Falconbridge Nickel Co. Ltd. that profits for 1969 had increased despite a three-month strike.

"These are the people who are going to co-operate with price restraint? Big joke!"

Yukon Official Wants Half B.C.

By AB KENT

A boundary realignment aimed at making the northwest Canada's richest economic unit was outlined here today by Commissioner of the Yukon Jim Smith.

The concept, as yet without a name, was proposed two years ago by consulting economist Dr. William Carr of Ottawa, who studied the economic potential of the north at the request of the federal government.

He proposed a new territory to embrace all of the Yukon, more than half of B.C. and Alberta, and the Northwest Territories east almost to Bathurst Inlet, covering nearly one million square miles.

Regional development on a grand scale, the proposal was presented by Smith as an alternative to the plan of Premier Bennett, who in December 1968 called for an extension of B.C. to include the Yukon and part of the Northwest Territories up into the Arctic Islands.

The Carr plan would reduce four political jurisdictions to one, but preserve the northern character of the region. Its boundaries are straight lines, drawn arbitrarily except for the coast line of northern B.C. and the Alaska Panhandle.

'WHERE I DIFFER'

"That's where I differ with Bennett's proposal, which is designed to obliterate the political identity of the areas involved," Smith said.

Carr's plan "makes a lot of sense," said Smith before addressing a luncheon meeting of Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The north still feels neglected by the rest of Canada, he said, but there is a lot of current and future development based on Japanese markets for timber and mineral resources.

The major mineral properties all look to the Japanese for sale of their production, he said. Pulp chip from the Atlin-Tagish area of northeastern B.C. and Carcross area of the Yukon are destined for Japanese mills.

As Alaska with its great petroleum fields will be the richest state of the U.S., so the Yukon will be the richest part of Canada, Smith said.

What is needed is "more local input," and the acquisition and retention of a labor force if the economy is going to be fully developed.

The "boom and bust days" are over, he said. "Built-in stability is the name of the game, if world markets are favorable."

Smith urged in his speech that a northwest development authority be set up to form plans for the proposed economic union. Members would be from the four jurisdictions and the federal government.

There is an institutional gap in the northwest at present, caused by an inescapable regional interdependence unmatched by an organization of regional significance.

The development authority would bring together all those federal and provincial agencies and departments, and those of the territories, which work toward development of the Canadian northeast "and permit the vigorous implementation of the policies co-operatively evolved."

RESPLENDENT in scarlet parliamentary robes, Prince Charles, the Prince of Wales, took his seat today among the peers of the house of Lords, It was the first ceremony of its kind since 1918 when the present Duke of Windsor—formerly King Edward VIII—took his place. Twenty-one-year-old Charles was greeted by a sudden, full-throated roar from the benches which sounded like the ancient salutation, "Hail".

Chief Asks Water Test On Reserve

Chief Philip Paul of the Tsartlip Indian Reserve in Brentwood, has requested the provincial health inspector to check the water supply of the community for traces of salmonella bacteria.

Salmonella is a disease which induces stomach cramps, diarrhea and fever. There are various types and the disease is often referred to as food poisoning.

The chief said he was informed by health officials that one family on the reserve had three cases of salmonella since September.

This was confirmed by an official of the Metro Health Board.

"But the disease isn't confined to the reserve," she said. "You can pick it up anywhere and it is not uncommon."

The chief said he wanted the water checked as a safeguard though he felt the cases were probably contracted through the use of an outdoor toilet.

U.S. Youths To Help Cubans

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — About 500 United States youths are reported en route here by chartered bus to board a Cuban freighter scheduled to arrive at 4 p.m. today.

A further 212 students are reported to be aboard the ship, returning home after helping with the Cuban sugar cane harvest since November.

Gerald Elkin, president of R. C. Elkin Ltd., local agent for the Cuban-registered freighter Luis Arcos Bergnes, said Tuesday he was told by shipping officials in Montreal that the youths were to board the ship Thursday.

It was reported in Boston that hundreds of youths, calling themselves ski masters, had gathered from around the U.S. to prepare for what they said was a ski holiday in New Brunswick.

All State Bus Corp., a Brooklyn, N.Y., transport broker, said the ski master group had paid "more than $20,000" to charter buses from San Francisco, Seattle, Chicago, Madison, Wis., Cleveland, Detroit, Washington and New York.

EXPECT LEAVE TODAY

A company spokesman said 11 buses were to leave Boston today for a trip through Maine to Canada.

A Greyhound Bus Co. official said the youths, many of whom carried sleeping bags and knapsacks, were en route to Cuba to help with sugar harvesting but one of the group was quoted as denying the statement.

"We are just going skiing in Canada, but other than that we don't have anything to say to you." No skis were in evidence.

One bus carrying 44 students was reported to have headed for Boston after being denied entry to Canada at Windsor, Ont., because, an immigration department spokesman said, the occupants were "not considered bona fide non-immigrants."

IS CATTLE BOAT

Mr. Elkin described the Luis Acros Bergnes as "a cattle carrier" that had docked here previously and said as far as he knew there were no plans for the ship to load cargo, "just the group that's supposed to be coming."

There were reports that the group might attempt to cross the border at St. Stephen, N.B., but an immigration department spokesman said there Tuesday night he had been given "no advance notice" of any such group.

The students travelling here aboard the freighter were reported to have left Havana Friday after being given a mass emotional farewell by Cuban government and Communist party leaders as well as thousands of workers and school children.

The students, reported to have been the largest group of Americans to visit Cuba since the U.S. imposed an economic blockade in 1962, were said to have cut 12,000 tons of sugar cane, met Premier Fidel Castro and spent two weeks touring the island.

FOG IN VANCOUVER STALLS AIRPORT HERE

Heavy fog at Vancouver International Airport Tuesday almost cut connections between here and the mainland.

Three flights were cancelled during the morning and another four after the night fog had again closed on the mainland airport.

A special flight from Victoria at noon was diverted to Abbotsford for passengers connecting with flights to eastern Canada, returning to the Island with passengers en route home.

have any significant discretion over the level of prices they receive for most agricultural production. Agriculture representatives at the meeting agreed that in the limited areas where such discretion exists farmers, if asked, would follow general pricing criteria and procedures in 1970.

● Canadian chartered banks have already agreed not to increase their existing schedule of service charges this year. They also undertook to hold the line on interest rate charges on Canadian dollar loans in Canada unless there was a corresponding percentage point increase in rates payable on personal savings deposits.

● Trust and mortgage loan companies will not increase the existing spread between their prime mortgage lending rates and the highest rates paid on their term borrowings and will also refrain from increasing existing service charges on savings accounts.

● Representatives of life insurance companies, credit unions and other types of financial business supported the commission's restraint program and agreed to the principle that price increases should be held within cost increases in their own operations.

● Professional groups agreed to recommend to provincial associations that they postpone or limit increases in existing fee schedules this year.

● Representatives of the transportation, telecommunications and utilities industries agreed to provide the commission with 30 days notice of any intent to increase general rate schedules.

● The general merchandise sector of retail and wholesale trades would undertake, in determining pricing policies this year, not to increase initial markups on its various merchandise categories unless realized profit per dollar of sales fell below that of the base period which is likely to be based on 1969 figures. In such cases markups would be made only to restore returns to the level of that base period.

● The grocery sector of the retail trade would undertake not to increase markups this year unless realized profit on sales of their entire operations fell below that of the base period. Markups would only maintain the level of that period.

● Representatives of the construction industry agreed that individual firms, if asked, would absorb a proportion of their increased costs in accordance with the general pricing criteria for 1970.

It was recognized that costs have advanced rapidly in this industry and special steps were needed to reduce the rate of increase, including efforts to level out the flow of

This is up from $681,418,060 in the current fiscal year and while money must be found for them in the taxing budget, the government expects repayment in later years.

Expenditures for medical care insurance are estimated at $440,000,000 in the coming fiscal year, compared with $370,000,000 for the current year. These figures assume all provinces are participating, but Quebec will not come into the plan until July this year, and New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have not announced their intentions.

In the coming year, $192,700,000 is being earmarked for aid to developing countries, compared with $179,200,000 this year. Support for the agriculture industry will increase to $373,400,000 from $361,500,000, and for labor force training to $352,800,000 from $327,500,000.

Family and youth allowance payments go up narrowly to $620,300,000 from $620,000,000. There is actually some reduction in family allowances, due to the reduced birth rate and the maturing of the post-war baby boom children into adulthood.

Expenditures on cultural affairs are being trimmed slightly to $254,500,000 from $254,900,000, with savings in national parks, historic sites and other recreational areas.

Quiet Night In St. John's

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Although there had been no unusual lawlessness during the first day of a police strike here, extra RCMP officers were brought to the city today from elsewhere in Newfoundland.

About 30 RCMP constables were sent here from the Corner Brook detachment to bolster the St. John detachment. The city's own police department has been reduced to about 50 men from a normal 200 by the strike.

Despite the strike and an extensive overnight power failure, it was a quiet night and Attorney-General Leslie R. Curtis said the city was well policed.

Ballot Boxes Stay Sealed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Longshoremen's union officials are taking no chances that leaks will occur when 3,200 dockworkers vote on a fourth contract settlement proposal in six British Columbia ports today and Thursday.

Ballot boxes will remain sealed, no matter how quickly the vote is taken in any area, until the 6 p.m. PST. deadline Thursday, when counting will begin.

In three previous votes, results from some areas were made public while members of other locals were voting. Union officials said this could have influenced voting.

A TROUPER FIRST, LAST AND ALWAYS

BANBURY, England (UPI) — Alfred Reynolds was made up and dressed in women's clothes for an amateur vaudeville show when he slipped and dislocated his elbow.

When he woke up in the hospital later he found himself in the women's ward.

"I was frightened that things had got out of control," he said. "But then it was explained to me that there was no room in the men's ward and I was staying in the women's ward only a couple of hours."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

There was less fog in the low areas along the coast this morning. Higher levels were sunny all day. Similar conditions are forecast for Thursday.

In the interior however low cloud and fog is solidly entrenched in most of the main valleys and there is not much hope of this breaking up Thursday due to the presence of a strong stationary ridge of high pressure over the province.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

One of the times you may get sick after sudden changes in the weather is when a virus or germ bug that is already in your system takes hold and succeeds in laying you low because your resistance is weak right then.

Changes in the weather can knock your metabolism, your circulatory system, your respiration and even your mental outlook off-balance. That's when your resistance to disease is weakened.

If you get chilled, for example, you won't come down sick directly because of the chilling, but because your resistance to illness may be lowered. Even in warm countries a sudden fall in temperature may be followed by outbreaks of illness.

You may fall ill in cold weather if your physical activity fails to adjust to the lower temperature—especially if you should get awfully tired when the bugs are lying in wait for you.

Three Charged in Attack on Airliner

MUNICH (AP) — West German authorities charged three Arabs with murder today in the grenade attack on passengers of an Israeli airliner.

Police Chief Hermann Schreiber of Munich said officials are trying to determine the motive for the attack Tuesday on passengers waiting to board an El Al plane at Reim Airport. He said police "cannot rule out" the possibility that the target was Assaf Dayan, 24-year-old actor son of Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan and a passenger on the plane.

Young Dayan was not hurt. An airline spokesman said he had left Munich but "for security reasons" would not say where he had gone.

One of two Arab organizations claiming responsibility for the attack said the intention was to kidnap some passengers and hijack the plane.

Police arrested four Arabs following the attack but said no warrant had been issued against the fourth man because witnesses agreed that only three terrorists were involved.

The accused were identified as Pahman Salah Abder, 21, and Mohammed Hadidi, 28, both of Jordan, and Mu Hammea el-anafi Mohamed, 24, of Egypt.

Two of the suspects were wounded in the attack. One Israeli passenger was killed and 11 persons were injured; the two suspects, the plane's pilot and flight engineer, a policeman and six passengers.

One of Israel's leading actresses, Hanna Meron, was the most severely injured. She was reported in "extremely grave" condition after a second major operation. The nature of her injuries was not disclosed.

A film executive in London said Dayan and Miss Meron were on their way to London to discuss production of a movie version of Fiddler on the Roof.

Munich border police said the Arab attackers apparently arrived in Munich from Paris aboard an Air France plane a few hours before the attack and had planned to fly on to Rome later.

Israeli officials said the dead passenger was Arieh Katzenstein, 32, of Haifa.

Forestry Labor Unrest 'B.C. Economy Threat'

By BRUCE YEMEN

"Realistic and responsible" settlement of forest industry labor-management differences are required this year if the provincial budget "is to provide the services and increased benefits which have been set forth," Resources Minister Ray Williston warned Tuesday.

The warning came after Williston, speaking in the budget debate, told the legislature that a number of "clouds on the economic horizon" threaten the B.C. economy.

He related the fulfilment of the demand for increased social services in the 1970s to the continued expansion of resource-based industries.

'SERIOUS BLOW'

He cited figures showing big increases in proportionate spending on social services while natural resource development and highways spending was either steady or declining in terms of the total budget.

Williston said that a setback in the forest industry, which is already facing economic uncertainty, would strike a serious blow at the continued development required for a sound provincial tax base.

"Both B.C. Hydro and PGE are dependent on continuous activity in the (forest) industry to reach budget goals," Williston said.

WARNING

His warning was taken as an indication the provincial government will not stand for a prolonged disruption in the forest industry, a possibility in 1970 which is described as a hard-bargaining year for labor and management.

Williston praised Premier Bennett's budget, brought down Friday, as "better than I thought it would be."

It provided the "anti-inflationary policies needed for the treatment of a bad case of economic diarrhea," Williston said.

Fighting inflation is one "essential" of a budget, Williston said, describing two others met by Bennett's budget as "the basic needs of people who are caught in a price squeeze and cannot react to better themselves and the problems of those equipping themselves for service through education or attempting to establish a home unit under the most difficult capital financial limitations."

STAGNATION

Williston also issued a warning about proposed capital gains taxes.

"If a capital gains tax is applied through tax reform then the profit return on invested risk capital must be greater than the interest paid on non-risk investments.

"If this does not happen, the incentive to invest with risk will be destroyed and our economy will stagnate. In such a situation British Columbia's development will be most seriously affected.

"To keep up with present commitments, there must be a steady expansion in our productive capacity just to stand still," Williston said, referring to rising health, welfare and education costs.

Williston spent a large part of his 105-minute address defending the handling of the Cypress Bowl affair. He denied that the B.C. company promoting the ski development in the West Vancouver Bowl, Alpine Outdoor Recreational Resources, had sent in a consultant to figure the requirements for 9,000 housing units.

"It was not Alpine," he said.

He denied that deputy lands minister David Borthwick had negotiated the original leases last year with Alpine but had signed them after the terms were cleared by the attorney-general's department.

The leases with Alpine required that detailed plans be submitted for development of each aspect of the bowl and at no time was a residential subdivision discussed with the government, Williston said.

JAPAN ENTERS SPACE AGE

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan today orbited its first artificial satellite, the first country in Asia to do so.

As the fourth stage of a solid-fuel rocket with a small instrument payload completed its first orbit, Japanese scientists were planning a launching later this year of the nation's first full-scale scientific satellite.

After four previous failures, a Lambda rocket put the payload into orbit following a faultless launch from the Uchinoura Space Centre on Japan's southern island of Kyushu.

Japan has been attempting since September, 1966, to launch a satellite.

More Than Words Needed

IT IS WELL THAT BUSINESS across Canada has endorsed the principle of price restraints as presented at the Ottawa conference. The hope is that such price increases as are made this year will be kept to a level below that of the increases in costs.

One of the problems confronting the businessmen who attended the talks with government spokesmen was their ignorance of Ottawa's intentions in regard to future taxation programs. The White Paper now before the nation for discussion has many provisions which will drastically affect business and until these matters are clarified it will be difficult to make specific commitments.

But in regard to anti-inflationary steps, business really has no alternative. The Number One problem of Canada today—the steady erosion of the purchasing power of the dollar which in the last five years alone has dropped in value by more than 16 per cent — must be faced, either voluntarily or by governmental decree.

"Those who refuse to co-operate," Mr. Trudeau told the delegates, "will bear a heavy responsibility for extending and aggravating unemployment and slow economic growth."

A difficulty which confronts the government is the variation in the economic strength of different parts of the country. British Columbia, Alberta and Ontario are thriving economically, to the extent that the purchasing power of consumers is exerting a heavy pressure on inflationary tendencies. Other parts of the country, on the other hand, need economic stimulus rather than restraint, and their situation is evident in their greater unemployment.

Consequently a national anti-inflationary plan which treated all parts of the country identically could do more harm than good. Mr. Trudeau therefore urges price policies in the three provinces named which will cool the economic heat, and, it is hoped, exert a restraining effect on inflation.

This will require the co-operation of labor as well as management. Unfortunately labor refused to take part in the Ottawa talks and has shown an entirely negative attitude to proposals for keeping wage increases to a minimum. Yet the working man and his family will in the end be among the chief sufferers from excessive inflation.

But management, too, has a responsibility to see that price restraints are not nullified by increased exhortations to buy in excess of normal demands. The Chargex system of credit, for instance, is not only increasing costs to the consumer through an 18-per-cent-a-year interest rate, but it is being accompanied by a heavy campaign to popularize its use for an ever larger number of commodities and services. This is the equivalent of urging everyone to use more water during a drought. It cannot avoid accentuating the problem.

It is inevitable that the process of curbing inflation will have unpleasant effects on many persons. Projects, both public and private, may have to be deferred; and for many workers a cooling of the industrial climate may mean temporary loss of jobs. But a tail-chasing prosperity is a false one. Failure to master inflation, at least to a significant degree, can have but one ending; and that could leave many persons penniless.

Passing Lanes The Solution

At a time when the cost of living is spiralling and hold-the-line in expenditures and wage demands is a by-word our Frank Ney comes up with the idea that the price of gasoline be increased by one cent a gallon, this one cent per gallon to be used to finance a four lane highway between Victoria and Campbell River, a distance of 170 miles. This, he says, is necessary as the traffic problem is acute. In other words Mr. Ney is saying that we can afford or stand a raise in the price of gasoline. This should be sweet music to the ears of the management of big oil companies.

We travel this route quite often, especially during the summer months, when Mr. Ney says is the period when the traffic congestion is at its worst and we fail to see the traffic situation as being acute. In fact it isn't a problem that couldn't be solved by the more realistic approach, of constructing more passing lanes, especially between Duncan and Nanaimo. The cost of putting in those lanes would be a very small fraction of the exorbitant cost of the highway envisioned by Mr. Ney and we would be more apt to get them.—Bernie Corbett, Nanaimo.

FROM ROME

The Fine Italian Art of Nongovernment

By C. L. SULZBERGER

A UNIQUE Italian contribution to modern political life is the art of governing without apparent government and this republic has managed to violate all normal credos except that efficient self-rule is not a contemporary Mediterranean phenomenon. There have been 30 cabinets here since the Second World War and Rome will soon look for its 31st. The only major parties are founded on religion—Catholicism and anti-Catholicism. And the Vatican's political expression, the Christian Democrats, are even more riven by factionalism than their principal opponents, the Communists.

Sulzberger

Italians like to point out this is a very short-lived unitary state (only a century) and based on divergent peoples and regions. Yet the Italians have been linked in one or another way for an impressively long time and speak the same language. There is no real reason why they shouldn't be geopolitically as bound together as the French and more so than the Swiss.

Nevertheless, while not notably successful in building the formal machinery of a nation, they have managed by mysteriously Italian means to survive with striking vigor. Italy's economic miracle is impressive and has embraced an enormous internal migration from south to north of people seeking industrial jobs.

Perhaps three essential factors have helped the Italian Republic to preserve essential continuity. The first is a very honorable solid president with talent for reshuffling the same deck of ministerial cards. The second is financial solidity and a patient bureaucracy able to administer a staggering confusion of statutes. This bureaucracy manages to keep national services running with occasional help in crises from the kaleidoscope of shifting ministers.

Iceberg Stability

Administratively Italy is like an iceberg whose small, visible surface changes with the political sun but whose huge bureaucratic subsurface is stable. This invisible government has allowed the talented Italians to move into the age of mass production and develop their national creative genius outside a stultified political world.

The third factor enabling Italy to achieve the improbable is the strange political position of the church. Machiavelli, whose expertise in Italian politics was so profound, wrote in "The Prince":

"These" (ecclesiastical) "princes have states and do not defend them, they have subjects and do not rule them; and the states, although unguarded, are not taken from them, and the subjects, although not ruled, do not care and they have neither the desire nor the ability to alienate themselves."

It would surely be going too far to describe Italy as an "ecclesiastical principality" but the muddled Vatican party is still on top. Moreover, the only powerful internal enemy—the Communists—are today also somewhat divided, like the Christian Democrats. If the latter have proven themselves unable to truly reconstruct the state—or even really make it function—the Communists have demonstrated no capacity to take it away from them.

Since the great days of de Gasperi, Christian Democratic leadership has faltered and bickered and even today is torn between left and right factions. Moreover, the Catholic Church itself is in so precarious a condition that it cannot lend the same organizational support once accorded to its material brainchild.

Apart from arguments about priestly marriage or birth control, there is in Italy a shortage of young priests with the result that hundreds of parishes are no longer staffed. Furthermore, many of the priests themselves are now left-wing sympathizers and the traditional women's peasant vote that remained Christian Democratic despite Marxist husbands, has shrunk since Pope John XXIII revolutionized dogma and was photographed with Khrushchev's son-in-law.

Trouble at Top

The Christian Democratic structure is thus torn by leadership quarrels among men who aren't leaders and by a poor man's Savonarola movement among political-minded priests. But the Communists also are in a condition that lacks dynamism or any messianic sense.

The Italian party is enormous and statistically powerful but it is no longer revolutionary; its bosses have simply hung around revolutions, which is very different. It is wreathed in past blunder more than in a sense of future mission.

The upshot of all these factors is that the citizens of this state, neither effectively ruled nor effectively protected against internal menace, do not seem really to care and will not alienate themselves from their present condition.

Another Wreath for the CUS

A FEW YEARS AGO THE Canadian Union of Students spoke with some authority for undergraduates at universities in this country. Then came a period when its leadership appeared to move away from the membership, when individuals found themselves with more differences than similarities to air. Last year dissension led to the union's formal dissolution.

Last weekend at Montreal student leaders met to determine if a successor to the defunct national body should be formed. Attendance at the gathering was less than anticipated and dwindled as the weekend progressed. A spokesman from the University of Toronto, whose departure from the CUS was critical, expressed the view that the time was not ripe to consider a new union. There was, he said, a lot of emotionalism left in the CUS' wake and it would probably be some time before it vanished. He apparently spoke for the gathering.

So the Canadian students have another opportunity to weigh the creation and eventual failure of a movement which once claimed widespread membership. Obviously its program in recent years had been inadequately conceived and carried out. Special interest groups within the union used it for their own purposes and dissolution became inevitable.

It is unfortunate that the country now lacks a student organization which can speak with a united voice on matters which concern the young university people. But perhaps the final year or two of the CUS provided a valuable lesson to be remembered when the time arrives to recreate their own national body—a lesson in what not to do in order to survive and serve the members who pay the dues.

Beauty Contests Are Not the Issue

BEAUTY CONTESTS WOULD soon disappear if women decided they did not want to participate in them. But members of the Women's Liberation Movement took it upon themselves to disrupt the Miss Canadian University Contest in Waterloo, Ontario, recently despite the fact that all but one of the contestants elected to go on with the pageant. Whether or not beauty contests are degrading for women, as claimed, it is not up to one militant women's group to decide the issue for all women.

Beauty, after all, is only skin deep. Militant women should direct protests at the more visceral issues, such as equal pay for equal work. While every province has some legislation on human rights or fair employment practices, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island have minimum wage rates that are higher for men than for women.

Throughout the country women often receive less than men for the same job and equal qualifications. In Alberta, for example, male laboratory assistants receive $433 per month compared with $290 for females, according to the Alberta bureau of statistics. Worrying about figures in bathing suits will not do anything for figures on cheques.

Playing the Percentages

SOME AMERICAN BANKS WITH credit-card plans, says a recent analysis, are cutting back on their small installment loans, explaining that the latter involve too much paper work. The analysis suggests another reason. Most states have usury statutes which limit the rate charged on personal loans to no more than 12 per cent a year, simple interest. Credit-card lending, on the other hand, permits a charge of 1.5 per cent a month on outstanding balances—or 18 per cent a year simple interest.

Correspondence From Our Readers

The Ones Who Should Pay

A short time ago, Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of B.C. Hydro, is reported to have said that if he had his way "hydro rates in B.C. would be doubled." This was a most irresponsible remark for anyone connected with B.C. Hydro, let alone the chairman to make.

At approximately the same time, figures were published showing the cost of 1700 KWH per month of electrical energy in Seattle, Wash. and Vancouver or Victoria, B.C. The Seattle figure was $13.05. The Vancouver or Victoria figure, $21.50. In Edmonton, the cost would be $19, in Regina, $22.95, in Winnipeg, $18.23.

Therefore, of the four western provinces, only Saskatchewan is higher than B.C. Is there any real comparison between the resources wealth of B.C. and that of Saskatchewan?

In Toronto, Ont. the standard residence rate would be $22.47 while the all electric rate (including heat) would be $18.67.

In Montreal, Que. the cost would be $20.20. This is based on their new rate which goes into effect on March 15, 1970.

In my opinion, there are enough true figures presented here to show that the affairs of B.C. Hydro have been, to say the least, dismally mismanaged.

I do not believe it has been the increasing demands of residential consumers that has prompted the development of the Columbia and the Peace. This has been for the benefit of the large industrial complexes and the buyers, for further distribution, of large blocks of electrical energy. These are the ones then, who I feel should be called upon to pay higher prices for hydro juice, not the ordinary residential consumer. — Bill Footer.

Nature the Abortionist

Re all this abortion talk about the rights of the unborn, and the "murder of the innocents," as stated by the Roman Catholic Pope, who, a few years ago, on his visit to New York said that we should "welcome to the banquet table of life" all the babies (black, red, brown, white, yellow) which his god Jehovah sent to this planet Earth.

The indications are that if his idea was carried out, humans would become such a plague on the face of this planet pollution would soon render it uninhabitable.

Fortunately, the vast majority of sensible people are taking no notice of his medieval ravings. A fertilized human egg is not a human being, any more than an acorn is an oak tree.

People should bear in the mind the "unity of life" on this planet and the similarities of animal and plant life. The so-called "right to be born" exists only in the imagination of the priest-craft.

Bring Them to Task

In regards to your front page coverage by Richard Cleroux, reporting on this 18th Century pistol-whipping of one of our outstanding Canadian citizens of Victoria. I feel that this whipping was savage, brutal, and entirely contrary to our individual rights in a society which, I thought, was democratic.

I have no disrespect of Canadian French, as I was born and lived in a predominantly Canadian French settlement which bears the name of "Neadeauville, Sask." I found as a child, if my memory is correct, that the Canadian French were most amiable, friendly, and hospitable. Now many years have passed and my top is not only grey but has very little coverage, and our social environment has waned to an intellectual, moronic rat-race, with very little respect for the rights of a citizen.

This abominable treatment of this B.C. Government official (or any other citizen) is most inexcusable. Surely those to blame for this terrible situation should be brought to task, if our democratic society is to survive. Or is our idea of justice to be "guilty until proven innocent?" — A Canadian.

Poor Taste

You are entitled to campaign against the reform of our abortion laws, but the cartoons which you keep printing on this sensitive subject are in such poor taste that I, for one, am confident that they will reveal to intelligent readers the mentality of the bigots who oppose sensible abortion laws. — J. S. de Villiers, "Imperani," Munn Road, R.R.7.

Saskatchewan Model

A magistrates court news item in the local press recently left a lot of people with a feeling of remorse. It dealt with the conviction of an 18-year-old father of two for an infraction of the new B.C. vehicles insurance legislation. This boy was living on welfare and unable to pay the $250 fine. He was sentenced to three months and led from the court to jail.

His home address made the public aware of the fact that he was a member of the Dynamic Society and living the good life in beautiful B.C. What was not stated was the fact that he was an Indian. It was not until the article by gifted writer John Mika appeared that it became known that David Jones was of the Indian race. This revelation no doubt tempered the remorse of many people with anger. However, as a result of the benevolent action of someone wishing to remain anonymous, this young boy is no longer incarcerated in a penal institution but has been reunited with his family.

While compulsory car insurance is new here in B.C., it is old in the province of Saskatchewan. They have enjoyed the benefit of this kind of overall coverage for nearly a quarter of a century. Since its inception twenty-four years ago the Saskatchewan auto insurance scheme has been a godsend to those involved in or affected by the tragedy of an auto accident.

In Saskatchewan since 1946 all victims of car accidents have been taken care of by death benefits to dependants plus hospital, doctor and funeral expenses. This has not been the case during the same period in B.C. Up to the present time the victims of similar accidents here in B.C. have not fared so well in comparison. Some idea of the difference might be gained from an estimate from an informed source that indicated that upwards of 35 per cent of B.C. cars were on the road without insurance prior to the new legislation going into effect.

All vehicles bearing Saskatchewan licence plates are covered by insurance automatically. The only way a motorist could drive without insurance would be to drive without a licence. No better or more popular system has yet been devised than the Saskatchewan Auto Insurance Plan. What we have here in B.C. doesn't begin to compare. — Jack Block, 314 Goldstream.

What Kind of City?

We are losing a most beautiful glimpse of nature formerly enjoyed from the busy heart of our city on Douglas Street.

Everywhere, high, ugly concrete boxes assault our eyes. Do we want to live in a crowded ant-heap of our own stupid manufacture?

Now it is proposed to add a 38-storey contribution of traffic to our already crowded, inadequate streets. Who wants to live in a concrete jungle?

It is time, I think, to determine what we want and set a policy which will enable us at least to retain something of the true character and flavor of Victoria. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

Looking Back

From the Times of Feb. 11, 1910

In the course of his speech in the Commons yesterday, Sir Frederick Borden said the government was negotiating for the purchase of the cruiser Niobe from the Admiralty as a substitute for the proposed new cruiser of the Boadicea type. With the cruiser Rainbow, the latter to be stationed on the Pacific Coast, these two vessels will allow the immediate beginning of training men and officers for other ships of the Canadian Navy which will be completed four years hence.

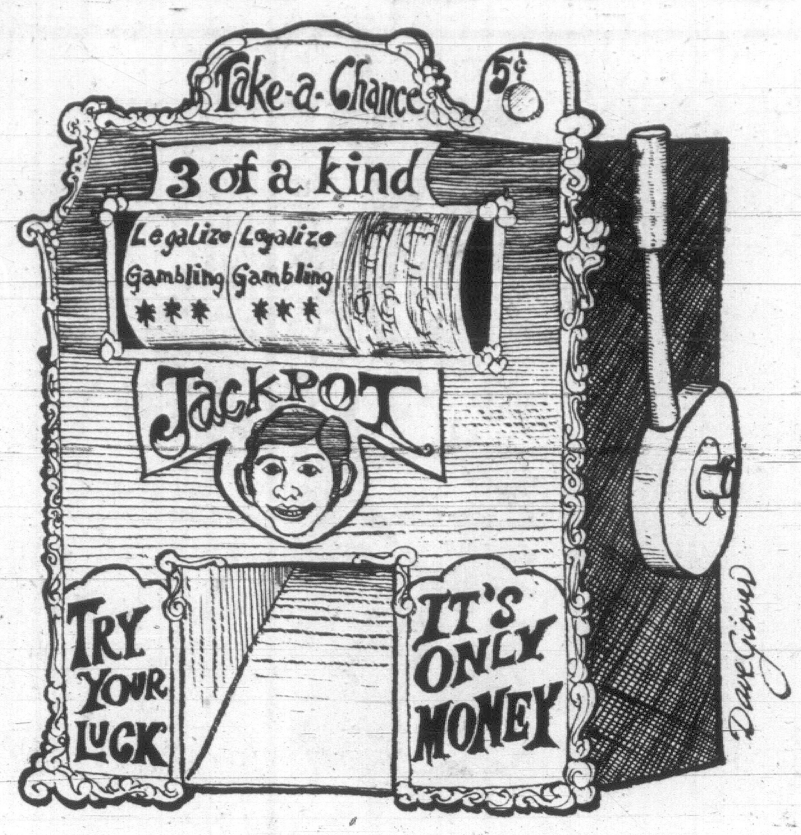
The Law Says We're Free To Gamble

By GEORGE OAKE
Times Staff Writer



The click of dice and the oil-smooth spin of roulette wheels have not legally been heard in Canada since before the turn of the century when thin-lipped Victorians rang down a thick blue curtain on every facet of the sporting life.

It was not always so. In the 1880s and 90s a man could find a game in such disparate places as Dawson City and Fort Macleod, Alberta. Kamoose Taylor ran a famous establishment in the latter location that went 24 hours a day. Drinks were one dollar after midnight and "gospel grinders" got half rates.

Holding Curtain

Many of the "gospellers", it would appear, learned their lessons well in Kamoose's hostelry because ever since they have beeen handing out bingo cards with one hand and holding the blue curtain down with the other.

They may be losing their grip, thanks in part to Criminal Code amendments. Section 179A of the code now reads, ". . . it shall be lawful for the Government of Canada to conduct and manage a lottery scheme . . ." And, "for the government of a province either alone or in conjunction with the government of another province, to conduct and manage a lottery scheme . . ." The key phrase in this section and the one that could start the wheels spinning says a "lottery scheme includes a game."

It has been more than a month since the provinces have had the authority to licence everything from parish bingos to no-limit lotteries and Las Vegas type casinos. But except for Quebec, the provinces are playing their cards close to the chest.

Quebec has passed the enabling legislation needed under the new federal law which gives a province power to license or even hold lotteries. The provincial law came on the heels of the seventh report of Quebec's Royal Commission on Crime which recommended that the Quebec government go into the gambling and betting business as soon as the Criminal Code permitted it.

Society Decides

Commenting on the commission's recommendations, which included legalizing the sale of marijuana, Chairman Yves Prevost said: "Either we maintain our taboos or we let them go. Society must decide what price it wants to pay for the reduction of organized crime."

By April of this year a corporation set up by the Quebec government expects to be running a monthly provincial lottery with prizes totalling $250,000 to replace Montreal's voluntary tax scheme that was declared illegal by the courts.

Maurice Custeau, newly appointed president of the Quebec Lotteries and Racing Corporation, plans to inaugaurate a weekly lottery too, followed by four annual draws modelled on the Irish Sweepstakes, an expansion of racetrack betting and possible establishment of gambling casinos. There have been hints that Quebec will open a Las Vegas type casino operation on the old Expo site within a year.

Custeau, a former cabinet minister under the Duplessis regime, has the optimism of a born gambler and hopes to raise $18 millions a year from legalized gambling in its initial phase.

Between May 1968 and last November, Montreal's voluntary tax brought in gross revenue totalling $17 millions. Actual average net income came to about $500,000, rather than a figure upwards of $2 millions predicted by Mayor Drapeau.

Raise False Hopes

And lady luck may not even have a chance to do her stuff if Robert Bourassa and the Liberals have a winning combination at the polls seven months from now. The new Liberal leader has argued that lotteries never produce as much revenue as expected and create false hopes among poor people who participate heavily in them.

If gambling makes Quebec's Liberals talk conservative, it makes Ontario's Conservatives talk liberal. The Ontario government has announced that municipalities soon may be given permission to run schemes of chance for special purposes, such as construction of a new hospital.

Ottawa and Toronto have both expressed interest. Toronto's election ballot of last December carried a for-or-against lottery question and more than 101,000 persons voted for lotteries compared with only 26,000 against. Toronto alderman and former mayor Alan Lamport waxes lyric on lotteries, claiming they would take the "hypocrisy out of gambling." He estimates that Canadians send $40 millions out of the country each year to foreign lotteries.

Its easy to bandy around large figures and calculate lucrative lottery profits on paper but reality is more lugubrious. Ontario's Department of Financial and Commercial Affairs plans that fees charged by a municipality for licencing and supervising lotteries will be on a sliding scale based on between one and two per cent of the total value of the prizes.

On lotteries involving more than $3,500 fees will be split between municipality and province while penny-ante parish bingos will probably be charged a flat fee. Extensive records will have to be kept by all lottery operators for both the wagerer and the tax collector. Lottery prizes are taxable.

But there is evidence that red tape won't strangle Ontarian cries of, "I'll betcha." In a Jan. 8, 1969, decision of the Ontario Court of Appeal a person does not commit the offence of bookmaking by taking bets, as an agent for a fee, to place them through the parimutuel system at Ontario racetracks. After this legislation off-track betting shops began opening quicker than roses on a warm day.

Legal technicalities resulted in a few off-track flowerings in British Columbia not so long ago but the attorney-general's department was quick to nip them in the bud.

Perhaps these two examples served to show Justice Minister John Turner the writing on the tote board. In any case, fears were expressed that proliferation of off-track betting shops would put organized crime on the track.

These doubts manifested themselves in section 177A of the Criminal Code of Canada which reads in part, "Every one who places or offers or agrees to place a bet on behalf of another person for a consideration paid by or on behalf of that other person is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for two years."

Bookies Finished

In laymen's language that means game over for bookie joints. Rather than sagely nodding their heads at the government's wisdom in keeping them from sin, many Canadians were vocally upset.

Commenting on a computerized off-track betting plan proposed to Ontario's attorney-general the Globe and Mail editorialized, "Moral arguments about the off-track betting issue were disposed of long ago. The suggestion that more betting outlets would increase betting, like the temperance groups' arguments that more drinking outlets would increase boozing, belongs to another era."

The paper added, "In fact, if there is a moral issue involved, it is that the present situation, where only those people who can get to a race track are permitted to bet legally, discriminates against the rest who do not have the time or resources to get to the track."

If Ontario and Quebec have calculated the odds and seem ready to take the plunge the other eight provincial governments are not about to add crown and anchor men to the civil service lists.

Alberta First

Alberta was the first off the mark after the federal government made it all legal. Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart headed for Nevada to confer with state officials on their gambling operations.

But the distance between Alberta's brownstone legislative buildings and the pastel palaces that line Las Vegas' Route 66 is measured in more than miles. Gerhart has given no subsequent indication that Social Credit will turn the wheels and roll the dice.

Manitoba plans a modest lottery, "Centennial Sweepstakes," in honor of the province's 100th birthday that will feature a first prize of $70,000.

But the rest of Canada has been as quiet as a high-roller after a losing streak about future gambling plans. B.C. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson has said the new federal legislation would not trigger any immediate developments in British Columbia.

"We have no intention at the present time of introducing any changes regarding gambling in the province." However, Peterson did not rule out the possibility of a lottery at some future date "Everything will stay as it is — for the moment anyway," he said.

'Talks Under Way'

The Maritimes and Saskatchewan have not publicly indicated any plans to get on the betting bandwagon. Attorney-General Peterson has said talks are under way between the three Western provinces in an attempt to reach some uniformity in gambling regulations. Talks have also been held with Ontario's attorney-general's department, he said.

Looking at the country as a whole there has been no rush to fabricate crap tables and wrap the country in green felt to the tune of "all bets down." And that is only as it should be considering the consequences of wide-open gambling. Canadians get a bad taste in their mouths after seeing what some gambling operations have done in the Caribbean and Nevada.

But it is worthwhile to examine gambling operations in other countries. Until the new federal legislation Canada was among a small minority of Western nations that eschewed most forms of legalized gambling.

Almost throughout Europe, from London pubs to Rome's rotisseries, there are men peddling lottery tickets. Germany, France and Britain have large-scale gambling casinos. Of course that doesn't mean Canada should follow suit.

Case for Caution

Britain's example is a case in point that dictates caution. Under the gaming act of 1968 a board was set up to slow down mushrooming gambling casinos because of evidence that the Mafia was moving in. Prior to the act there were about 1,200 casino operations in Britain. To date the board has approved gambling operations in only 31 cities and seaside resorts.

Six more applications are being considered by the Home Office and others will probably apply. The board's action is aimed at eventually cutting down the number of casinos to between 200 and 300, and from bingo and amusement houses.

Still, the only persons who are rejected outright by the board are those who do not live in Britain, or who have been there for less than six months, or whose companies are registered abroad. That does not seem to be a foolproof screening system.

How our neighbors gamble is one thing, but what about the moral implications for Canadians? It can be argued with some validity that legalized gambling attracts organized crime in the same way as June bugs swarm to a barrel of mash.

And what about the poor? They would be more tempted than most to improve their lot by risking it on lotteries or at the blackjack table. In one sense government gambling operations would be a disguised tax on the poor.

The Commonwealth of Puerto Rico circumvented these arguments by making casinos a government operation; that is the dealers and management were civil servants. To gain entrance to a casino, a gambler has to present his passport at the door. Puerto Ricans don't have the opportunity of spending their hard-earned pay cheques at the tables, yet the government gains a larger share of the tourist dollar.

Canadians probably wouldn't stand being excluded from their own casinos, but only a cursory glance at the British situation indicates that any successful gambling operation — whether a casino or a lottery — should be run by the government to ensure that the tentacles of organized crime are frustrated.

TURNER

PETERSON

Our presennt gambling laws invite police corruption. The man on the street who wants to place a bet can always find a bookmaker. Cynics wonder why the police have such difficulty finding and prosecuting bookies.

The traditional Protestant work ethic that gambling offers reward without toil and that it appeals to avarice and that money should be saved and invested is no longer universally accepted.

How can it be in an age when the stock market is a form of lottery and instant credit urges us to buy everything from wine racks to hellfire V-8 autos? We have been conditioned by our own creations.

Tempting as Devil

As folk-poet Bob Dylan puts it, "The times, they are a changing." And more soberly Dr. Allen M. Lindon of Osgoode Law School told the Harrison Liberal Conference that "the law must reflect, in content, the collective sense of justice of modern Canadian society."

People do gamble, they always have gambled and they will continue to gamble. In an era when the provinces and municipalities are scraping their pockets for additional revenues with which to develop, the figures from Nevada are as tempting as the devil.

More than 20 million visitors, or 45 times the state's population, spent $713 millions in Nevada in 1967. Casinos are the source of large revenues because of proximate spending on lodging, food and liquor. The most dreary boondock can become a bonanza overnight.

But it can also become a fortress of syndicated crime with all that this implies. The choice is in the provinces' hands now. It will be interesting to see if they play the "pass line" or opt out for the "don't pass line." The odds are the same on either bet in a crap game.

Much Hypocrisy

There is no doubt that Canada's gambling laws have been marked by hypocrisy throughout the 20th century. Radio and television provide almost instant race results. For whom? Nobody is interested in what horse ran second unless they have money riding on it.

If the federal government really wants to stamp out bookmaking it should prohibit newspapers, radio and television from carrying the results, and especially the sums paid on winners.

It's Time To Get The Lead Out

By ROBERT W. IRVIN

DETROIT — Several years ago there was a singing commercial on radio in Detroit for a gasoline which said "Speedway's going steady with Ethyl."

Well, Ethyl may get jilted. There is now increasing pressure to get the lead additives made by Ethyl Corp. out of gasoline consumers put in their cars.

Tetraethyl lead was put into gasoline in the 1920's. It was a discovery of the General Motors research laboratories, with Standard Oil (New Jersey) developing the commercial application. The two firms founded Ethyl Corp., which made the compound.

When it was introduced it was considered a major advance in fuel technology. At that time the use of additives was the only known way to increase the octane levels of gasoline. This in turn allowed the auto companies to boost engine compression ratios, which improved the efficiency of the power plants.

However, times have changed. It is now recognized that more must be done to reduce harmful emissions from engines, even if this means some loss of power. And researchers for General Motors and Ford have shown that engines using lead-free gasoline burn cleaner than those with leaded gasoline.

The present attack on leaded gas began Jan. 14 when GM president Edward N. Cole said in a Detroit speech that engineers know of no way to meet the stringent air pollution control standards proposed for the 1975-80 period as long as lead remains in gasoline.

Henry Ford II followed Jan. 27 with a letter to the heads of 19 oil companies in which he said "the sooner lead-free fuel is available, the better." He pledged that when it is available nationwide Ford will build all its cars so they can run on this fuel.

L. B. Bornhauser, Chrysler vice-president for product planning and development, said low compression engines that will use unleaded gasoline are already produced by the company "for many world areas where only a low octane fuel is available."

He indicated Chrysler is ready to provide the engines at any time for use in North America should unleaded gasoline become available on a widespread basis.

Morning's at Seven

By ART STOTT

Stott

The sun, rising a little earlier each day, caught a cloud high over the bay yesterday morning and the reflected light suffused the water with old rose. The blush held for minutes, dissolving as the sun cleared the mainland mountains and turned the riffled strait into a plain of shimmering brilliants. This is one of the small dividends that come to people on the waterfront as the slow-wheeling season pushes back the dark of winter's sluggish dawn.

On the shallows inshore, the butterballs, pertly formal in black and white, began their busy foraging, cutting arrowheads across the surface. The noisy gulls soared in, raucously taking their assembly posts on the shore rocks and opening the day's clamor. The cormorants followed, low-flying, awkward in their climb to the small tidal island where they stand hours long in silent meditation.

Daylight crept up the small beach to the east. Shadows shortened. The monochrome gave way to color and more definite form and the silhouettes topping the bank softened, became houses and trees not yet in leaf.

This is a familiar transformation to those living on the waterfront — a little early this year as nature carefully splits the cocoon of the hard, grey season and prepares to blossom out in the freshness of new growth, — an ages old process full of promise. Routine, perhaps, as our part of the planet tilts toward the sun, yet always different in detail.

Here, the more things are the same, the more they change. The cloud, in its particular place above the bay, catches the sun's rays and dyes the water a shade that is subtly altered from hues of other years. The mallards, springtime harbingers to us, have not yet appeared in their querulous search for a nesting place. The Great Northern Diver, usually a regal figure among the waterfowl at this season, seems to have left for remote areas where, in time, he will find his mate. And Ichabod, the blue heron, is late in his stilt-stalking of the reach from shore to the rocks exposed at low tide.

Across the strait, the mountains, too, reveal new facets, picked out by February daybreak's angled light. A new gulley stands out in soft blue between the startling brightness of snow fields bordering it — a small valley that will be lost when the sun climbs higher in the days ahead and when the snow recedes.

Different ships sail by on man's busy commerce, looming inbound from Race Rocks where the winking light loses its strength to the morning. The ferry from Port Angeles, first a small smudge on the horizon, grows and takes shape as it plows steadily toward the Breakwater. A big new freighter, paint gleaming, rides high on its way to a deckload of lumber, propeller throbbing in steady rhythm.

Closer in, the small outboard boat of an early-rising fisherman glints in the sun, shuttling in a slow weave beyond the point, the hum of its engine faint in distance.

Through the open window the air drifts cool and sweet from the dew-wet grass of an unkempt lawn. And from the stairwell rises the wholesome aroma of fresh coffee and fried bacon.

"Morning's at seven" takes on meaning again.

An 'Independent' Western Canada Being Studied by Prairie Businessmen

CALGARY (CP) — The vision of an independent western Canada is playing on the minds of a group of business and professional people who have launched a study into the feasibility.

Lawyer A. M. Harradence said Tuesday the group is gathering a team of consultants who will study the economic, financial and political aspects of an independent western Canada.

The group does not want to raise the spectre of a Quebec-like movement, Mr. Harradence said, and resents "very strongly the term separatism or secessionist."

"This is not going to be an emotional binge like in Quebec."

"We want to know exactly what the situation will be if western Canada should be forced into independence by the economic problems that beset the West today."

Mr. Harradence, former Alberta Progressive Conservative leader, said results of the study are expected to reinforce the feeling among group members that an independent western Canada is not only feasible and desirable, but profitable and necessary.

The group envisages an independent western Canada that would be part of the Commonwealth and loyal to the British crown, he said.

The area that might be included extends from the head of the great lakes to the west coast and takes in the northern areas west of Hudson Bay.

The group has about 15 members, was formed three weeks ago at a "spontaneous meeting," has no name and, for its purposes, has unlimited resources.

Chairman is S. M. Paulson, president of National Nickel Co., but Mr. Harradence declined to disclose the names of other members.

The approach of eastern Canada and the federal government to the West has shown a "callous disregard and a deliberate blindness" for its economic problems, Mr. Harradence said, and has led to the feeling of alienation.

Prime Minister Trudeau "completely misunderstood" the plight of the prairie farmer when he compared him with the corner grocer.

When the prime minister visited the prairies in early 1969 he asked why he should help prairie farmers market their grain, Mr. Harradence said. But the prime minister was able to come up with $200,000,000 to cover the deficit incurred by Expo 67.

The white paper on taxation was also biased against western Canada by cutting exploration incentives and was aimed at benefitting manufacturers in the "golden triangle" of Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

The group wants to gather facts, not emotions, before planning any action, Mr. Harradence said.

"We are not going to rely on just the opinions of the consultants we are dealing with.

"This group, I think, is intelligent enough, well-informed and experienced enough to form their own conclusions.

"But you don't go off half-cocked; you look at the matter and you look at it carefully and coldly and without emotion."

Mr. Harradence said the group would contact other organizations, mostly agricultural, which were conducting similar studies.

Roving Gangs Smash Mail Pickup Trucks

MONTREAL (CP) — One man was injured when roaming gangs smashed two mail-delivery trucks near the city's main post office Tuesday night during a rotating strike.

A post office spokesman said the driver of one of the trucks was cut by flying glass.

It brought to six the number of trucks damaged since Feb. 3 when mail truck drivers began a rotating strike to protest expected layoffs March 31.

Meanwhile, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said that outside contractors will be hired to take up the slack in mail delivery.

The government will not submit to "blackmail tactics" by a union representing 450 mail truck drivers, he told a news conference.

SHOW STRENGTH

A large group of car drivers circled the main post office building in downtown Montreal at about 10 p.m. blowing their horns and cursing drivers who stayed on the job.

Police converged on the area and stopped the parading cars. Police asked each driver for his license and registration, then checked car trunks for weapons. The drivers were then told to return home.

The truck drivers, employed by G. Lapalme Inc., are protesting layoffs expected when the company's exclusive mail delivery contract expires March 31. Five new companies will take over pickup and delivery to sub-stations April 1.

Nixon Takes Bold Stand for Change in U.S. Monetary Policy

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — For all his hesitancy to be so bold in other fields, President Nixon is "jawboning" the federal reserve system to change its monetary policy.

Noting the applause that greeted Arthur F. Burns when he was being sworn in as chairman of the Fed, the president said, (with a smile): "there's a strong vote for lower interest rates and more money."

He surely didn't intend it, but at that instant President Nixon sounded, for all the world, like Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.) who has made a career of trying to force the Fed into his way of thinging.

There is more than a suspicion that President Nixon was trying, at the same time, to "jawbone" the stock market upward. Since his administration took over on January 20, 1969, the Dow-Jones Index has slumped badly.

A Democratic president would hardly have gotten away with it. Editorial writers would have labeled such a president indiscreet, or worse. But Burns wan't born yesterday — his bland response was non-committal.

However, behind the president's needling there is an important issue. It goes much beyond the obvious point that the Nixon administration believes that a change toward easier money and lower interest rates is essential to averting a recession.

The significant development is that the Nixon administration believes that guidance of monetary policy can no longer be the private preserve of the federal reserve system. This is not an attack on the so called "independence" of the Fed, but a recognition of the greater importance, today, of monetary policy in terminning the economic health of the nation.

The Nixon economic report, in fact, for the first time stakes out the intention of the executive department to share in the evolution of the public comentary on monetary policy.

To slow inflation without the risk of high unemployment this year, the economic report of the Council of Economic Advisors sketches a policy for 1970 that combines a modest surplus in the budget with "moderate monetary restraint."

And what is "moderate monetary restraint"? On page 60 of the report, the CEA sets out — for the first time it's every been done — a policy statement for guidance of the Fed:

"This (moderate monetary restraint) does not mean a return to the rates of monetary expansion of 1969 and 1968. The appropriate rate of expansion is between that of 1967-68 and the severe restraint of the latter part of 1969. But just what this rate should be is particularly difficult to tell . . . policy must be cautious and tentative and feel its way along."

An expansion rate half-way between the two extremes spelled out by the CEA would provide for a growth with the money supply just under 4 per cent, which would parallel the growth potential of the economy.

CEA chairman Paul W. McCracken made clear in briefing correspondents that his new executive department attention to monetary policy had been carefully planned and thought through.

Until rather recently, the government's responsibility under the employment act of 1946 to promote maximum employment, production, and purchasing power has revolved about fiscal policy. Monetary policy was an arcane and little understood mystery that most were content to leave to the federal reserve, with its vaunted independence.

Atlas Chemical

Atlas Chemical Industries Inc. set all-time highs in earnings and sales during 1969 — a gross of $114.7 million in sales, up 8 per cent.

Consolidated net earnings stood at $6.59 million, an increase of 19 per cent for $1.61 per share compared with $5.5 million ($1.37) in 1968.

The fourth quarter also was a record setter, when earnings were up 5 per cent at $1.6 million (40 cents, against $1.5 million (38 cents). Sales rose 10 per cent to $36.7 million.

Bluewater Oil

Bluewater Oil and Gas Ltd. of Calgary said oil discovered in a well south of Kimball-Colinville field near Sarnia, Ont., could be produced commercially.

The well was tested at 672 barrels a day.

Bluewater has a 22 per cent interest with McClure Oil of Alma, Mich., holding 36 per cent, and Prenalta Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary 13 per cent.

Northern Life

As a result of higher payments to policyholders and beneficiaries, increased expenses and the introduction of the new corporation tax, Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada sustained a loss of $186,837 in 1969, the company president says.

E. A. Palk said, however, that the company set a record for new business in 1969 amounting to $149,726,520 or an increase of 21.4 per cent over 1968. Assets totalled $91,989,361, he said, an increase of $4,321,250 over 1968.

Life insurance in force totalled $672,461,149 at the end of 1969, an increase of $68,431,407, compared with an increase in 1968 of $57,902,448.

Loomis

A management agreement with Communications Supply Inc., of Anchorage, has been entered into by Loomis Electronic Protection Inc., subsidiary of the Loomis Corp., Seattle.

Loomis will manage the business, whose owner Ed Parsons will serve as consultant.

Parsons, inventor of the coaxial television cable, founded the first cable TV business in Astoria, Ore., 21 years ago. His Alaska firm maintains a communications network that protects against natural disaster, mechanical breakdown, medical emergencies, robberies and burglaries.

Railway Giants in Fight Over B.C. Coal Movement

OTTAWA (CP) — The opening shots in a new battle between railway giants—the Canadian Pacific and the Great Northern railway companies—will be fired here next week concerning the movement of British Columbia coal to the Pacific coast for shipment to Japan.

Great Northern last week merged with Northern Pacific Railway.

CP Rail is applying to the Canadian transport commission for an order staying proceedings or requiring more particulars to be produced by Great Northern on a plan to move into the B.C. interior in competition with CP Rail.

The Canadian Pacific now is building a branch line to move coal from the mines of its subsidiary, Cominco, Ltd., 34 miles north of Natal to its existing line to Vancouver. Natal is near the Alberta border, 100 miles west of Lethbridge.

SEEK FACILITIES

Crows Nest Industries Ltd. of Fernie with coal deposits east of Cominco's, also proposes to sell coal to Japan and is looking for freight facilities.

Fearing that CP Rail may not have the capacity to handle both Cominco and Crows Nest traffic, it is reported to have made a deal with Great Northern to build a 90-mile link running south to Montana. The line would be built either by Great Northern or by the Kootenay and Elk Railway Co., which was incorporated provincially in 1957 and owns some right-of-way, but no track—yet.

Two federal hurdles must be overcome, say informants. Transport commission approval must be obtained for the Kootenay and Elk to cross the CP Rail line east of Natal, and to cross the U.S. border just south of Roosville to connect with the Great Northern at Eureka, Mont.

CP Rail and Great Northern have been railway rivals for nearly a century, with the Canadian Pacific fighting—vainly, in some cases—to ward off intrusions of the American line into its Canadian territory.

Sources here indicate that B.C. provincial authorities are not opposing the Kootenay and Elk-Great Northern plan. They are said to believe some competition would be beneficial in the movement of B.C. coal to the new Vancouver superport of Roberts Bank.

CP Rail is expected to counter this with an argument that Canadian coal should be shipped through Canadian territory to a Canadian port for export to Japan. They say there is a danger that the coal, once in U.S. territory, will move along the Great Northern to its loading facilities at Seattle.

The Great Northern reaches Pacific tidewater at Everett, Wash., and coal could move north through Bellingham to Vancouver and Roberts Bank.

But the distance between Everett and Seattle is shorter. And the Crows Nest-Kootenay and Elk railway project is said to be backed by the Kaiser interests in the U.S.

Foreign Banks Face Takeover in India

NEW DELHI (WP) —The judgement India's supreme court handed down Tuesday, invalidating the nationalization of 14 top banks last June, may lead to a takeover of all banks, both Indian and foreign.

That is because the court held that it is discriminatory to take over one set of banks while allowing others to carry on business. The court also held that the compensation offered to shareholders of nationalized banks is based upon norms which violate fundamental rights guaranteed by the constitution. Under the nationalization law shareholders were offered bonds redeemable after several years and bearing interest lower than market rates.

Legal opinion Tuesday was that the policy of nationalization would not have to be reversed, since the court has confirmed Parliament's competence to nationalize banking. It is likely therefore that a presidential ordinance may be issued shortly to take over all banks and set new terms for compensation to meet the court's objections. That would have to be ratified when Parliament, now in recess, reopens on February 20.

ASSURANCES GIVEN

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi had last June given assurances to interested countries, the U.S. among them, that foreign banks would not be touched. It is assumed here that if she now goes back on these assurances western opinion will recognize that she has no other choice. U.S. banks that may be affected are the First National City Bank of New York and the Bank of America.

A more far-reaching effect of Tuesday's court decision may well be to strengthen demands for changes in the country's basic law to exclude property from the list of fundamental rights. Those demands are not intended to do away with the legal requirement to compensate expropriateed owners.

Kaiser Will Load Cars at Month End

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kaiser Resources Ltd. said Tuesday it will be ready to load gondola cars with coal from the East Kootenay by the last week of the month.

Kaiser is scheduled to begin shipping coal to Japan through the Roberts Bank deepsea port 25 miles south of here by April 1.

Control over the rail link with the port now is held by the B.C. Harbors Board and the government is talking with Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, Great Northern and B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Railways about running rights on the link.

Mines Minister Frank Richter said the government wants to "ensure that every rail carrier wanting access to the port has an equal opportunity."

"Whether they accept our ownership I don't know, but as far as I am concerned there is no dispute," he said.

Stelco to Boost Plant Capacity

TORONTO (CP) — H. M. Griffith, president of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., says his company will commit about $1,000,000,000 to increase steel-making capacity in the next 10 years.

He told the Canadian Steel Warehouse Association that Canadian production will double by 1980 to 23,000,000 ingot tons. Total industry output will grow to more than 17,000,000 tons by 1975.

BCT Authorized To Purchase Shares

OTTAWA (CP) — An order of the Canadian transport commission authorizes the British Columbia Telephone Co. to purchase any or all of 759 shares of the Okanagan Telephone Co. it does not already have.

The order says the price per share is not to exceed $27.30 and the purchases are to be made by Dec. 31.

An earlier commission decision authorized B.C. Teleuhone to buy all of the shares by Dec. 31, 1969.

There are still 11 shareholders who have a total of 759 shares in Okanagan.

Habitual Criminal Law 'A Flop' Says Study

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The 80 men in prison as habitual criminals in 1968 were 284-time losers. One had even been arrested for trying to kill himself.

Their record of 2,272 offences is more impressive for length than content, although the list included one manslaughter, a kidnapping, 34 armed robberies and three rapes.

Rather than the dangerous, hardened criminal the law was aimed at when passed in 1947, these were offenders who couldn't do anything wrong right.

They were arrested for littering the highways, being disguised at night, drinking under age, stealing a ride on the CNR.

The Ouimet committee on corrections, after a 3½-year study, said in its report last fall the habitual criminal law should be repealed as a flop.

The committee under Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet of Montreal, after looking at the records of the 80 men, could find nothing "consistent or rational" about the way the law was being applied.

CRITICIZE SEX LAW

It said the "dangerous sexual offender" law also was being abused. Of 20 dangerous sexual offenders in Kingston Penitentiary, prison psychiatrist George Scott testified, nine were not dangerous and five others were mentally ill.

The Ouimet report recommends a new law under which the "dangerous offender"—the child molester, armed robber, burglar, terrorist—could be isolated and held indefinitely.

The Ouimet concept probably will be given to the proposed national law reform commission for study and may come before the uniformity commissioners, the federal-provincial official body that shapes standard legislation across Canada, next August.

Little urgency has been shown.

Since 1938, authorities have been telling the government that indeterminate sentences should be served in special institutions equipped to deal with "for example, the emotionally disturbed person who has a compulsion to set fire to dwelling houses, the kidnapper, the person likely to sexually molest children by acts which, while not causing serious physical injury, may cause serious psychological damage."

However, there are hardly any facilities at the moment to deal with such offenders. This spring, construction will begin on a medico-psychiatric centre at Millhaven, Ont., and another will be built at Ste. Anne des Plaines, Que., by 1972.

Ironically they mark the last stage of a $200,000,000 prison construction program.

'Sex Law Also Abused'

Other such centres are to be built at Saskatoon, Mission, B.C., and Dorchester, N.B.

The Ouimet committee says the dangerous offender must be separated from the "persistent non-dangerous offender" and the professional criminal.

"The offender who is suffering from a severe personality disorder which causes him to be dangerous in terms of physical safety of others falls into an entirely different category to the professional who is engaged in a continuing course of conduct as a business for profit."

Its proposed legislation would enable the courts to take a second look at a person convicted of a violent offence and send him to a diagnostic institution for up to six months for assessment.

OFFENCES LISTED

The issue would then be decided in court, with strong appeal and review protections for the offender. The Ouimet report defines the dangerous offender as one convicted of an offence specified in the proposed legislation "who by reason of character disorder, emotional disorder, mental disorder or defect constitutes a continuing danger and who is likely to kill, inflict serious bodily injury, endanger life, inflict severe psychological damage or otherwise seriously endanger the personal safety of others."

Only 177 of the 2,272 offences they had committed were "against the person" and most of these were minor.

"The inescapable conclusion is that the habitual offender legislation has been principally invoked in respect of offences against property."

MAJOR LEAGUE RULES COMMITTEE PLANNING . . .

. . . TO AID HITTERS BY PUSHING BACK FOUL LINES

It'll Be Some Kind of Game, But It Won't Be Baseball

By SHIRLEY POVICH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A usually sensible group called the major league rules committee has just had an inspiration, although not a very bright one. They are now playing around with the notion to get more hitting into the game by the simple act of tampering with the honored old shape of the playing field.

It is a proposal calculated to send the bronze busts of the 117 members of the Hall of Fame spinning in their niches at Cooperstown, and cause wailing in the night through the corridors of that Valhalla. If the high cockalorums on the rules committee enact their new plan, they will have some kind of game, but it won't be baseball.

Stripped of all its geometrical language about increasing the width of the playing field, by three degrees angling outward from first and third bases toward the outfield, the proposed plan is a product of ninnies. Its chief design is to accomodate baseball's weak hitters by glorifying their foul balls and counting a great many of them as base hits.

A baseball field with the foul lines flaring out three more degrees, beginning at first and third base, is hardly the same field known to organized baseball for 100 years. When fences are 320 feet from the plate, a modestly-sized park, there will be 12 more feet of fair territory than formerly, at each outfield corner, actually 24 more feet of fair territory.

The one important grace of the plan is that it is not imminent, that it is a tentative thing, to be tried out in the Gulf Coast Rookie League next summer and then judged for its worth. But there is always the clear danger that the rules committee will fall in love with its work and inflict something bad on the grand old game.

There is one excellent reason why nobody ever thought of such a plan before in the history of organized baseball, which celebrated its 100th year last summer. Hitherto, the idea was too preposterous, and it still is. There would be a need of an asterisk for every batting mark in the book if a new breed of hitters had 24 extra feet of fair territory to shoot at. Home runs that were formerly foul balls would count against the records of Babe Ruth and Roger Maris, and Ted Williams would not for long be the last .400 hitter.

As was explained by the rules committee in advancing its plan, the new dimensions of the outfield would give outfielders more ground to cover, leave bigger gaps into which base hits could fall. Thus would be created the synthetic base hit, with an assistant scorer needed to count tongues hanging out of distraught outfielders.

Bowie Kuhn, the new commissioner, has been a steady advocate of more hitting in baseball and has proposed a 10 per cent livelier ball. There is nothing much wrong in reving up the baseball a bit, and certainly it has been done before, especially in the Babe Ruth years when he was hitting a record number out of the park.

But Ruth and the other batting champions could feel much deprived if some lucky stiff, blessed by 24 more feet of fair territory, surpassed their records by getting credit for base hits that in their day would have been 12 feet foul. The proposed rule would make a tragic shamble of all the treasured statistics that have been a cornerstone of fan interest.

The major league rules committee mayhap has overlooked one plan that would get more hitting into the game. Get some of those indolents who have no time for more batting practice back into those cages, before and after the game, and get their minds on hitting instead of their other affairs. Ted Williams would approve. That's how he made it.

Bill WALKER

It's the year of the old guy in British Columbia, if 40 can be considered old.

When Lyall Dagg of Vancouver won the B.C. curling championship at Duncan and the right to represent the province in the Macdonald's Brier championship at Winnipeg next month, he admitted that he wanted nothing less than total victory.

And that is what he got from his rink of third Barry Naimark, second Leo Hebert and lead Terry Paulson. That and total effort.

It is unlikely that any rink ever curled any better in any playoff, and a repeat performance in the Brier would definitely give the B.C. rink a better than even chance of winning it all.

Once having tasted victory, in 1964, Dagg said he wanted one more crack at the Canadians. Following his 1964 win, he had been forced through pressure of business to curtail his curling activities, although he did compete most years in the B.C. playdowns. But he wasn't sharp. Then last year, Naimark went on his own, and he, too, was unsuccessful.

This year there had been a meeting of the minds and it was decided to try seriously once again. Naimark had been given the chance of skipping the rink because he had been more active and had skipped a B.C. rink to the mixed championships. However, the move didn't work, and the rink didn't jell.

Another meeting ensued and Dagg agreed to give it a try as skip. It has been a tremendous success. As noted yesterday, the Dagg rink has not lost a game, anywhere, since that move.

Dagg gave much of the credit to Naimark. He has been a tremendous third, he said. And this was noticeable at Duncan. Naimark often made many of the key shots, taking much of the pressure off Dagg. And it did appear that he was a more relaxed and yet a more determined competitor at third than perhaps might be the case as skip.

Paulson, the youngster of the party at 26, was always the bright-eyed and bushy-tailed rookie. His high spirits enthused everyone. Hebert was his usual steady self, and it is hard to say which would be the catalyst that moulded the rink into the almost flawless group it was.

However, Dagg didn't skip a championship rink in 1964 just because he has extraordinary shot-making ability. He also knew how to handle his rink. And this was in evidence, too, at Duncan.

For there was one moment, but only a brief one, when it appeared that there might be a cause for a letdown. It came in the match against Dave Paterson of Comox.

Dagg had run off to a 4-0 lead and it seemed like that would be enough, the way the rink was curling. But suddenly there were a couple of missed shots. At least the rocks had come up light of the rings. And Paterson was quick to pursue his advantage. He ducked in behind the long guards and when the end was finished he had scored a three-ender on Dagg, something that had not been done before in the playoffs or was to happen later.

It was noticeable that Paulson was upset at what he thought was his fault, and the rink seemed to have come unstuck just a little. Dagg, however, recognized the symptoms, called everyone together and said, in effect, come on, let's go; we can't afford to let one bad end get us down.

Back they came as strong as ever.

Dagg admitted afterwards that he had to be a trifle worried, because if another such bad end had followed, then Patterson would have been in control, and he didn't want that to happen.

He also said that he thinks this team is much stronger than the rink he took to Calgary in 1964; particularly because of the added experience; that the players were curling better than they had done all season, and that he himself was curling as good, if not better, than he had ever curled.

Certainly, all observers agreed that the other competition was no match for Dagg, with Glen Pierce of Burnaby as probably the most likely of all the rinks to succeed in the future.

Dagg's rink was that superior on ice which he described as the finest in Western Canada.

About the Brier, Dagg suggested that with a break in the draw, and he probably meant not having to play the supposedly western powerhouses one after the other, he thought they stood an excellent chance of success.

There was only one thing that bothered him, and that was the fact they would be playing in an arena. "We haven't played in an arena since 1965," he said, and it could cause a problem, because it is different from a club rink.

Sentiment doesn't enter into it.

And Dagg is no sentimentalist.

He is a cool, confident shotmaker, with a remarkably poised and experienced crew in front of him, and completely dedicated to the task.

He gave away nothing in Duncan. And he isn't likely to give away anything in Winnipeg either, even if he has to have another meeting of the minds, on the ice.

That's where it will all be won, or lost.

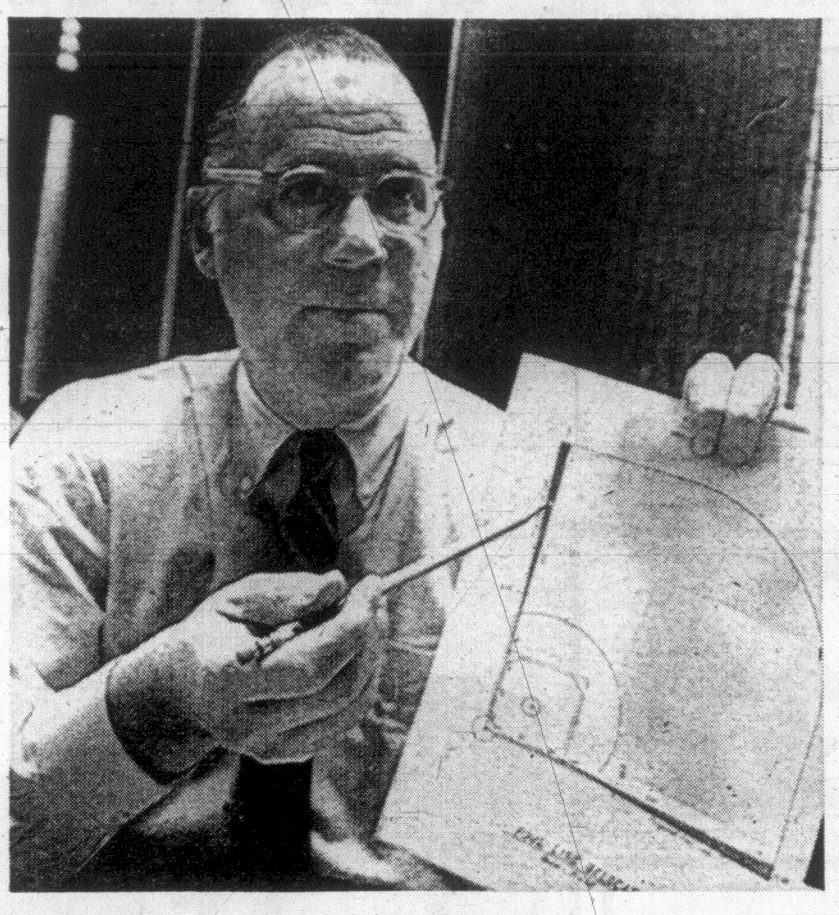
This old guy is Dagg.



Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Explains Proposed Rule Change

UNHAPPY OWNERS . . . . . GRANT ONE-YEAR REPRIEVE

Pilots Stay in Seattle

CHICAGO (AP) — The Pilots will remain in Seattle at least one more year but the American League may become a trustee of the baseball club until sound financial ownership can be obtained.

League president Joe Cronin indicated Tuesday that some club owners were not satisfied with the proposed restructuring of Seattle's financial status.

Cronin said that league counsel was in the process of talking to the Bank of California on the mechanics of renegotiating a $3,500,000 loan to the club. Conditions of the loan have created problems for would-be purchasers.

Before voting to leave the club in Seattle, the owner group heard a presentation from the new 'rescue squad', headed by Edward E. Carlson, trying to save the Seattle franchise.

Carlson and Seattle businessmen Jim Ellis, James Douglas and Mechlin Moore outlined their plans to take over operation of the Pilots from the original owners, headed by William Daley of Cleveland.

The meeting continued late Tuesday evening and was scheduled to reconvene today with owners determined to resolve the Seattle problem.

Representatives of Milwaukee and Fort Wort-Dallas groups, which hoped to get the franchise if the league rejected Seattle's final financial proposition, were ready to present plans to the meeting.

Riddell Was Quick To Harvest Points

By ERNIE FEDORUK

By his actions, Chris Riddell wasn't one to waste time Tuesday.

The minutes allotted the rookie centre were a precious few, but Riddell made the most of his working shifts to open the floodgates as Victoria Cougars swept aside New Westminster Royals, 14-1, at Memorial Arena.

The flood was the only saving grace as the Cougars poured it on to establish a club scoring record and boost their British Columbia Junior Hockey League lead to three points over Vancouver Centennials.

Victoria's single-game goals total surpassed, by three, the previous club high of 11. And no one deserved it more than the sad-sack Royals.

Making their final appearance of the season, the Royals showed up 45 minutes late. A mainland fog grounded their scheduled chartered flight and the New Westminster club was forced to travel by ferry, delaying the game's start by and hour and eight minutes.

Royals also travelled with only 11 players, including two goaltenders, and, quite frankly, received their just reward Tuesday evening.

All but two players — defenceman Randy Bock and forward Scott Munro — shared in pouring out 34 points.

Riddell, Shayne Webster and defenceman Gerry Bond led the way with five points apiece. Riddell and Webster each scored three times while Bond was a two-goal man along with Alex Shibicky. Ted Plowe, Rob Little, Pat Askew and Dale Pennock tossed in shingles.

Bob Buchanan wrecked Ed Forslund's shutout hopes, and only through the generosity of Victoria defenceman Laurie Moore. Buchanan intercepted a Moore pass for a breakaway that produced Royals' only goal at 17:32 of the first period.

Shibicky got the Cougars off and snarling with a goal after only seven seconds of play, and another at 15:25 of the first period. It ended 2-1.

CHRIS RIDDELL
. . . five-point

Three Goals Counted on Each Shift

That's when Riddell went to work. Coach Doug Anderson's designated spare, Chris never got on the ice in the first period.

He had only three shifts in the second period, but the Cougars counted two goals with each Riddell shift. That launched a nine-goal, second-period spree.

Riddell had four more turns on the ice in the third period, but the best he could do was to toss in his third goal of the night — and his 18th of the season.

Webster, returning to action after missing three games because of a rib injury, played the role of leader. He bustled and yelled, and checked in with his first three-goal performance as a junior. The three raised his season's total to 21.

The Cougars were unfortunate in not adding another half-dozen goals. New Westminster's Dave McLelland was the victim of the first 10 before conceding goaltending "honors" to Maurice L'Heureux at 15:18 of the second period.

Cougars peppered the New Westminster goal with a whopping 101 shots, but only 57 were on the target. Royals managed but 24 shots, with Forsland called to stop only 14.

SHORT CHIPS: Webster and Moore marred their performances by drawing senseless majors . . . Moore was assessed a five-minute charging penalty for jumping on Renus Jellema after the Royals' player cross-checked Little . . . Webster drew his major for spearing a Royals' player during a stoppage in play . . . Ted Plowe picked up a pair of assists and Bruce Cowick earned three "helpers" to remain deadlocked for the Cougar scoring lead, each with 59 points . . . Shibicky's two goals both stemmed from great individual efforts, but Askew finished off the prettiest play of the night . . . Cougars were ragging the puck in their own zone while killing off Webster's penalty . . . Two smart and snappy relays, from Pennock to Bond and then to Askew, put the winger in the clear . . . Cougars play their next game Saturday night, meeting Penticton at Memorial Arena . . .

Good Time to Experiment As Stars Bid to End Slide

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If rookie coach Charlie Burns has any plans to solve problems plaguing his slumping Minnesota North Stars, tonight would be a good time to try them out.

The North Stars appeared as strong contenders in the early part of the National Hockey League season, but have dropped from second place in the West Division to fifth in the last month.

Tonight they visit fourth-place Oakland Seals who they trail by one point. A win would put Minnesota back into that last playoff position.

But winning has become a pleasure unfamiliar to the North Stars. In their last 26 games, the Minnesotans have gained but one victory while gleaning another nine points on as many ties and suffering 16 defeats.

The prospects for tonight are not much improved when the North Stars consider that three of those last 16 losses came at the hands of Oakland which now has a record of four wins and a tie with Minnesota this season.

BLAIR TURNS JOB OVER

Burns, a centre drafted last summer from Pittsburgh Penguins, was installed as an assistant coach in December by general manager-coach Wren Blair. Last month Blair's doctor ordered him to cut down on his work load and the full-time coaching duties fell to Burns.

In other games tonight, Toronto Maple Leafs meet the Canadiens in Montreal, New York Rangers are guests of Los Angeles Kings, Boston Bruins go against the Blues in St. Louis and Pittsburgh Penguins are at Chicago against the Black Hawks.

The Chicago team physician, Dr. Myron Tremaine, said Tuesday defenceman Pat Stapleton will not require immediate surgery on his torn knee ligaments as was earlier feared.

"The knee will be in a cast for a while, but there won't be any surgery," the doctor said.

Rolle Beaten By Rodriguez

Rodriguez floored Rolle early in the fourth round. Rolle managed to struggle to his feet at the count of nine and Rodriguez began pounding him with a clean right hand to the chin knocking him down. Rolle tried to get up but collapsed back against the ropes.

Vikettes Roll To Easy Win

LETHBRIDGE—University of Victoria Vikettes closed out the regularly-scheduled portion of their Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association season on Tuesday with an 81-32 romp over University of Lethbridge.

Vikettes, who were defending champions, ended in second place with a record of 12 wins and two losses. UBC Thunderettes won the league title, two points ahead of Vickettes.

Heather Witzel pumped in 24 points to pace Vikettes while clubmate Barb Tribe chipped in 22.

Killy Approves Grouse Ski Site

VANCOUVER (CP) — Olympic champion skier Jean-Claude Killy Tuesday gave a nod of approval to slalom runs prepared at Grouse Mountain for a world cup ski event from Feb. 27 to March 1.

Killy made runs down the slalom and giant slalom on the North Shore mountain and later said:

"They're both excellent courses. You could use a little more snow, but both courses are a credit to Canada."

Hotelmen Climb Close to Leaders

Hotel Douglas climbed closer to first-place Independents in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League race by downing the leaders 61-55 Tuesday at Central Junior High School.

Victory lifted the Hotelmen within two points of Independents with four games remaining on the schedule for each club. They meet again on Feb. 19.

In the other game Tuesday, Farmer Construction kept Century Inn winless by downing the last-place crew 59-55.

STRONG REBOUNDING

Bob Burrows continued to pace Hotelmen's efforts with 24 points while Dan Wade and Rod Fields provided strong rebounding support.

Bill Carlson fired 14 points to lead Independents, who were missing the punch of scoring-leader John Lauvaas.

Hotel Douglas took a 28-23 lead at intermission and was never behind the rest of the distance.

The lead changed hands many times in the Farmer-Century tussle with Farmers collecting the win after scoring the final four points of the game.

Gary Woodburn topped Farmers with 13 points.

Timid Blues Demoted

ST. LOUIS (AP) —General manager and coach Scotty Bowman, angry because of apparent indifference to let a teammate take a beating, sent three of his slumping St. Louis Blues players to the minors Monday and blasted the team for a lack of aggressiveness.

Centre Andre Boudrias and wingers Larry Keenan and Ron Anderson were dropped from the National Hockey League club's varsity roster.

Bowman complained the Blues had allowed teammates to be roughed up last week without trying to help them.

SINDEN'S ASSIST RECORD . . . . . ERASED BY BRUIN STAR

Bobby's Coach Held Old Mark

BOSTON (CP) — Most everyone can tell you about the National Hockey League records set by Bobby Orr, but there's one tucked away in the annals of professional hockey that even the young Boston Bruin superstar could have trouble remembering.

But Orr's coach, Harry Sinden, remembers.

That dusty old mark was the most assists in a single professional hockey season by a defenceman. It was established back in the 1961-62 season by none other than Sinden.

He was playing for Kingston Frontenacs of the now-defunct Eastern Professional Hockey League and racked up 61 assists during the season.

Most fans forgot the mark as Orr set NHL assist records this year and launched an assault on the goal record, but sports editor Ron Brown of the Kingston Whig-Standard dug it up.

He mentioned it to Sinden last week and the Boston coach had even forgotten it.

"Hey is that right?" Sinden asked.

"Does that thing still stand. That's interesting . . . very interesting . . . wait till I tell Bobby. You know I may even have to bench him now."

But Sinden did not bench Orr and Sunday night he picked up an assist as the Bruins thumped St. Louis Blues 7-1. That brought his total to 62 for the season, surpassing Sinden's record by one.

Barclay Plager, playing for Omaha Knights of the Central Professional League, also set up 61 goals in the 1963-64 season, but now Orr holds the mark by himself.

VIKING VIEWS

By Brian Butters

Players with one University of Victoria athletic squad will have an opportunity in the next few days to perform before a national television audience.

These are the spikers and setters who will compete in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association volleyball championship tournament at the University of British Columbia.

The Uvic squad, along with seven other WCIAA teams, will engage in a round-robin competition, playing each other in best-out-of-three series. The four teams with the best won-lost records will advance to a playoff and the two finalists will play a best-out-of-three series before CBC cameras to determine the WCIAA champion.

Uvic will send 10 players to Vancouver for the competition along with team manager Clay Lloyd-Jones. The 10 selected for the trip are: Ken Lundeen, Al Graves, Rick Baker, Greg Russell, Bruce Smith, Jim Barker, Nimby Sihota, Debbie Dley, Wayne Forland and Jim Wyllie.

Competition starts Thursday night and the final is scheduled for Saturday afternoon. For the four teams which do not make it to the playoff, there is a consolation round to determine fifth to eighth places.

Favored to take top place in the tourney is the team from the University of Manitoba. However, Uvic's chances for the title are very good, as are UBC's. Uvic and UBC have played some closely-contested games over the past few months and battles between them and Manitoba should prove to be interesting.

Also competing in WCIAA volleyball championship play this weekend will be the Uvic women's team, which travels to Edmonton for the distaff tourney competition.

Coach Bob Bell's basketball Vikings will have their work cut out for them this weekend when they travel to the mainland for games against two of Canada's top teams.

The Uvic men will meet the vaunted Simon Fraser University Clansmen on Friday night in an exhibition match at the Burnaby campus.

Saturday night Vikings return to WCIAA action for their second meeting with UBC Thunderbirds, who are undefeated after 14 league games.

Also playing a return match with SFU will be Uvic Jayvees, who have fashioned a 22-2 record over the season.

Basketball's Vikettes, after completing their WCIAA league schedule, play in Vancouver Friday night in the second game of their two-game, total-point playoff semi-final with Mt. Pleasant in the Inter-City Senior Women's League.

Vikettes will go into the game with a six-point deficit, having lost the first leg of the series 62-56.

Just around the corner for the girls are the playoffs for the WCIAA women's basketball league in which they finished in second spot after the completion of their schedule.

Other weekend action will have the rugby Vikings and Norsemen hosting two teams from University of Washington. Games to be played on Saturday will count toward the Pacific Northwest Collegiate Rugby Conference championships, which [illegible] teams won last year in their respective divisions.

The hockey Vikings move back into Vancouver Island League play Friday night when they meet Stocker's North Americans at 8:15 at the Esquimalt Arena. WCIAA action on Saturday will bring UBC's Thunderbirds into town for a league game.

Swiss Girl Takes Title; Montreal Skier Fourth

VAL GARDENA, Italy (AP)—Anneroesli Zryd of Switzerland fought stinging snowflurries today to win the downhill, first woman's event in the world Alpine championships.

Miss Zryd, 21, the winner of the downhill event in this Italian Dolomite Valley at the pre-world championships last year, gave Switzerland its first gold medal of the championships, clocking one minute 58.34 seconds.

It was one of the trickiest courses so far in the championships, a 2,750-metre run with a vertical drop of 675 metres and 31 gates.

Canadian women had an excellent day, with Judy Crawford of Montreal finishing fourth and Diane Culver of Montreal ending up 11th.

ALSO BROKE BARRIER

The only other girl besides Miss Zryd to break the two-minute barrier was Isabelle Mir of France, who clocked 1:58.84.

Annemarie Proell, an Austrian housewife who will be only 17 next month, clocked the third best time in 2:00.43 to split the medals among the three Alpine nations.

But the biggest surprise came from Miss Crawford, 18, who is rated only 18th in the International Ski Frederation downhill standings. She was fourth with 2:00.65. Miss Culver was 11th in 2:02.69.

But the two other Canadians did not fare as well.

MISS CLIFFORD 42ND

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, who is rated Canada's strongest slalom hope, finished 42nd in today's downhill with a time of 2:15.47. And Laurie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., was among seven competitors who did not finish.

The major victims were favored Francoise Macchi of France, Wiltrud Drexel of Austria, who leads in FIS standings for the downhill, and Judy Nagel of the United States. All fell in the top part of the course.

France now leads in the medals count after the three events in the championships so far with one gold, two silver and one bronze.

Saanich Club Leads

Trevor Cole to Coach Women's Swim Squad

MONTREAL—Trevor Cole, former coach of Victoria Olympians and now instructing at Vancouver, and Toronto's Nick Phierry will coach Canadian swimming squads at the Commonwealth Games in Scotland this summer.

Cole, who guided his Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club to the team title in the B.C. championship meet in Victoria last weekend will coach the women's squad while Phierry will handle the male swimmers.

Murray Badget of Winnipeg will manage the swimming and diving contingent and Edmonton's R. Hetherington will coach the divers.

Col. Jack Davies, president of the British Commonwealth Games Association of Canada, announced here that Mike Breckon of Montreal has been appointed manager of Canada's entry in the Games, which will open July 17 in Edinburgh.

PUGH HEAD COACH

Track and field appointments included:

Manager, George Arnold of Don Mills, Ont; head coach, Lionel Pugh of Vancouver; field coach, Gabor Simonyi of North Battleford, Sask.; track coach, Paul Poce of Toronto, and trainer-coach, Heinz Piotrowski of Vancouver.

The team also acquired a female doctor for the first time with the appointment of Noelle Grace of London, Ont., a former water-ski champion.

Ladies Start Bonspiel Play On Thursday

Esquimalt Ladies' Afternoon Curling Club hosts its ninth annual Valentine bonspiel which starts Thursday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Forty rinks are now entered in the four-event 'spiel. Play is scheduled to continue Friday and Saturday with finals on Sunday.

ISLAND SENIORS WIN B.C. CROWN

CLOVERDALE (CP) — Don McRae of Nanaimo Tuesday won the provincial senior men's curling championships with two straight wins over the Jerry Hallquist rink from Summerland.

McRae took the second of the best-of-three final 8-5 after an earlier 11-7 win.

The Nanaimo rink now will represent B.C. in the national final to be played at Kamloops, starting Feb. 23.

In the deciding game, McRae trailed Hallquist until the seventh end. He scored four in the eighth to go ahead 7-4 and added one more in the ninth. The Hallquist rink scored one in the final end.

The eighth end was the deciding one in the first match, when McRae stole one to even up 7-7, then added two points in each of the ninth and final ends.

Ray's Long Blast Rescues Totems

SEATTLE—Ray Larose blasted a 50-foot scoring shot which climaxed a Seattle comeback to give Totems a 2-2 Western Hockey League tie with Denver Spurs on Tuesday night.

Trailing 2-0 at the end of the first period, Totems started on the path to recovery with an unanswered power-play goal by Jack Michie in the second period.

Larose collected the equalizer at 6:34 of the third frame after firing from just inside the blue line. The puck hit Denver goalie Rocky Farr's pad and slithered into the net.

Wilf Martin and Brian McDonald counted for Spurs.

It was the only league contest scheduled and extended Spurs' frustrations at the hands of Seattle this season. Seattle had won eight and lost only one encounter with Denver before the Tuesday game.

JONES RETAINS LEAD

Spurs continue their road trip tonight at Portland, where Buckaroo veteran Art Jones will be attempting to increase his individual scoring lead over Andy Bathgate of Vancouver Canucks.

Jones maintained his four-point margin over Bathgate by collecting eight points in last week's games. He now has 84 points, including a league-leading 53 assists.

		W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Vancouver	53	36	11	6	232	148	78
Portland	50	26	17	7	206	165	59

Phoenix	48	15	25	8	158	172	38
Salt Lake City	46	11	25	10	147	213	32

Bob Hunt to Open Defence of Titles

Bob Hunt, who swept all three titles last year, opens defence of his singles crown tonight as play starts in open events of the Victoria badminton championships, currently underway at the Victoria Racquet Club.

Valerie Evans and Dave Sawyer produced the closest contest in the starting rounds of handicap play Tuesday by outlasting Noni Pugh and Peter Nellewag in a mixed doubles tussle.

Tonight's draw:

7:30—B. McPherson vs. L. Williams; D. Howells vs. M. Horn; V. Pratt vs. W. Humphreys; D. Rogers vs. C. Simpson.

8:00—C. Shupe, S. Soward, R. O'Neill, B. McMynn vs. winners; S. Selina and M. Benson vs. J. Dewey and J. Fayad.

8:30—J. Skillings and R. Pollard vs. D. Cairns and P. Perks; M. Wagner and R. Denis vs. B. McPherson and D. Howells; L. Park and J. Meija vs. C. Shupe and W. Humphreys; B. McMynn an B. Chudyk vs. M. Woods and R. O'Neill; J. Wells and T. Jones vs. J. Dewey and S. Soward.

Sheep Don't Solve Royal and Ancient Grass-Cutting Job

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—About 4,000 golf course superintendents have gathered in Houston for the 41st International Turfgrass Conference.

Also here is one links supervisor, John K. Campbell of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, Saint Andrews, Scotland.

The superintendents are seeking ways to make their golf courses more beautiful and popular with their members.

Campbell doesn't have that problem. In the world of golf, Saint Andrews is sacred ground.

A bald, stocky, red-faced man, Campbell looks after the cradle of golf. He supervises the maintenance of four courses, Eden, Jubilee, the New Course and the Old Course.

Since the records only go back to the 15th century, nobody knows precisely how long the old course has been in existence.

VISITORS KISS TURF

"You know, I've seen American visitors come to Saint Andrews, walk down the steps to the No. 1 tee and bow down and kiss the turf," says Campbell, who delights in telling his stories.

"Just recently," he said, "I saw an American leave the clubhouse with only a driver in his hand. When he got to the No. 1 tee, he took off his top coat and suit coat and piled them in a neat bundle.

"Then, he teed up his ball and drove it down the middle. He slipped on his suit coat and his top coat and walked off the course, saying: 'I hit a golf ball at Saint Andrews. Now, I can die happy when I go back home tomorrow with my wife and children.' "

IN NATURAL STATE

Campbell has a 50-man crew to maintain the four courses, but his budget for equipment and maintenance is roughly $8,000, about one-tenth of what is spent on the finer country clubs in America.

But Saint Andrews is almost in its natural state, and Campbell admits that "manicuring" is an American invention. However, he mows the greens every day, just like the Americans.

And contrary to the old golf course tales, sheep do not solve the grass cutting job at Saint Andrews.

He estimates that 123,000 rounds of golf were played at Saint Andrews last year, but, compared to American stand fees, the green fees are trifling.

The local residents pay only $7 a year, while guest fees are about $1.50 American for 18 holes.

There's no pro or golf shop. If a golfer wants to purchase clubs or equipment, he can go into town.

Action Theme Set for Show At Esquimalt

"Action" is the theme for the fourth annual Kiwanis Sportsman Show, which will be presented at Esquimalt Sports Centre this year from Thursday, April 2, through Sunday, April 5.

Lew Sutton, president of the sponsoring Kiwanis Club of Saanich, has announced that the show will again feature several live demonstrations, including judo, golf, archery, fly-tieing and tips on angling.

Numerous exhibits of the latest in outdoor equipment will also be among the show's highlights.

Sensational New Hearing Aid Costs Less Than 10 Cents Per Year To Operate

Space age technology has come to the hearing aid industry. A new hearing aid has been developed that actually costs less than ten cents per year to operate. This is a far cry from the $25 to $70 a year the average hearing aid costs to run. Aid also automatically controls speech interfering noises and can be custom adjusted for correct hearing on the spot. For information write SILVERTONE HEARING AID CENTRE, Simpsons - Sears Hillside: 3190 Shelbourne Street, Victoria.

City Golf Team Has Big Lead

(Special To The Times

LAS VEGAS—A ten-man golf team from Victoria holds a commanding lead at the halfway mark in the northern section qualifying playoffs for the Gold Cup.

Victoria players Tuesday posted a net 262, 24 under par on the Desert Inn course here, to move 11 strokes ahead of Calgary Golf Club's team. Six strokes further back, at 279, was another Calgary team from Canyon Meadows.

In the unique event, entries are divided into five two-man teams who play off their best ball. Only the best four of the five scores are used.

FINAL ROUND TODAY

Leading the way Tuesday was a Colwood combination of Ken Leslie and Roger Ross, who scored a net 62. Another Colwood pairing, Bill Kirstine and Fred Ranson scored 65, one stroke ahead of Jack Kenney and Al Vey. Malcolm MacKay and Max Yates produced a 63 for the fourth score. Also on Victoria's team are Tom James and Ches Hays of Uplands.

Final 18 holes of the qualifying round were to be played today.

Backup Boat To Campaign

SEATTLE (AP) — The unlimited hydroplane that has served as backup to Miss Budweiser for the last two racing seasons will campaign in 1970 as Miss Burien.

The boat, which ran as Miss Budweiser in 1967, has been purchased by Bob Murphy, a businessman in Burien, Wash.

Murphy said George Henley will drive the big boat next season. The hydroplane was built in 1962 and subsequently campaigned as Notre Dame and Shu Shu before going to the Budweiser camp.

Tag-Team Battle Pro Mat Feature

Professional wrestling returns to Memorial Arena on Feb. 17 with Dean Higuchi and Steve Bolus scheduled to defend their tag-team championship against Bulldog Brown and Johnny Quinn in the feature event.

Chief Little Bear will make his Victoria debut in one of three preliminary bouts, which will start at 8:15 p.m.

Nazi Occupation Aroused Interest In Conducting

By AUDREY JOHNSON

They're a world family.

That's how Per Dreier feels about the people of his craft who can visit the whole world's cities and towns and make instant communication.

Whether they are orchestra conductors — as he is — or instrumental or vocal performers, they can find total rapport with halls full of people, vaulting effortlessly over the ordinary barriers of language, political ideologies and interracial prejudice.

Dreier, a Norwegian, who will conduct Victoria symphony concerts Sunday and Monday, is paying his first visit to North America, having arrived in Victoria Sunday from Chicago where he fulfilled a concert engagement.

As an illustration of his United Nations theme, he recalled a performance in Sophia, capital of Bulgaria.

"There I was, a Scandinavian, conducting an Italian opera which was being sung in Bulgarian — and everyone was happy."

He points, too, to the Russian violin soloist performing with a United States orchestra: "There is no division there. They get along splendidly — there is enormous mutual respect."

Dreier finds that everywhere he goes there are subtle differences in style and approach. You could conduct the same work in Trondheim, in Chicago or in London and you would find that each performance had its own particular character.

Artistic director and chief conductor of the City of Arhus Symphony Orchestra since 1957, Dreier has conducted in England, Holland, Italy, and Germany as well as the Scandinavian countries.

He is also conductor of the Jutlandic Opera.

His musical studies were done at The Hague, in London at the Royal Academy and at Stuttgart, his subjects being oboe and piano, composition and conducting.

He also has a degree in chemistry from the University of Norway.

However, his interest in conducting was roused at the age of 12 during the Nazi occupation of Norway.

"Under curfew we were confined to our homes in the evenings and being a musical family (Dreier's father and two brothers are professional musicians) we made music together.

"I was the eldest so I lead our performances. That was the beginning."

Arhus is Denmark's second largest city with a population of 250,000. The fully professional symphony is state-supported for half its budget. The other half comes from radio and city subsidies and 20 per cent from ticket sales.

The orchestra is silent only six weeks of the year for it provides winter and summer seasons of 20 concerts each.

It is also involved in four operatic productions each season and radio and touring assignments.

Dreier will conduct Sibelius' Second Symphony at the Royal Theatre this weekend.

"Most people do not understand Sibelius. He has been compared with Tchaikowsky — but Russian composers of the 19th century have much sentiment. In Sibelius there is no sentiment," he explains.

The Finnish composer's music is a reflection of nature, poetic but without emotional involvement. "It is square," — not in any sense curvaceous in shape.

On the subject of recording sessions, Dreier dislikes the process of splicing bits and pieces of a tape to produce, within an arbitrary time allowance, a supposedly flawless performance.

"Under such conditions, the main concentration cannot be on producing music," he says.

He feels it is absurd, therefore, to make comparisons in performance between the live orchestra in the concert hall and the record on your stereo.

He finds working with a semi-professional orchestra like Victoria's enjoyable because of the freshness and enthusiasm the players bring to their work.

"Most professional orchestras become stale, and while they can be depended on to give a technically efficient performance, it is not by any means always an inspired one."

MUSIC is a world family and getting together before Sunday's performance of the Victoria Symphony are guest conductor Per Dreier of Norway and symphony conductor Lazlo Gati.

'You Get No Security' From Liquor, Accused Told

A 34-year old man who created what was termed by Judge William Ostler as "an explosive and dangerous situation" during a domestic dispute last month was given an 18-month suspended sentence for possessing an offensive weapon.

Police testified during the trial they were called to the accused's home Jan. 22 about 5:30 p.m. and found Humphreys shouting threatening remarks at his wife.

He had to be subdued and was taken to the Saanich police station and put in a cell.

About four hours later, police drove the accused back home after he had appeared to have sobered up.

Police were called again within two hours when a neighbor of the Humphreys saw the accused wave a knife.

Ostler told the accused he would have to stay away from liquor because it "will not give you a sense of security."

He said he had taken into consideration the three weeks Humphreys had spent in jail awaiting a medical report and a pre-sentence report adding he should take the job that was available through the probation office.

Norman L. Elgin, 22, of 3560 Saanich Road, was fined $150 for attempting to obtain cash through false pretences.

Elgin had tried to cash a $30 cheque at The Bay Jan. 29 drawn on an account that had been closed last April.

"I can work up no sympathy for a man who drives a beer glass in another man's face," Ostler said when sentencing Robert K. White, 21, of 1429 Vining, to 34 days in jail for assault causing bodily harm.

White pleaded guilty Jan. 30 to attacking another man with a broken beer glass in a downtown pub after the man had thrown a glass of beer over him.

The injured man required stitches to close cuts over his right eye.

William J. Scherk, 20, of 520 Craigflower, received an 18-month suspended sentence for breaking and entering and theft over $50.

He pleaded guilty Feb. 2 to breaking into Mayfair Motors Ltd., 736 Cloverdale, Feb. 1 with a companion and stealing the keys to a vehicle on the lot.

They took the vehicle and were involved in a minor accident when apprehended by the police.

Eleen May Halling, 50, of North Galiano Island, was fined $100 for impaired driving and her licence was suspended.

She was involved in an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway near Portage Inlet about 10 p.m. Dec. 3.

BENSON . . . determined to end split rate

Rough Reception Given Benson on Tax Reform

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson defended his white paper on taxation here Tuesday night but got a rough reception from 500 persons loaded with statistics.

The audience—many from small businesses and middle- and upper-income groups—filled St. Lawrence Hall and cheered when the secretary of the Canadian Council of Fair Taxation claimed the white paper was a blueprint for a restructuring of Canada's economic order.

"It's an attack on the middle-class values of hard work, thrift and initiative," said John Bulloch as he criticized imposition of both a tax on capital gains and an estate tax.

"We'd like to know what sort of a mandate you feel you have that would allow you to confiscate the life savings of the middle class?"

Mr. Benson had one of his biggest arguments with the proposed tax treatment of small incorporated businesses. He was asked to commit himself to a promise that, if the low 21 per cent rate on the first $35,000 of corporate income is abandoned, the government will introduce other measures to help small businesses.

Mr. Benson agreed that something should be done to help small businesses accumulate capital, but his only commitment was that the government would consider any reasonable proposals that might be put forward.

WANTS ABOLISH SPLIT

He also indicated he was determined to get rid of the split rate of corporate tax which cost the government $400,000,000 yearly in revenues.

Mr. Benson said newspaper columnists and football coaches had turned to incorporation to save personal income tax.

"They take out of the corporation enough to live on and pay 21-per-cent tax on the rest. Then they put this money into the shares of corporations and accumulate quite substantial amounts."

"How many are doing this?" someone shouted from the audience.

Mr. Benson had a tough time with the audience, but he did get support from a panel at the tax forum.

John Tinker, a Toronto lawyer, suggested a capital gains tax on residences was not different from property tax.

Prof. T. A. Wilson of the University of Toronto, former member of the Carter commission on taxation, said he liked the proposals as a set of structural changes, but was less pleased with the estimated increase in revenues at the end of five years.

This increase was put at $650,000,000 in the white paper and at $1,300,000,000 in calculations by the Ontario government.

TRUSTEE BLASTS CITY ON PULLOUT THREAT

Victoria city council's threat to pull out of the Greater Victoria metropolitan board of health came under criticism from a Sooke school trustee Tuesday.

Mrs. Isabelle Reader said while she sympathizes with the city's aim of forcing regionalization of health services, the city is going about it the wrong way.

"We resent having our children being used as a threat in this issue," she said.

Victoria depends to a large degree on outlying municipalities, Mrs. Reader said, and it is unfair for the city to threaten to wreck the health board and eliminates school services.

Minister Hits Pollution Accumulation

Industry and municipal governments will have to adopt technical advancements in preventing pollution of water and air, Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell told a Victoria Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting Tuesday.

He said the practice must end where standard contracts drawn up between the government and municipalities permit waste to be discharged into rivers up to certain limits.

"This practice is still the standard approach to pollution in North America," he said. "We are opposed to it. It has an accumulative effect on lakes and rivers and result in a decline in environment."

The minister said the government in the last few years had adopted a policy of technical contracts.

He said all contracts reached between the government and industry and municipalities would require the adoption of the latest equipment to prevent pollution.

As new developments occurred, they would be obliged to update their equipment.

Charge Dismissed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judge Douglas Hume Tuesday dismissed a drug possession charge against David Jacklin after ruling in provincial court that the accused had not made a voluntary statement to police. Jacklin testified a policeman slapped him when he denied a mark on his arm was a needle mark. "After that, if they wanted a needle mark, that's what it was," he said.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

INCREASE GASOLINE TAX TO UPGRADE ROADS: MLA

Social Credit backbencher A. V. Fraser suggested Tuesday that the provincial gasoline tax be raised by two cents per gallon.

Fraser, MLA for Cariboo, said that the $8 to $10 million collected from the tax increase could be used to upgrade roads throughout the province.

He is the second backbencher this legislative session to urge raising of the gas tax. Earlier Frank Ney (SC—Nanaimo) suggested a one-cent per gallon increase on Vancouver Island to pay for widening the highway from Victoria to Campbell River.

Fraser, speaking in the budget debate, said he did not think that Ney had gone far enough—that the tax increase should apply right across the province.

The MLA also felt that money acquired from increased stumpage should be given to the highways department for road construction. He said that heavy logging vehicles caused considerable damage to "inadequate" secondary roads.

Fraser said he hoped the recently announced provincial budget would provide financial assistance to municipalities to construct sewage treatment plants. The Pollution Control Board "should insist on nothing less than secondary treatment plants," he added.

The MLA criticized some municipalities for protesting that they cannot afford treatment plants while they are going ahead with indoor pools and arenas.

He urged the establishment of a regional finance authority to help provide long-term capital for municipalities.

Fraser also suggested that government employees have lunch breaks staggered over a two-hour period instead of the present one hour closure of offices. This would give the public better service, he said.

'Powerful' Democrat Jailed

NEW YORK (AP) — Carmine De Sapio, once the most powerful Democrat in the state of New Yrok, was sentenced to two years in prison Tuesday for his part in a bribe conspiracy and extortion deal. He was fined $4,500.

"This is a tragic day for me," De Sapio told Federal Judge Harold R. Tyler, just before the sentencing. "I was telling the truth . . ."

De Sapio was convicted Dec. 1 in the most recent of a series of scandals involving the former city water commissioner, James L. Marcus, a friend and aide of Mayor John V. Lindsay.

A former Democratic national committeeman, De Sapio was accused of conspiring with Cosa Nostra mobster Antonio Tony Ducks Corallo to bribe Marcus, who in turn was to extort lucrative construction contracts from Consolidated Edison Co.—which needed city permits for some projects.

U.S. Opposition To Skagit Plan Hinted by Socred

Resources Minister Ray Williston hinted in the legislature Tuesday that "American conservationists" may be behind the fight to save the Skagit River Valley from flooding by Seattle Light and Power Company.

He made the indication during a defence of the agreement under which the Seattle utility has the right to raise the level of Ross Lake, southeast of Hope, to flood 6,000 acres of the Skagit Valley to provide peak power needs for the American city.

"I was warned from south of the border that American conservationists were going to try to stop the Skagit development in B.C. because they didn't believe they could do it at home," Williston said.

He added that he "didn't believe it" until he heard "some of the debate in the House" during this session.

Opposition MLAs have urged the government to seek a way out of the 1967 flooding agreement to save the valley. Williston said the flooding would "greatly enhance" a "beautiful man-made lake" accessible to the Vancouver area.

Williston also said that the province has the option of taking $34,000 in annual payments from Seattle in the form of power at 3.75 mills per kilowatt which he described as a good price.

This protects B.C. against inflationary trends, he said, and added outside the legislature that the province will likely prefer to take the payment in the form of power—about 9.2 million kilowatt hours a year.

The original Skagit Valley agreement was ratified by the legislature in 1947, Williston pointed out. The subsequent deal made 20 years later to meet Seattle's peak needs was a good one, he added.

He rejected the suggestion of some conservation groups that B.C. provide peak power to Seattle instead of flooding the valley. This wouldn't be feasible because it would seriously interfere with B.C. Hydro efficiency, he said.

Medical Aid Urged For Remote Areas

A Social Credit backbencher urged the medical profession and the province to help overcome the shortage of doctors in outlying areas.

Burt Campbell (SC—Revelstoke-Slocan) said Tuesday the government should consider grants to medical and dental students who would eventually set up practice in remote areas in return for the aid.

The medical and dental professions should set up a fund to subsidize doctors and dentists willing to work in outlying areas where doctors and dentists are lacking.

In other remarks, Campbell said the cabinet environmental committee should be expanded into a co-ordinating committee of the various departments concerned with pollution.

Jim Chabot (SC—Columbia River) urged the government to seek an end to a bottle and can pollution by negotiating with producers to switch to other types of containers.

The public should also be appealed to through the media to mount pressure for curtailment of disposable bottle and can production, he said.

If these methods failed, the government should bring in legislation to deal with the worsening problem of pollution by containers, he said.

Health Co-Ops Proposed by MLA

An opposition MLA Tuesday urged the provincial government to set up a series of co-operative clinics as a step toward preventive health.

William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) made the suggestion while outlining various policies he believes will improve the operation of medicare and hospital insurance services.

Citing the example of co-operative clinics in Ontario, Saskatchewan and Washington State, Hartley trotted out statistics indicating that the number of patient days in hospital was reduced to about one-third.

On this basis, Hartley argued, costs to the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service during the fiscal year 1968-69 would be reduced from $138 million to $43 million.

NATIONAL SAVING

In B.C. the number of patient-days per thousand population is 1,700, whereas at the Puget Sound co-operative clinic the figure is about 450 patient days. Clinics in Saskatchewan and Ontario showed similar reductions.

Applying similar plans across Canada would save about $350 million, Hartley argued.

He also pointed out that drug costs at the Puget Sound co-operative had been reduced by 30 to 50 per cent.

DOCTORS BENEFIT

With the clinic, Hartley said, doctors would be able to live normal family lives. They would get regular hours, regular holidays with pay, time off for post-graduate study with pay, and pensions, he added.

Hartley was heckled by Dr. Scott Wallace, the Social Credit member for Oak Bay at several points in his address. Wallace hinted that he would reply to some of Hartley's criticisms today.

The opposition member also suggested that there should be a billing patterns committee to cut excessive billing, and a quality of medical care committee.

Phosphate Limits Expected in March

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Tuesday he hopes a bill controlling the use of phosphates in laundry detergents can be placed before the B.C. legislature this session.

But the timing of the bill would depend on how fast the federal government can get provincial government approval from all provinces for a uniform anti-phosphates bill, Williston said.

The minister reported that in a morning telephone conversation with J. J. Greene, federal energy and resources minister, he had asked for federal initiative in drawing up a phosphates bill suitable for all provincial legislatures.

PILOT ACT

Greene had undertaken to draw up a "pilot act" on the subject Williston said.

Williston said he asked that the bill "please" be made available to the legislature by March 15, in time for passage at the current session.

Williston said Greene was concerned about the problem of making unilateral federal decisions about phosphates and took up Williston's suggestion to draw up a bill suitable for all provinces.

AUTO FUMES

Williston said he made a plea for a similar federal initiative on automobile exhaust and the matter was promised "consideration" by Greene.

Williston also announced that the Pollution Control Act would be broadened to include air pollution control to provide "single agency control, supported by inter-agency and inter-disciplinary consultation in order to maintain and improve environmental quality."

He also announced outside the legislature that testing of water quality would be made a department of health duty and polluters would be charged for the cost of necessary testing of water.

BEATING SHOWS CANADA DIVIDED

The incident in which a B.C. government official was beaten by police in Quebec City last week was cited Tuesday by the Social Credit party whip as a reflection of a divided Canada.

Hunter Vogel, (SC—Langley) said that federal policies are "tailored for the east" and are against the interest of any person west of the Great Lakes.

Walter Redel, B.C. lands director, was attending a resources convention in Quebec when he was set upon in the aftermath of a bank holdup and beaten by two provincial police officers who did not speak English.

Vogel said the incident dramatizes the lack of communication between French and English-speaking Canada. "The two language concept is a guarantee of a divided Canada."

He added that the Liberal party has condoned and encouraged the language division in Canada.

Talks 'Secret' Claims Calder

By VIC PARSONS

Negotiations between the federal and provincial governments over the proposed jurisdiction transfer of Indian affairs are being carried on secretly, an MLA charged Tuesday.

Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin), the first Indian ever elected to a legislature, said he approved in principle of the transfer to the provinces proposed in a federal white paper, but added Indians have not been brought into the negotiations.

The white paper outlined by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien advocated the transfer of responsiblity along with the repeal of the Indian Act and the phasing out of the Indian Affairs department.

WANT DETAILS

Calder said although the idea of the transfer was sound he would like to see "some definite details accruing from its policy statements."

J. V. Boys of the federal department is supposed to act as a liaison between the two governments, Calder said.

At that point he was interrupted by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell who said, "We don't know what he's doing."

Calder replied that the Indians would also like to know what he is doing.

The secret negotiations, Calder said, are being done without consulting the Indians and the result is resentment and disharmony. He asked the provincial government to advise the federal government to include Indian participation.

OPTING OUT

Calder charged that the federal government was "opting out" from further administration of Indian affairs because of an "absolute failure to cope with the Indian problem" and because of lack of funds.

He also suggested that the white paper was prepared prior to consultation with Indians, and that the consultations were used as a means for its introduction.

He said if the federal government was sincere in consulting with Indians, it should have spelled out the terms of reference on provincial jurisdiction.

'RELEASE' FROM PRISON

"As far as Calder is concerned, the white paper represents a release from paternal care, a release from the prison of the reserves, and an emancipation for Indians from the "dictorial administration of those damn Indian agents".

The future of the Indians now depends on a closer formal alliance with the provinces, Calder said. Indians rightfully belong under the laws of the provinces, and with the trend by many young Indians to move to urban areas, they actually come under provincial jurisdiction.

Turning to the subject of municipal status for reserves, Calder said he was hopeful of the outcome of the vote at the Cape Mudge reserve. This will be the first reserve to become incorporated as a municipality.

If the vote is favorable, one of the villages in the Nass River area where Calder is from might be the next.

MUST HAVE FUNDS

"With the allocation of federal administrative funds to the provinces as indicated in the white paper and tax returns from the provinces, I believe that sufficient funds will be available for a sound operation of self-government of the Indian municipalities."

If, however, no funds are made available for the administration of such municipalities, Calder warned, there would be no value in self-government.

"The provinces should not accept a transfer of the present Indian affairs bureaucracy. They should develop their own constructive rehabilitative program."

NEED TIME

Indians must be allowed sufficient time to adjust to the social, economic and educational life of the country.

"For one hundred years of confinement and neglect there must be one hundred years of government-sponsored program for Indian rehabilitation."

THE GREATEST ADVENTURE

When you hear of astronauts preparing to land on the moon, do you long to go with them? Do you wonder what it's like to be there in outer space on their great adventure?

The greatest adventure of all, though, isn't out in space – it's within you.

It's the exploration of yourself, of your God-given individuality and purpose. It's discovering God's view of you, and revealing new capabilities and opportunities.

That's what you'll hear about at a talk to be given by Jessica Pickett, C.S., of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Miss Pickett's free public lecture is called "Adventure into Inner Space." And that's just what it is.

Souvenir Hunters Hit War Zone

SAIGON (AP) — The helicopters roared into War Zone D, and like a plague of locusts the colonels and majors descended, looking for souvenirs for their game rooms back home.

Lt.-Gen. Julian Ewell, the U.S. commander for the 3rd Corps Area, issued an order banning "non-operational personnel" from the jungle area. But that didn't stop the chairborne commandos zeroing in on the huge North Vietnamese arms cache uncovered in the last two weeks by South Vietnamese irregulars and their Green Beret leaders.

"Two days ago there were nine helicopters parked outside the perimeter wire," said a U.S. sergeant in the zone.

As he spoke, two colonels in starched fatigues browsed about the display of captured weapons, then conferred with the sergeant-major who had arrived with them in a shiny new helicopter.

The sergeant-major spoke quietly to a Green Beret officer who replied: "You'll have to see Maj. Mize about that."

HAVE FIRST CALL

Maj. Ola Lee Mize was busy taking inventory of his captured booty, including the 2,000-3,000 Soviet SKS rifles that are the most sought-after souvenirs. "I want each of my men to get one of these rifles," he angrily told one souvenir hunter.

"They're each allowed to take one home, and after all, they're the ones taking the chance of getting killed to get these rifles.

"I'm taking inventory, and if I don't get every one of these rifles back, I'm going to be in somebody's office, and I don't care whose office it is."

Tons of weapons and millions of rounds of ammunition have been found in the jungle area 45 miles northeast of Saigon. There are more than 20 nests of bunkers concealed under camouflaged shelters. American officers believe the cache is a central supply depot for numerous North Vietnamese units operating in the area.

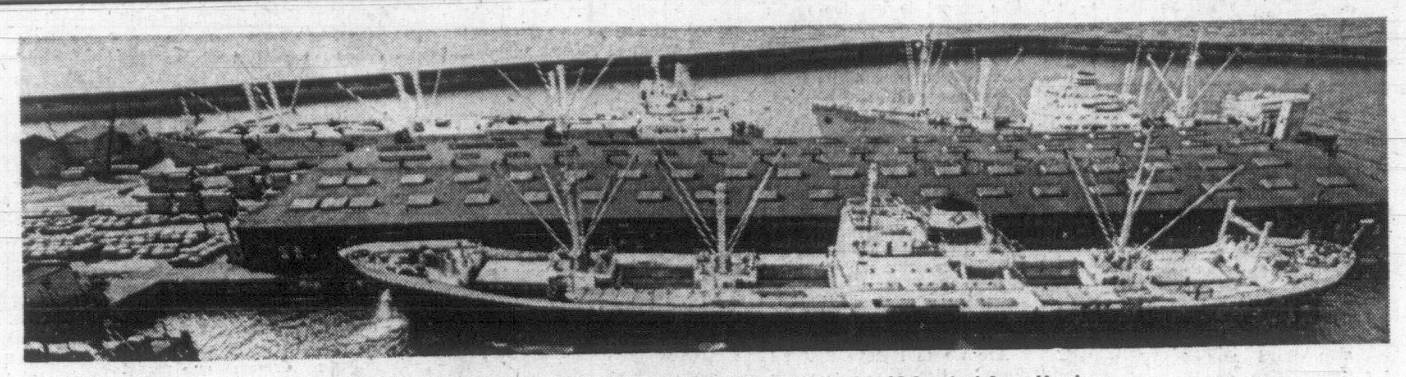
VICTORIA HARBOR:

Make It Good, Keep It Small



Much of Victoria Harbor, on the skids since the '20s, is 'derelict'

By JOHN MIKA

As a community, Victoria emerged from the sea and it's more than time to revitalize the harbor that links it with the past and future.

But University of Victoria geography department head Dr. Charles N. Forward today said a realistic appraisal of alternatives should not be clouded by futile dreams of raising Victoria even to the junior leagues of world shipping.

Forward, author of a special study on Land Use of the Victoria Area just released by the federal department of energy, mines and resources, said in an interview he was pleased to see city hall and the community shifting some attention to the waterfront "much of which is derelict or near-derelict."

His study, undertaken in 1961 although the 1964 publication was delayed until now is a thorough catalogue of the geography of the Greater Victoria area and how that geography was used by the residents up until the last decade.

It notes that James Douglas chose Victoria as the site of his Hudson Bay Company post in 1842 because it provided a sheltered harbor with gentle open woodland slopes around it for vegetable plots and grazing land.

The harbor was crucially important until Vancouver became a railhead and forged ahead of Victoria as it became the natural maritime outlet for handling Canadian exports of raw products in huge volumes.

Victoria's harbor has been in sharp decline since the 1920s despite the efforts to refute economics and match or follow Vancouver's development.

Forward, who also is the author of a federal survey of waterfront use in Greater Vancouver, said the local lumber trade and the potential of trans-shipment of prairie grains is far too small to support any "ideas envisioning Victoria as a cargo port of world rank although there may be some limited increase in this area."

He applauded current plans to improve the efficiency of lumber loading and storage at Ogden Point to advance that type of shipping business as far as possible.

But while the cargo development potential may be limited there are many other alternatives we should be examining carefully," he said.

"These cruise ships that have begun calling here in the past year add a new dimension to our port business, which is particularly in keeping with out tourist business development, and they should be encouraged.

"But even if we develop it into, say, 20 calls per year that still will not be enough to justify heavy expenditure for a new dock so Ogden Point should continue to be used for that."

Forward said marginal expenditure in improving Ogden Point, as planned would provide the optimum development and he discounted suggestion of creating large new facilities in Rock Bay, Esquimalt or elsewhere.

"But there are many other things that should be examined beside the commercial docks — waterfront renewal certainly, marinas, maybe some marine industries and there could be other alternatives."

The apartment-commercial redevelopment complex proposed for Wharf Street "is the sort of waterfront renewal that would realize the great potential but there is an awful lot of redevelopment needed and not all of it can be done through the private sector."

For instance, did you know that while rainfall here is less than 35 inches a year, on average at Bear Lake, only some 30 miles west of city hall as the weather travels, the precipitation hits an average of 115 inches annually.

The contrast results from the highland barrier to the east but its consequences color life here in many ways because the moisture that works its way down to the lowlands allows such diversity in plant life and productive agriculture with marginal soil bans.

Brothers Heckled by PTA

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

'I Don't See How You Can Blame Me'

By BOB MITCHELL

Education Minister Donald Brothers today came under a bitter barrage of heckling from 150 Parent-Teacher Association delegates.

It was PTA Day at the legislature and representatives came from Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island points to air grievances with MLAs of all parties.

They reserved their strongest words for Brothers when they met him at 11 a.m. in the Newcombe Auditorium of the Provincial museum.

Most of the questions centred around education finance, particularly the freeze on school construction announced last November by the government.

In the middle of the question period, some 50 people from Coquitlam stood up as a group then sat down again while a spokesman exchanged words with the minister over the situation in Coquitlam.

100 ROOMS NEEDED

She said as of next fall 30 per cent of the 23,850 children will be on shift, including grades one, two and three. The district needs over 100 new classrooms to catch up with enrolment.

Brothers replied last fall he had authorized the Coquitlam schoolboard to buy as many portable classrooms as it needed. The board turned down the offer on the grounds portable classrooms are inferior to permanent ones.

"I don't see how you can put the blame on my shoulders," Brothers said.

One delegate described reliance on portables as "false economy." She said a single portable unit costing $18,000 provides second class service for five years and then must be disposed of.

"I find it strange that in the wealthiest province of Canada we are told there isn't enough money for education."

MAN SENT OUT

John Harris of the Monterey PTA said his group will present a brief to Dr. G. Scottt Wallace (SC-Oak Bay) on conditions at Monterey elementary.

"It's pathetic to say these conditions should exist without being brought to your attention."

Brothers replied as a result of Wallace's efforts the department of education has sent a man to look at conditions at Monterey.

Nine officials from the department of education including Dr. Neil Perry, deputy minister, and superintendant of education Frank Levirs were in attendance. Brothers consulted with them on several occasions.

About one dozen Social Credit backbenchers also sat in at the back of the auditorium.

When Brothers started to say school boards are increasingly receptive to community use of school facilities such as libraries and gymnasiums he was interrupted with shouts of:

"But we don't have the libraries, we don't have the gyms."

'LADIES,' HE CRIED

"But don't you think physical education is as important as classrooms?" shouted a woman.

Brothers agreed physical education is important but said the first priority must go to classrooms.

"Where does our tax money go?" a young woman shouted in anger.

'LOOK AT BUDGET'

"Look at the budget ladies — 31.5 per cent of it goes into education," was the harried minister's reply.

"Last year it was 32 per cent, and next year it will be 30," another woman cried.

Brothers said he has a daughter who enjoys going to school in a portable classroom.

Shouted one Coquitlam woman: "I have one that enjoys going out in the rain to the bathroom." She referred to a portable classroom with no toilet facilities available.

"What are we going to tell our kids," she asked. "We can't say dear, you have to choose between books and bathrooms."

City Lights Won't Dim Telescope's Starry Aims

The glow from Victoria at night is influencing research at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory but isn't about to put the giant telescope there out of business.

Four years ago the Times reported George Chatterton, then MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, saying the 72-inch telescope would have to be closed down after 10 or 20 years because urban light was interfering with viewing.

Tuesday the Times reported polishing and shaping of a new two-ton mirror for the telescope would be getting under way soon.

How come a new mirror for a telescope which is doomed?

The amount of light from the city at night does hamper direct photography but little of this is done now.

Instead the observatory staff concentrates on spectroscopy, analysis of stellar light, and for this the bright lights of the city are no problem.

They would be if the day ever came when houses surrounded Observatory Hill on the West Saanich Road and that is why some of the land adjacent has been bought by the government.

The observatory will get good value from the new six-foot mirror, said Dr. Wright.

Made of a new glass ceramic material called Cer-vit, it will require about 12 months of grinding and polishing. The 50-year-old original mirror can still be used in research.

Abortion on Demand To Be 'Going Thing'

Dr. Hugh Borsman, a Victoria gynecologist and obstetrician, estimates that abortion on demand "will be the going thing" within five to seven years.

Borsman was on a panel held Tuesday at a meeting of the Volunteers Group, Canadian Mental Health Association, in Spencerhouse.

He said that under the current abortion laws it is difficult for doctors to make the decision whether to abort a woman.

"My dilemma is when and how you make the decision. That's why I think abortion on demand will come."

He commended Mrs. Elizabeth Murrison, another panel member, who is heading a campaign for abortion legislation reform.

"While I do not necessarily agree with her, an airing on abortion is long overdue."

He agreed with another panel member. Msg. M. T. O'Connell, who stressed that legislation must be based on respect for all human life.

In her presentation, Mrs. Murrison said that abortion would help solve the problem of overpopulation.

The fourth panel member, psychiatrist Dr. J. T. Wood said "this is the most ridiculous comment I have ever heard."

MENTAL ANGUISH

He warned that abortion "is no trivial thing" and could result in mental anguish.

He gave as an example a case of a head nurse in a hospital, who was treated by him for depression.

"She had had three pregnancies out of wedlock. Two of the children she had given away and the third was aborted. She had terrible feelings of guilt."

Wood argued that some biological control would have to be devised to combat overpopulation.

"A medical way must be found — not abortion — to prevent pregnancies producing children that cannot be supported."

SELF-DESTRUCTIVE

He said that promiscuity was often a self-destructive process used by teenage girls to protest the way they are treated.

"I know one girl who had to sleep with a man — a different one each time — at least three times a week, and wake up hating him. I dread to think of what a child born of that situation would be."

Borsman said he could not help feeling sympathetic when women came to him asking for an abortion, but individual responsibility was of prime importance.

"When I get a young couple, intelligent enough to know, asking me for an abortion because they don't want a child until their education is finished I say 'Like hell you're going to give the baby up. You made it, you keep it'.

"Most of the time they do."

Borsman said it's a matter of priorities. "First, contraceptives must be made freely available, secondly, sterilzations, and third, liberalization of abortion laws. They should come in this order."

Injured Navy Diver In Good Condition

A navy diver, whose lungs were damaged when he failed to surface during a diving exercise Friday night, is in good condition today.

A spokesman for Canadian Forces Hospital, Esquimalt, said LS Stephen Duffy, 26, is expected to be released today or Thursday.

Duffy was one of a six-man team taking part in a simulated sabotage attack on the destroyer-escorts HMCS Qu'Apelle and HMCS Mackenzie at Patricia Bay.

When he failed to surface, a search was held and Duffy brought to the surface, treated aboard Mackenzie, and admitted to hospital after being taken to the decompression chamber at Colwood.

LOW BIDDER NAMED FOR PAT BAY STRETCH

Edco Construction Ltd. of Vancouver submitted the lowest bid of $1,728,487 for reconstruction of 2.95 miles of Pat Bay highway from Rogers Avenue to Cherry Tree Bend to four-lane divided highway standards.

Second lowest bid among seven opened Tuesday was for $1,822,845 by C.O.W. Construction, Victoria. Highest was for $2,083,502 from Emil Anderson Construction, Hope.

Contract for the project, to be awarded in a week or so, includes substructure for overpasses but a separate contract will be let let later for the overpasses themselves a highways department spokesman said.

Arthur Mayse . . .

WITH LAST WINTER to remind me that anything can happen in Victoria, I have held back from predicting an early spring even when the signs seemed obvious. But it's plain beyond doubt this week that our winter, such as it was, is over and gone. Sure, we could still get snowed on. If we do, however, I expect no more than a whirl of goose-feather fun flakes, the sort that begin to melt almost before they've landed.

The green haze in the undergrowth is still so faint as to suggest optical illusion. But look closer, and you will see that the leaf sprays of the bitter cherry are unfurling to reveal small white flower clusters.

The alders have broken out a new crop of catkins, the salmonberry is sprouting leafbuds, and in a sheltered corner this morning we spotted golden sunbursts of dandelion.

No doubt there's plenty of rain and wind in store. However, the Japanese plum that makes a fair city lovelier is opening fluffy pink blossoms. The first daffodils are bursting their sheaths, and the birds that were silent in January have found their voices.

Also—and this I hate to admit—the lawn grass could stand cutting.

Spring in the second week of February? It's fantastic, it shouldn't be happening, but, glory be, it is!

LAST YEAR I CAME UP with a notion which I thought, and still think, would give Victoria a profitable and very worthwhile tourist gimmick.

I suggested that E and N Railway steel on which passenger service has been reduced to Dayliner trips would provide an ideal route for a Train from Yesterday.

Perhaps in your travels you've happened on such trains. There's a dandy in Colorado. Another hoots through Blue Ridge Mountain country on a tri-state run, and I believe that California boasts several such.

All are steam trains, and each offers for the price of a ticket, a sentimental journey back through time.

Any number of Victorians have told me they'd be delighted to see a pioneer train of ornate day coaches roll from Victoria behind an oldtime steam locomotive.

It's worth noting that the most enthusiastic of these callers have been practical-minded railwaymen both active and retired. Some of these have assured me that rolling stock for such a line could be located and restored to service without too much trouble. And Lord knows the Victoria E and N depot would pass for a pioneer station.

I've also been assured that the parent CPR would be quick to knock the idea on the head. Perhaps so. But we never know about these things until we try our luck, and I hope that Victoria Chamber of Commerce will do more than nibble at the idea.

We have another centenary coming up next year . . . the hundredth anniversary of British Columbia's entry into Confederation.

How better could the CPR, and the B.C. government, mark that railway-induced linkup than by putting a train from our colorful past on Vancouver Island steel?

Between summer visitors and winter conventioners, I have a hunch that a Line of the Pioneers would do much better than pay its way.

A FEW DAYS BACK I passed on to you the sorry case of the young woman who discovered after four academically-successful years as an education student that she couldn't handle a classful of lively kids.

Her plaint: "Why wasn't I given a chance to find this out early in my training?"

Answers received range from the sympathetic to the sardonic.

One writer-in blames her plight on regular teachers "who couldn't bear to leave a trainee in sole charge of their classes during her earlier student-teacher experience."

Another finds it impossible to believe that her melancholy discovery could have been made so late. "She must have been kidding herself all the way through," he claims.

Not necessarily so, says one teacher, who asserts that the girl's case is by no means an isolated one, and results from "a soft attitude" on the part of those who teach would-be teachers.

In any case, the subject of this still-open discussion is looking for a job—one in which she won't have to come within a country mile of a classroom.

Bicultural Humanism: Is Canada Mature Enough?

Solange Chaput-Rolland is a Montreal author and political commentator. Her books include Dear Enemies, My Country—Canada or Quebec? and Reflections Quebec Year One.

By SOLANGE CHAPUT-ROLLAND

After his first visit to Expo 67, Peter Newman wrote this beautiful thought: "I came to Expo as a nationalist, I left as a humanist."

After reading the impressive third volume of the Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, I, too, can say: Today I am less a Quebec nationalist and more a Canadian humanist.

As a French Canadian, I am proud that my country had the insight to create a commission to inquire into the minds, the hearts and the habits of Canadians.

I am not overly optimistic about the fate of the commission's 57 recommendations, but the very fact that they have been put before the nation is to my mind proof that we have at last achieved a great measure of wisdom.

When the B and B commission was first created, Andre Laurendeau was heard to sigh, too little and too late. But I wonder if this exhaustive report is not too much and too late.

Already the English press has rejected one of its most important points: The creation of francophone units in business, the army and the civil service.

Once again French Canadians are being taught a lesson by journalists who, less than three hours after supposedly reading the 600-page report, decided they knew more about Canada than the commissioners.

Are we to believe that all these critics, who five years ago knew almost nothing about Quebec and its frustrations, are now more knowledgeable than the 10 Canadians who have travelled thousands of miles, and spent countless hours studying our past, our present and our future?

If so, then why pretend to seek an answer to the Canadian crisis?

The average French Canadian is fully aware of the cost of the changes the commission suggests, but no one can accept without laughing the objections of the critics who talk about the dangers of creating ghettos in Canada if the government implements the creation of francophone units in the civil services.

Ghettos have been a Canadian institution since 1867! Ask any French Canadian living in Montreal beside English-speaking Montrealers. Ask any French Canadian

Perhaps some of the report's 57 recommendations are impractical.

Perhaps the politicians will find a better way to equalize the two societies of Canada. But before rejecting this report, would it not be more mature to study it carefully?

Most French Canadians who have been involved in the shaping of our future are a bit tired of hearing of the millions poured into the B and B commission.

Had English Canada listened carefully to what some of us were saying, the government might have saved a few dollars, but it would not have learned how to cure our national ills.

In the past, whenever one of us dared to say or write what the commissioners have so eloquently expressed, we were accused of having a chip on our shoulders, of wanting to impose French or papist domination on the country.

It must be quite painful for English Canada to be the gulf between anglophones and francophones, to be confronted with the bitter truth that a unilingual English-speaking Montrealer makes more money than an educated bilingual Quebecois.

Many of us are now waiting to find out what kind of excuses will be put forward to explain these disparities.

I write this, not with bitterness, but with sadness, having learned a long time ago that most of our English compatriots reject self criticism; they have lived so long with the assurance of their democratic dealings with Quebec that today it has become quite difficult for them to admit their mistakes.

So I am full of admiration for the commissioners' courage; I suspect they will be criticized because they dared to suggest new and exciting ways of being Canadians.

This country was united by arms a long time ago, but it has never been welded by fraternity, compassion and mutual respect. If English Canada decides to implement many, if not all of the commission's 57 recommendations, a new form of Canadian humanism will have been created. But is such maturity still possible in Canada?

Rene Levesque and his many counterparts in English Canada have already decided that only in Quebec can French Canadians act and react as French Canadians — working, thinking, creating in French.

Only if they learn English and behave as "all good Englishmen should" outside of Quebec will they be treated as equal partners in the so-called "just society."

If this is what Canada wants, then let's face our future realistically. The open arms of the United States await us. Who will assume the responsibility of pushing us into them? Is that what Levesque wants, what English Canada secretly hopes for?

Un-Untuckable Shirt Is Teacher's Pet

By PENNY SAVER

My friend the teacher grinned from the depths of my easiest easy chair and said, "Y'know, if you hadn't invited me for dinner tonight, I just wouldn't have bothered to eat."

I looked her over critically.

"Your hair needs combing; your face needs a refresher course and your hands may be excused at any time to go to the washroom. In fact the only thing in place is your shirt-tail."

"Aha — magic. This, my dear Penelope, is an un-untuckable shirt. Behold," and at this she actually stood up, "I bend; I bow: I stretch—and the shirt stays exactly where it belongs. You'll never guess how I do it."

Eventually she told me that her shirt was in fact a kind of body stocking, and that it cost her $13.

"They come in pink, blue, white and cream," she told me. "And the pale colors are just a wee bit transparent. (Thank goodness for my old-fashioned camisole!)

"And, as you can see for yourself, once a skirt is added the shirt looks as shirt-like as any other, with a nice big collar, cuffs like shirt cuffs should be and made of a nice, light synthetic material.

"But speaking of camisoles," she went on, her natural exuberance returning the longer she was away from the classroom, "You should have seen the bras I found to go under see-through blouses. At least I assume that's what they were for.

"These things were $7 each and came in gold and blue, gold and pink and—sexiest of all—gold and black. The edges were sumptuously trimmed with satin binding.

"But what really got me was how different these things were from the rest of the fancy bras on the display table. There were wispy lace creations—lined and unlined—see-through black and blend-with-your-skin-see-throughs.

"The most these bras had was under-the-cup boning.

"The lurex wonders were positively rigid however. They were strapless bras in the truest sense of the word. They could even make it without a body!"

I couldn't beat that one, but I could bring in a lingerie find of my own—disposable panties.

These panties are made in England and are scarcely economical at $1.50 for six pairs.

Though I have often thought as I did a batch of handwashonlys that disposal panties would be a fine thing, now that I've found some I must admit I can't find a place for them in this Saver's life.

Please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon for information on where to buy these items.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Kindness Kills

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a very unusual problem: my mother-in-law loves me! My husband, my child, and I are constantly showered with unnecessary and unsolicited gifts, barraged by two or three phone calls each day, given helpful but unsolicited suggestions, advice, etc.

It has been difficult to accept her love offerings graciously since I feel that both my in-laws unconsciously want my husband and me to be indebted to them forever.

We both have high-paying jobs and are financially independent, but my husband is still so emotionally attached to his mother that he asks her to make his dental appointments for him.

When we had our first child the gift giving situation became even more pronounced, which make my parents look unloving and stingy, which they certainly are not.

I know that if this is the biggest problem I ever have I'll be lucky, but in the meantime, I would like your advice on how to tactfully handle this situation with Mom. — Daughter-In-Law.

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: As I see it, you are "victimized" by generous in-laws who give you presents, and show by their constant attention that they have not forgotten you. I don't know what is in need of "handling" — unless it could be your inability to graciously accept that which is undoubtedly offered in good faith.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are newlyweds and we are both very fond of pets. We have two dogs and three cats. (I had a poodle before we were married and Jim had a German shepherd, and the cats are strays.)

We are furnishing a small home and I want a bright green carpet in the living room. Jim says, "No, anything but green. The pets will think it's grass and you know what will happen to the carpet."

Is this true? I asked our vet and he just laughed, so now I'm asking you. — Likes Pets.

DEAR LIKES: I'd be inclined to laugh, too. A well-trained pet will respect a carpet, regardless of the color. But how one can presume to "know" what an animal "thinks" is beyond me.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Drama in the Audience

From the relaxed enjoyment of the little boy on the ledge beside his side seat, to the total involvement of the program crumpler and the head-hider, these pictures by Robin Clarke illustrate the reactions to a theatre performance produced specially for children. Judi Freeman discusses the ingredients of good children's theatre with Helen Simpson-Baikie in the article below.

If Audience Tells Actors What to Do . . . That's Good Children's Theatre

By JUDI FREEMAN

It's successful theatre when Puss goes into hiding and the child audience screams his location to searchers.

It's successful theatre when the Ogre becomes a mouse and the audience surges to its feet, the better to see him.

It is not successful theatre when pre-performance chatter and restlessness continue on after the opening and become a subdued heaving background to the action on the stage.

But children are not "civilized." They have not acquired the niceties of sitting quietly, laughing politely in the right places, and clapping appreciatively as the curtain falls.

In short, they are not adults.

And, as non-adults, children need a different form of theatre.

The child, as an action-oriented being, needs to be drawn into the play so thoroughly that he keenly feels the anguish of the princess, the frustration of the would-be marquis.

"They (children) let you know if they are bored," said Helen Simpson-Baikie prior to Bastion Theatre's first presentation of The Marvellous Story of Puss in Boots.

At the performance, it was the Keystone Cops action which had the audience of toddlers and elementary students out of their seats, hanging on the railing and draped over their neighbors.

Puss' exaggerated walk, his tumble over his master, and the chase scene in the Ogre's castle had enough action to stop the chatter and bring on the oohs and aahs.

"If it is a good play they react spontaneously."

Mrs. Simpson-Baikie, Bastion office manager, was discussing children's theatre in general and audience participation in particular.

In Puss In Boots, the king comes down the aisle to the stage for a royal picnic.

"Here they come, here they come," breathed the young audience. Children lucky enough to have aisle seats leaned forward as if to touch the king's garments, but Bastion productions seldom have actors join the audience.

In contrast to Bastion's method, "theatre in the round" mingles the actors and the audience, bringing the action down into the seats or the audience up on to the stage.

The Bastion group does not anticipate employing theatre in the round, said Mrs. Simpson-Baikie.

The children's plays they present each year have special or "magical" effects "that are wonderful to the children and couldn't be done in the round," said Mrs. Simpson-Baikie.

In the Puss In Boots play, which will be presented in McPherson Theatre for the three remaining Saturdays in February, Puss is magically transformed from a cat, played by Tiger Denike, to a man, played by Bill Hosie.

This is accomplished by cutting the lights, pushing the cat into the wings and having Hosie jump on stage into a spotlight. Audience distance is necessary for the effect to appear magical.

"The success of the way we have presented children's theatre in Victoria leads us to continue to do it this way," Mrs. Simpson-Baikie stated.

"We don't like gimmicks. We do everything with integrity," she stressed.

The birthday groups, which are a regular part of Saturday afternoon performances, have ceased to be a gimmick, she said. The children and actors sing to the birthday children and then they are given ice cream.

Bastion Theatre has been producing live drama for children every year since its inception in 1963. In that year, the group which was to eventually become the present company put on Alice In Wonderland as its first play.

The school tours started that year and 19 performances were given. In the 1968-69 season, 113 performances were given in schools, 35 of them in the Greater Victoria area.

The current season is expected to result in 134 performances in school tours. Mrs. Simpson-Baikie said Bastion could increase its school touring "ad infinitum."

Last season Bastion Theatre also added to its programming by producing a youth series for secondary school students. Three regular season productions are put on at three student nights at McPherson Theatre.

The school tours, children's theatre and youth series are part of the continuing program to develop an audience for Bastion Theatre.

"We hope these young people will get the theatre-going habit. It's no use presenting adult theatre unless you have had programs leading up to it.

"By the time Victoria can support a theatre company we will have trained the audience to attend."

Already, results of the school tours are becoming evident, said Mrs. Simpson-Baikie. The students who saw the first production seven years ago and have attended school plays since that time are now in junior secondary grades.

The greatest response to the new youth series has come from these junior secondary students, said Mrs. Simpson-Baikie.

IODE Celebrates 70th Birthday

A national organization comprised of over 24,000 members, the IODE raises and disburses over $1,000,000 annually for education, emergency and disaster relief both in Canada and overseas.

Locally, IODE chapters joined forces to equip and furnish an electro-therapy room in the George R. Pearkes Clinic.

Across Canada IODE members give volunteer service to hospitals, the CNIB, Red Cross clinics, senior citizen's homes and other similar organizations.

They also distribute boxes of clothes for the needy both in Canada and abroad as well as layettes and quilts made by the members themselves.

The order assists both Canadian and overseas students through scholarships on all levels; national, municipal and primary.

In addition to this, rural schools are aided through the national adoption plan including 148 schools in Newfoundland, Labrador and the Northwest Territories.

The members are acutely aware of the needs of the native Indians and Metis and offer willing assistance wherever possible.

Spread of DDT Alarms Biologist

NANAIMO — A B.C. fish and wildlife biologist is alarmed at the high level of DDT in birds, animals and fish.

"It's extremely alarming," Charlie Lyons told the newly-started Nanaimo branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control Tuesday. "It is frightening to find that a fur seal captured on the west coast of the island in 1969 contained 31.8 parts per million DDT and 15 parts per million dieldrin."

He said a Peale falcon taken at Saanichton Spit in 1969 contained 58.4 parts per million DDT and 1.3 parts per million dieldrin.

Even the relatively short-lived fish were accumulating insecticide concentrations which would be passed on to the next eater — possibly a human.

ONE EXTRA INGREDIENT

Salt Spring Flips Over Sticky Flaps

By ED GOULD

GANGES — The residents of Salt Spring Island got all in a flap again Tuesday for the 13th annual pancake race.

About 250 spectators lined the asphalt strip adjacent to Centennial Park to work themselves into a frenzy and cheer on their favorite flipper.

Sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion and its unflappable ladies auxiliary, about 50 runners in 16 separate classes flipped their dough disks for fun and prizes.

The highlight of the event, the giant International Race, was won by Dave Hastie representing the Bank of Montreal. Dave Roberts, representing British Columbia Ferries, last year's winner, was second. Jim Merston of the local Lions club was third.

The silver frying pan, emblematic of pancake race supremacy, will hang in the bank for a year. Hastie won for himself (you guessed it) a year's supply of pancake mix.

The pancake batter used in the event has one extra ingredient which makes it durable enough to stand the beating it gets in its arc up and over the travelling pan.

"Cement makes them stick together," said Mrs. Fred Kirkham, convenor of the event.

Mrs. Kirkham, who has been with the event since its inception, said there were more entrants this year than ever before. Many in the 10-years-and-under class were not able to be accommodated this year, she said.

Not so overcrowded, in fact not overcrowded at all, was the grandfather's race. Which was surprising since Salt Spring Island has only one thing more in abundance than lovely scenery and that is elderly folk.

Even an impassioned plea for runners by master of ceremonies Jack Stevens failed to bring the grandpas out of the crowd so he ran himself, flipping his pancake with careless abandon to heights of 30 feet and more.

Other winners: Kindergarten, Penny Wright, Steven Roberts, Scott Fraser. Girls 10-and-under, Neta Hagen, Janet Roberts, Lin Friebel. Boys 10-and-under, Alex McManus, Michael Cannon, David Woodley. Girls 13-and-over, Ronnie Stepaniuk, Andy Roberts, Gerry Duncan.

Men's Open, Jim Spencer, David Roberts, Jim Merston. Grandmothers, Nellie Miller, Phoebe Stevens, Libby Marcotte.

U.S. Tops Pancake Race

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) — Kathleen West, 19, brought the international pancake racing title back to Liberal with a record-shattering performance Tuesday.

She ran the 415-yard course here in 59.1 seconds to top the time of one minute 11 seconds turned in earlier in the day by Sylvia Winstanlyey in winning a similar race in Olney, England.

The best previous time for the annual Shrove Tuesday competition between the women of the two cities was one minute three seconds posted by Janet Bunker of Olney in 1967.

The International between the two widely-separated communities has been an annual event for many years. The Kansas girls are students while the Olney gals all work for a shoe factory.

Outbreak of Warts Hits Cowichan Valley Schools

DUNCAN — An outbreak of at least 70 cases of planter's warts in three area schools is worrying Cowichan District school officials.

But Eric Lewis, district superintendent of schools, said Monday night there is no need to close gymnasiums, change and shower rooms where the virus is believed to breed.

A delegation of parents had appeared at a school board meeting to protest the spread of the virus and requested the gyms be closed. One woman said she had visited Quamichan junior secondary school and had found the hallways and gym filthy.

It was the third appeal to the board regarding the matter. Letters were received from North Cowichan South End Ratepayers' Association and from parents.

Trustee David Bradbury recommended that a directive be issued to the schools requesting that footwear be worn at all times in the gymnasium.

Lewis said he had discussed the problem with Dr. P. J. Reynolds, the district medical health officer in Nanaimo, and had been told the virus might not be caused by dirt.

Bradbury said, "if the health department tells us to close down the gymnasium and the washrooms, we will do so immediately."

Russia Has Big Plans for Vast Siberian Wastes

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union has big plans for the vast frozen wastes of Siberia, a region once synonymous with political exile and deprivation.

The 4,000,000-square-mile territory has enormous untapped reserves of natural gas, oil, coal, non-ferrous metals, timber, gold and diamonds. Even the fish in its lakes are badly needed.

Although the cost of developing Siberia will be huge, the Russians are pressing ahead in pursuit of the Soviet goal of total economic self-reliance, whatever the price.

Russia hopes to centre in Siberia heavy, power-consuming industries such as petrochemicals and synthetic fibres. By locating these plants where power sources are cheapest, it would theoretically make many industrial products cheaper.

What has stimulated further development of Siberia has been the discovery there of spectacular quantities of natural gas, vast amounts of which will be piped to West European countries.

Until recently, Siberia lay a dormant giant stretching from the Ural Mountains almost to the Pacific seaboard, and from the Arctic Ocean to Central Asia.

Norilsk and Magadan, cities of 100,000 persons inside the Arctic Circle, have sprung up only in the last 25 years. A plan is in hand to double Siberian agricultural production in the 1970s as part of a general attack on agricultural shortcomings.

Discovery of great oil deposits has added to Siberia's importance. New fields in west and north Siberia and the far east surpass Russia's present main fields around the Baku area on the Caspian Sea. Prospectors forecast eventual yields of up to 500,000,000 tons a year, although the high sulphurous content of Siberian oil makes refining expensive.

'We Are Sitting On the Top Of a Volcano'

By STANLEY KARNOW

MANILA (WP) — Two years ago, President Ferdinand Marcos warned that "we are sitting on top of a volcano . . . that will explode" unless the social inequities, political irresponsibility and unbridled crime and corruption that plague the Philippines are checked.

The volcano has not yet exploded. But the student demonstrations that have erupted here within the past two weeks are symptomatic of a rumbling that could, in time, shake the stability of this archipelago republic.

One of these demonstrations held on the night of Jan. 30 in front of the president's palace degenerated into a riot in which five people were killed and some 50 wounded by troops unaccustomed to handling unruly crowds.

SERIOUS INCIDENT

It was the most serious incident of its kind to occur in Manila since the Philippines attained independence from the United States nearly 24 years ago.

Apparently seeking to escalate the disorder, a leftist youth movement plans to stage another demonstration Thursday that may ignite a fresh round of violence.

These youths, who candidly admit to Maoist leanings, say that their "indignation rally" is aimed against the "brutality of the state."

A vital question currently being raised by both Philippine commentators and western observers here, therefore, is whether Marcos will be able to stay in office in the face of growing unrest.

More important is the question of whether the Philippine version of democracy, the legacy of a half-century of American colonial tutelage, can survive if this country's present institutions begin to wobble.

These questions are interrelated, for Marcos's downfall would effectively signify that the political system here has failed. The alternative might be a rise of leftist and rightwing extremism as represented by the Communists on one side and the army on the other.

Such a prospect would have particular relevance for the United States — partly because of American air and naval bases here and partly because many Filipinos still feel, despite their protestations of sovereignty, that they can call on Uncle Sam for help in the event of a real crisis.

TEST DOCTRINE

Thus a deteriorating situation in the Philippines could conceivably put to the test President Nixon's so-called "Guam doctrine," under which the U.S. intends to avoid involvement in the internal problems of Asian nations.

This weekend, in an effort to appease the protesting students, Marcos dismissed the chief of the constabulary, Brigadier General Vicente Raval, whom the youths blamed for the bloodshed on Jan. 30.

Raval, an old Marcos crony and bagman whose 16,000 troops provided the muscle for the president in last November's elections, was also opposed by senior officers striving to keep the army out of politics.

At the same time, Marcos is reported to be reshuffling his cabinet in order to create the impression that he is responsive to the clamor for change.

In the opinion of several Philippine and western analysts, he now has an opportunity to make a major impact by coming out personally and publicly in favor of dramatic reforms.

Pathet Laos Free To Roam Vientiane

By RICHARD PYLE

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The armored car carrying four Pathet Lao soldiers pulled to the curb. Two of its occupants, wearing uniforms and squad caps, climbed out and disappeared into a store.

The sight created only the mildest stir among Laotians loyal to the government. The most interested witnesses were two Americans in a bar across the street.

"Look at that," said one. "Can you imagine the Viet Cong doing something like that?"

The answer, of course, was no. The Pathet Lao, although they are native rebels fighting their own government under a Communist flag, are not the Viet Cong. And Vientiane is not Saigon—at least not yet.

Comparisons, however, are inevitable. Today's Vientiane is much like the Saigon of a decade ago: a languid, tropical city of trees and temples.

IS BIG QUESTION

The question of whether Laos ever will be another Vietnam lies at the centre of everything that goes on here but most Westerners here apparently regard as remote the chances for such a repeat of history. They believe the war in Laos likely will continue indefinitely at something approximating present levels.

A ranking United States official says nobody involved in the Laotian affair really wants it to change drastically; not the Royal Laotian government, not the Pathet Lao, and not the Americans or the North Vietnamese who aid those two warring factions.

The 14-nation Geneva accords in 1962 provided for neutralization of Laos and banned foreign combat troops, advisers and other foreign military personnel. Since that time the United States has been countering the continuing activities of Communist countries with a growing legion of military, former military and civilians, many working directly or indirectly for the Central Intelligence Agency.

The official figure on U.S. aid in 1969 was $52,000,000 but the actual American investment may be $200,000,000 a year.

Among the 2,000-plus Americans working here are some 70 called military attaches, circumventing the ban on military advisers.

The government forces are known to have some Americans working with them, sometimes even on field operations. Their presence, and their casualties, never are officially admitted although the state department said last week about 150 military personnel, mostly airmen, have been reported missing or captured in Laos.

The guerrillas in this case are the so-called Armee Clandestine, a collection of perhaps 10,000-20,000 Meo hill tribesmen —nobody ever quotes the same figure twice-led by Gen. Vang Pao and supported from American sources.

Vang Pao's tribal army seized the strategic Plaine des Jarres last summer. That startled the most optimistic Western military observers in Vientiane.

The Pathet Lao control most of the eastern half of this elongated, landlocked kingdom. The government controls the rest, including most of the population centres.

The Pathet Lao have held their ground chiefly through the logistic and manpower support furnished by the North Vietnamese, who are estimated to have 50,000 troops in Laos.

Vientiane, Southeast Asia's smallest capital city with a population guessed at between 130,000 and 200,000, is filled with incongruities. The Pathet Lao who go shopping here are in Vientiane by virtue of accords which set up the neutralist government under Prince Souvanna Phouma as premier and gave the Communists two cabinet seats. They never exercised their political rights and most of the Pathet Lao withdrew to northeast Laos to continue the fight under Souvanna Phouma's half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong.

Ironworkers Locked Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Richmond steel fabrication company Monday locked out 130 ironworkers after they turned down a union-recommended contract proposal of pay increases of from eight to 30 per cent.

Workers of Zenith Steel Fabrication Ltd. were offered the increases on pay rates of $2.95 for helpers to $4 an hour for fitters.

Company president Julius Bekei said lockout notice was served on the ironworkers Friday and acted on Monday after a slowdown became evident.

Union spokesmen were not available for comment Monday night.

REPORT MAY CLEAR CHURCH MERGER PLAN

WINNIPEG (CP)—An Anglican delegate at a general commission studying church union among his church, the United Church and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) has called for an integrated report on the various special commissions studying the union.

Professor J. L. J. Edwards of Toronto, in a motion to the seventh meeting of the commission, called for a group to provide the report by the next session of the commission, scheduled for October.

Prof. Edwards' motion was praised by the various members of the commission charged with producing a general plan for union by 1972. His motion came during consideration of a report on doctrine.

Commission members viewed the motion as a means of getting on with the union proposal. Earlier in the meetings, which began Saturday, Anglican and United Church members had said some expression of immediacy about union was necessary to convey to the various congregations.

PUSHES BROAD VIEW

During debate Monday on the report of the special commission on doctrine, one of the study groups said doctrine should be stated in simple language as part of the general plan for union.

The Ven. D. P. Watney of Vancouver told delegates a statement of faith in the general doctrine should keep in mind that it is not just union of the three churches.

"It should be open ended," he said, "more ecumenical."

Rev. Dr. A. B. B. Moore of Victoria University in Toronto, chairman of the day's proceedings, said it was evident the commission was reaching a stage "when it must appoint a group to draw up a plan of union."

Earlier in the proceedings an outline plan prepared by a committee was rejected. It was turned over to the executive for study.

Under questions on doctrine, aimed at union of the churches to form what has been called "a new embodiment of the Christian church," one study group agreed there were different practices among the three churches involved and within each one.

Dr. C. H. Cragg of Mount Allison University at Sackville, N.B., said that whatever the commission decides it should be meaningful, not only to theologians, but the people—the emphasis should be on understanding rather than mystery and there will be much less suspicion."

Rev. Dr. John Grant of Emanuel College at Toronto said under current doctrine a child is baptized into the church and completes the rite with confirmation.

Under the new church, he said, it might be a different emphasis on confirmation—rather than bringing a person into the church as is the reason for baptism, it might involve "sending him out in the world on a mission."

Rev. John Coombs of Kingston, Ont., an Anglican minister, told the commission that if older elements of the congregation had the devotion of children "the church might be better off."

Another area of doctrine in the debate was a proposal to keep intact the designation of deacon but to change the qualifications to include social workers, doctors and others who work for the church.

AGREES PARTIALLY

Under current Anglican practice the post of deacon in various cases involves an internship for a person aiming to be ordained. There is no parallel in the United Church which utilizes elders for similar tasks.

A study group on the matter agreed with a commission statement that the diaconate has a future, but disagreed with the Anglican practice of using it as a stepping stone for priests.

It suggested there might be two categories of deacons—one in which persons were ordained as a permanent office and the other where a person would work at a specific project for a certain period of time.

George Johnston, principal of United Theological College at Montreal, disagreed with the proposals.

He described the diaconate as "old hat, decadent, useless" and said it should be abolished.

"It has not worked, is not working and is a bit of a laughing stock," he said.

He said he could "no longer accept" the premise there should be three orders of the ministry—bishops, priests and deacons.

Send an apple to lunch.

After a while, making lunches can get to be a drag. Variety is not as easy as it sounds, and before you know it, you're giving your family the same sandwiches almost every day. This gets pretty monotonous on the receiving end too—for the kids and husband you love so much.

The answer—a B.C. apple in every lunchbox!

B.C. Apples are bright and attractive—and they come in a variety of sizes and colours. There's B.C. Red Delicious, Golden Delicious, McIntosh Reds, rosy Spartans and green Newtowns. Each with its own distinctive taste.

B.C. apples are good. They're healthful, and nutritious. They're an excellent aid to digestion, and they help clean the teeth.

So along with the usual sandwich, send a little extra variety, health and goodness. Send a B.C. apple to lunch every day.

'IT IS AN OLD STORY . . .'

Gina's Love Letters Stir Storm

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Actress Gina Lollobrigida says she will take legal action to prevent the ex-wife of heart surgeon Christiaan Barnard from publishing letters from her to Barnard.

The actress says the letters were written during a romance that ended in a marriage proposal she turned down.

"It is an old story, I don't want to go into details," said Miss Lollobrigida, who is in the United States to discuss work offers.

Her relationship with Barnard began when he came to Rome after performing the world's first heart transplant operation in December, 1967, the Italian film star said Tuesday.

"It seems she wants to publish a book about her private life and talk about me, too," the actress said.

"A long time ago, when I was already divorced, he asked me to marry him and he said he already had for some time the intention to ask for a divorce.

"After thinking, I decided to tell him no."

Miss Lollobrigida said she had instructed her lawyers to take action if any letters she wrote to Barnard were published without her consent.

Collectors Pop Group To Play Uvic Concert

The Collectors, four young Vancouver men who are making their mark in the world of pop music, are slated to perform at the University of Victoria Thursday.

They will play two 45 minute sets in a concert to start at 8 p.m. in the university auditorium. Appearing with the Vancouver group will be Maple Rock of Courtenay.

About 1,000 advance tickets are available at the student union building. Organizers estimate there is room for about 2,200 people in the auditorium.

The Collectors have just completed a tour that included campuses from Calgary to Ottawa, and night club appearances in Toronto and Montreal.

THE CRITICS CONSIDER THE POSSIBILITIES

Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice

"AS FUNNY AND CHARMING AND, ABOVE ALL, AS HUMAN AS ANY COMEDY THAT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE UNITED STATES IN THIS DECADE ...hilarious, discomfiting, a little sad and more than a little thought-provoking. 'Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice' is the first film that has dared to be intelligently witty yet decent and compassionate about people caught up in a sexual revolution no one fully understands. A very human comedy... with the thoughtful kind of laughter which accompanies rueful self-recoghition. There is one scene, an in-bed quarrel, that is surely THE FUNNIEST IN HOLLYWOOD'S HISTORY!" —Richard Schickel, Life

"I AM ALREADY PLACING BETS THAT IT WILL PROVE TO BE 'THE GRADUATE' OF 1969! A trenchant commentary on, and parody of, the Beautiful People of Southern California!" —Arthur Knight, Saturday Review

"THE LIVELIEST AMERICAN COMEDY THIS YEAR! It's funny, ingenious, directed with skill and wit and a few small miracles! There is nothing hidden in BOB & CAROL & TED & ALICE—it's right there, out front. 'Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice' is a slick, whorey movie that has earned the right to be called honestly comic!" —Pauline Kael, The New Yorker

"THE FUNNIEST AND FRESHEST FILM OF THE YEAR! The most scandalous comedy ever made by a reputable studio...S-E-X RUNS RAMPANT and takes shocking forms. But 'Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice is also a witty commentary on what might happen if people actually lived out their fantasies...a genuine, all-out satire on the supposedly free-swinging change in attitudes toward sex. The performances are a delight!" —McCalls'

It's the Time For Singing

By ELIZABETH FORBES

While I was standing in line this morning to pass some food items through a cashier's hands, something happened that fits well into the weather pattern we've been experiencing the last few days.

Forbes

It gave me such a lift I'm going to pass it on to you.

Behind me in line was a pleasant-faced, middle-aged man. He was hatless and dressed in casual slacks and sweater.

What made him stand out from the rest was the fact that he was singing. Loud enough that while I could not distinguish the words, it was easy to follow the tune.

I listened for a time without turning my head. Finally, I couldn't remain silent any longer.

No! No! I didn't join in. But I did look around and say "it's a day for singing, isn't it?"

"It sure is," came the answer in a voice that had overtones of strong conviction.

"Look at that sky. Look at that sunshine. We're surely the chosen people when we get this sort of weather in February."

The singing started again. We moved forward another step in line. Then abruptly came a further observation.

"We're the chosen people in more ways then one. It's something to live in a place like Victoria, a city large enough to be of importance in the province and yet small enough to avoid many of the troubles that plague the bigger places.

"And you can take it from me, in the big places there's no time to relax on a day like this and enjoy the sunshine and blue sky."

He went back to his singing, continuing it right up to the moment I picked up my purchases and he handed his over to the cashier.

Funny thing! When I got outside the store and was headed back to my car, I was singing, too.

"How would you like to sit in a chair made of paper?" questioned a friend who makes a thing of searching through magazines and other periodicals for suggested wonders of the future.

It's coming, she insisted. Furniture, toys, sculptures, room dividers and many other every-day items will be made of paper.

Where did she get this startling idea? Through an article she found about an exhibition titled The Magic of Paper sponsored by the Museum of Applied Arts in Zurich, Switzerland.

The exhibition included work by students of the school. As young people will, they had turned out some amazing things including colorful chairs sturdy enough to sit on.

Fashion design classes produced a number of exotic creations, graphic classes proposed novel paper packages, also collages, posters and dozens of other things.

This friend, who is nothing if not thorough when it comes to tracking down information, had also gone to the encyclopedia to discover some background facts about paper. She ticked a few of these off for me.

- Paper was invented in China in AD 105 by Ts'ai Lun, minister of public works to Emperor Ho Ti.
- Paper bags were practically unknown a hundred years ago. Items such as flour and sugar were shipped to storekeepers in bulk and customers carried their own containers. Today, in the United States alone, more than 500 bags per person are produced in a year.
- Today, there are about 12,000 kinds of paper and more than 100,000 different consumer products made from it.

Who dares say then, that in the foreseeable future furniture will not be added to the list.

Strike Hits Hotel

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hotel Fort Garry staff went on strike Tuesday but management of the CN hotel said it will remain open with curtailed service offered by non-union employees.

Picket lines were set up at 6 a.m. by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, representing more than 200 hotel employees.

As the wage strike began, the hotel was booked to near capacity with 247 rooms occupied.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mr. Robert Cochrane Campbell wish to express their sincerest thanks to the friends and neighbors for their sympathy and floral tributes during their recent bereavement. Also special thanks to Dr. Leonard Bapty, Rev. T. H. McAllister and McCall Funeral Directors.

We wish to thank all of our wonderful friends for their lovely flowers and cards in the loss of our mother. Also special thanks to Dr. Tomke, attendants at Royal Jubilee Hospital, and to Thomson and Irving for all their help. — Olive Beddome, John Furmston.

We wish to thank all our wonderful friends and neighbors for their lovely flowers and cards in the tragic loss of a loving brother and nephew, Robert and Garry Johnston. Also special thanks to Padre Roberts and McCall Bros. for all their help.—Margaret Taylor and Norah Furmston.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ADAMS—In memory of a dear brother Shawn; who passed away February 11, 1967.
Someone remembers, someone cares.
Your name is whispered in all our prayers;
A smile, a tear, a thought sincere
How often we wish that you were here.
Always together in memory's lane,
Today, tomorrow, Always the same
Whereever we go, whatever we do,
Our thoughts, dear brother are always with you.
—Forever remembered by sisters Shirley and Grace.

ADAMS—In loving Memory of my son Shawn E. Adams. Who passed away Feb. 11th, 1967.
What would we give if we could say, Our SON is coming home today.
To hear his voice to see him smile, to sit and talk with him awhile, to be together in the same old way, would be our greatest wish today,
Dear Lord forgive a silent tear, a constant wish that he were here.
Other's are taken, Yes we know, But he was mine and I loved Him so.
—Always remembered, Loved, and Missed, Your Mum, and Dad Harris.

ADAMS—In loving memory of Shawn Adams who passed away February 11, 1967.
Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered.
Sweet happy memories cling 'round your name;
True hearts that loved you with deepest affection.
Always will love you in death just the same.
—Sadly missed, always remembered, Ken, Jean, Georgina and Darlene Harris.

ADAMS—In loving memory of my brother Shawn, who passed away February 11, 1967.
More and more each day I miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little do they know the sorrow,
That lies within my heart concealed.
—Sadly missed, always remembered, Brother Ray.

ADAMS—In memory of Shawn, who left us on February 11, 1967.
Thy day has come, not gone:
The sun has risen, not set;
Thy life is now beyond
The reach of death or change,
Not ended—but, begun.
O, Noble soul! O gentle heart!
Hail, and farewell.
—Sadly missed, George and Betty.

CHIASSON AND LAWS—In loving memory of Janice Chiasson and Sandra Laws, who passed away Feb. 11th, 1967.
Somewhere back of the sunset.
Where loveliness never dies,
You live in a land of glory,
Amidst the blue and gold of the sky.
Your life a beautiful memory.
Your absence a silent grief,
You rest in God's beautiful garden.
In the sunset of perfect peace.
—Always remembered by Ray Adams, Mrs. Helen Adams, and the Harris family.

CHIASSON — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Janice Chiasson who passed away suddenly Feb. 11, 1967.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Always tender, fond and true
There's not a day dear Janice
We do not think of you.
—Sadly missed and fondly remembered by Mom, Reg, Pat, DeWayne and Lyle.

WILLIAMS — In loving memory of our wife and mother, Norma, who passed away February 12, 1969.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain;
But though we're parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Some days we hope to meet you,
Some day, we know not when,
We shall meet in a better land,
And never part again.
We shall meet with many a loved one
That was torn from our embrace,
We shall listen to their voices,
And behold them face to face.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
—Dave, sons, daughters and families.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH this evening is a light-hearted comedy filmed in Tokyo during the 1966 Olympics. Walk, Don't Run (8:30 on Channel 8, Midnight on Channel 6) stars Cary Grant and Jim Hutton. Tokyo offers lots of color and excitement—but no hotel rooms. In desperation an industrialist and athlete find shelter with a wary but vivacious young lady.

WILDLIFE SPECIAL. 9:30, Channel 2 and 6. Naturalist, explorer and conservationist Tommy Tomkins, formerly a Vancouver policeman, narrates his own films showing wildlife in Canada's remotest corners.

THE VIRGINIAN. 7:30, Channel 5. "A Time for Terror." It's not the Shiloh Ranch that's involved in this tale, but the Graingers themselves. Following a visit to an old friend, Judge McMasters (Joseph Cotten), who has his eye on a Congressional seat, Clay, Holly and Elizabeth return home, where they're soon held hostage by members of the Thurman family who had tried to kill the Judge the night before. Seems thy blame McMasters for the death of their father, and even think Clay might have had a hand in the tragedy too. Complicated but successful yarn.

NANNY AND THE PROFESSOR. 7:30, Channel 4. "The Scientific Approach." Nanny's unorthodox ways with children are pitted against those of a lady psychologist who goes by the rule book, and the results are amusing. The best scene comes at the end when the psychologist loses complete control of her classroom full of children and experimental animals, including a lively chimp.

THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER. 7, Channel 6; 8, Channel 4. "The Promise." Not exactly up to par for the series, but a few good scenes make it worthwhile for fans. Mrs. Livingston (Miyoshi Umeki) is notified that her visa is about to be revoked and Eddie's father does all he can to keep Mrs. Livingston in the U.S. In the final analysis, however, it is Eddie himself who wins the day.

MEDICAL CENTRE. 9, Channel 12. One of medicine's problems, that patients don't follow their doctor's advice, is the subject of this surgical melodrama. Doc Gannon warns Minister Thompson about his weak ticker, but the Reverend goes running off after a missing parolee, suffers a bad heart attack, and goes under the knife. The big moment occurs in surgery with Gannon using all his skills to save this useful man, and he pulls off another marmvel.

SPECIAL. 9, Channel 5. "Highlights of the Ice Capades 1970." Lorne Greene and Bobbie Gentry sing away as guest stars of the show, with Greene tuning up for "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore," "You Make Me Feel So Young," and "September Song," and Bobbie Gentry sining "You've Made Me So Very Happy," and "I'll Never Fall in Love Again." As for the ice show capers, there's fun watching acrobatic skating comic Hans Leiter; excitement looking at champion skaters like Billy Chapel and Linda Carbonetto for an Indian Ballet number; and even more thrills when Olympic Gold Medal Champion Wolfgang Schwarz solos to "If Ever I Should Leave You."

SINGING DUET as stars of NBC special Highlights of the Ice Capades 1970, (9 Channel 5) are country music star Bobbie Gentry and Bonanza's Lorne Greene. (See listing opposite).

ENGLEBERT HUMPERDINCK SHOW. 7:30, Channel 8; 10, Channel 4. There's excitement in the air tonight as Lena Horne and Joey Grey share the stage with their host. Lena's songs include "A Flower is a Lovesome Thing" and "It's All Right With Me"; Joel does a "Fiddler on the Roof" medley in addition to "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head"; and Engelbert's solos, plus songs from Trisha Noble and the Vanity Fare instrumental group round out the hour's bill of fare.

JOHNNY CASH SHOW. 9, Channel 4. Soul and blues music from Ray Charles, "That Thing Called Love," etc.; a medley of tunes by Neil Diamond and Johnny Cash including "New York Boy" and "Five Feet High and Rising"; Country Music from Tammy Wynette like "Stand By Your Man"; and Cash's "Ride This Train" segment, are among the high spots of the hour.

Clyne Repeats Coward Charge

The chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. today repeated charges of cowardice against MLA R. A. Williams over accusations made in the legislature about government links with the company.

J. V. Clyne, chairman and chief executive officer of MB Ltd., made public a letter to Williams, the NDP member for Vancouver East, following an exchange of telegrams last week.

The executive was replying to Williams' speech Feb. 3 in which he was reported to have implied the forest industry giant is in a privileged position with the provincial government.

'CLEVER WORDING'

"I have received your telegram of Feb. 9 which I think is quite cleverly worded," Clyne's letter said.

"You say that because I have said that you are unfit to hold public office I have maligned the judgment of the voters of Vancouver East who have chosen to elect you on three occasions.

"I certainly do not malign them. Nothing could be further from the truth. Voters in Vancouver East and elsewhere have made mistakes in the past and may do so again in the future.

"The point that I am making is that you lack any sense of appreciation of the responsibility required of a member of the legislature. Responsible members of any legislative body do not make derogatory statements about others without stating facts on which the remarks are based so that those attacked may have the opportunity to reply.

NO JUSTIFICATION

"If a member of a legislative body makes an unsupported attack under protection of parliamentary immunity he is a coward. You have said MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. deals in privileges. At the time you made the statement you did not even attempt to prove it and you do not try to justify it in your telegram which I have just received.

"You are unable to adduce any proof because the statement is untrue.

"You say in your telegram that you believe in freedom of speech. I wish that your belief in the freedom of speech would induce you to make the same remarks outside the legislature that you make within it under the cover of protection. You are obviously afraid.

Ottawa Must Help

EDMONTON (CP) — Highways Minister Gordon Taylor told the road builders' and heavy construction section of the Canadian Construction Association convention here Tuesday that cities and provinces cannot handle all the problems of mass transportation and must have federal help.

Nerve Gas Warning Promised

SEATTLE (AP) — A shipment of nerve gas hasn't left Okinawa for storage in the United States Pacific Northwest, but a navy spokesman said Tuesday local officials would be notified in advance before it moves through their areas.

A spokesman for the 13th naval district said the gas probably won't arrive at the Bangor navy depot, near Bremerton, Wash., this month.

After shipment to Bangor, it will be taken by rail to the Umatilla, Ore., ordinance depot for storage.

"I really don't know what the holdup is," the navy spokesman said.

Plans to move "about five shipments" of the chemical-warfare munitions were revealed by army under-secretary Taddeus Beal in December. The announcement brought protests from politicians and residents of Oregon and Washington.

University Press Said Too Political

OTTAWA (CP) — The university student press in Canada suffers from a credibility gap caused by over-emphasis on politics, David Chenoweth, managing editor of the McGill Daily, said in a brief to the Senate committee on the mass media Tuesday.

His brief—a personal document—said the university press has helped work itself into a difficult position in the last decade and it must grow up.

"Due to its excessive political nature, it has created a massive credibility gap, both in its own environment and in terms of the general public."

Chenoweth said the picture won't change until the student press learns that effective reporting and communication require more self-discipline than has so far been shown.

"The student press must grow up and learn to use moderation and control, not because these may be intrinsically good in all situations, but because they are more effective than constant explosions of anger and hate," he said.

DEATH OF A CIVILIZATION

Only a handful of Eskimos still know how to live off the land.
They hunt caribou, stalk seal and share everything —
even with strangers. But their life-style is doomed by the white man's civilization. Before it fades forever, writer-photographer Fred Bruemmer spent six gruelling months
recording how these northern nomads survive.

OUR LAND MAY BE LOST

Will Canada get its fair share of the rich northern pie? Not unless we act soon, says lawyer Michael Galway in Weekend Magazine. Unless the government takes a firm stand, we could lose out on offshore resources of gas and oil. But international law can settle the question of ownership. Read how Canada can avert a northern takeover — and what we'll lose by waiting.

Time to Hunt Pests on Plants

By HILDA BEASTALL

A sunny day gives a fine opportunity for searching out insects which may be infesting house plants. I don't believe in looking for trouble just to fill in time, but I do believe in prevention and precautions. The sunshine activates the insects, if they are present, so put the plants on a table for an hour in the sun before the search begins.

Hilda

This will bring them into view, for most kinds found on house plants will become quite active in sunlight and warmth, therefore easily visible. If you use glasses for reading, put them on for this job, and have an extra magnifying glass handy too.

Plants with thick leaves in the succulent groups, such as the crassulas (or Chinese-jades), hoya (or Wax-plant), and potted azaleas, are among those affected at this time.

The chief offender is woolly aphis, or you may call it grey aphis. It will depend at what stage you discover this pest.

Look first around and in any new tip growths. You may find a tiny mass of white "cottonwool." This is protective material created by the aphis so that no other insect can reach it while in a vulnerable state. Quite incidentally, it protects against man-made sprays so don't think spraying is the answer here.

Usually by the time a wool mass is seen, the light grey inhabitants are out and about on the plant parts.

Fortunately for us and our house plants these grey aphis do not fly, neither do they run around; they creep so slowly that a half hour spent searching on one plant should clean it.

In a week or ten days, go over the plant again to find any further masses or aphis which have later developed.

Just squash them between the fingers, or on a tissue. Remove the cottonwool masses with a toothpick. They may be found in crevices of leaf stems, either above or below the stem, or in crevices of the older bark on main branches.

The failure of azalea blooms to open can sometimes be traced to these grey aphis sucking juices from the bud stems thus interfering with sap flow to the buds.

Look at your house plants, carefully and thoroughly, in sunlight. You may find interesting information to add to your knowledge. And all for free!

Don't Drink Shortly Before Driving Car

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Of late, a number of groups such as the U.S. Safety Council have been telling us that perhaps half of the annual 55,200 fatal accidents on U.S. highways are due to the fact that a driver had been drinking too much.

It is hard to know if anything can be done to correct this, except perhaps to keep warning jovial drinkers that commonly when they kill the people in another car they get killed too.

Also it would be wonderful if all people knew that two drinks can so greatly slow up the reflexes of many people that they cannot react quickly enough when perhaps the car just ahead suddenly slows up.

Experts urge that a man or woman who has been drinking avoid driving until an hour has elasped. Also it helps much if the liquor is drunk so slowly that the body will have time in which it can "burn up" most of it.

Individuals should know how many drinks will badly affect them. Some people feel distressed after two drinks, while others can drink four drinks without immediate distress.

The U.S. Safety Council says that with an alcohol concentration in a person's blood of 0.15 per cent, his chances of having a traffic accident are 25 times greater than if his body were free of alcohol. The taking of black coffee will not protect one. Sometimes the slowing up of nervous reactions can be much intensified if the person has taken, besides alcohol, a big dose of some tranquilizer or other sedative drug.

Much depends on the weight of the drinker. Thus, a 120-pound beer drinker can get a 0.10 per cent content of alcohol in his blood (a dangerous level) with a little more than three bottles, while a 180-pound man could drink five bottles before he reaches the same danger mark.

Also the 120-pound man who is drinking martinis can reach the 0.10 per cent blood level with 1½ glasses, while the 180-pound man will reach it with two glasses. I have seen people who quickly drank four martinis! With the 0.10 per cent level, the danger of having an accident is six times greater than average.

Recently it has been found that home accidents, such as those due to falling asleep with a lighted cigarette in the mouth, are much more likely to happen to a person who has been drinking. Half of the accidents in private planes appear to be due to drinking. A high percentage of accidents during boating, hunting, swimming or in a shop are due to alcohol.

I am happy to read that some U.S. companies now do not fire a somewhat alcoholic employee; they try first to rehabilitate him. What is not so good is that in California they found that most men whose driving licences were revoked for alcoholism went on drinking.

I have read that in a few places in which the courts dealt severely with such offenders the accident rate was immediately reduced by half. Obviously, only courageous and dedicated judges who are well supported by the people will punish the alcoholic son of a prominent citizen.

I read that in a special study carried out in California, three out of five of the fatally injured drivers who had caused the accident had been drinking. As the U.S. Safety Council people say, "Most people have the misguided idea that a few drinks will not affect their driving."

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Surprise Attack Led to Expulsion

By BOB BOWMAN

One of the saddest stories in Canadian history is the expulsion of the Acadians in 1755 immortalized by the American poet, Longfellow, nearly 100 years later. The problem was that the Acadains could not be trusted. Nova Scotia then did not include Cape Breton which was held by the French who also occupied the area now known as New Brunswick. So the British in Nova Scotia were apt to be attacked from two sides, and they could not get the Acadians to take an oath of loyalty. They were greatly influenced by a fanatical French priest, Father Le Loutre, who urged them to rise against the British.

When the Acadians refused to take the oath of loyalty, after several opportunities, Governor Lawrence finally told them "Then you are no longer subjects of the King of England but of the King of France. You will be treated as such and removed from the country". Then they were deported, mostly to the American colonies as far south as Louisiana where the "Cajuns" today are descendants of the Acadians.

One of the incidents that led to the deportation of the Acadians took place on February 11, 1747. Governor Shirley of Massachusetts sent a force of 470 men to Grand Pre (later the birthplace of Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden) to defend the area from an expected French attack. The ships arrived during some bitterly cold weather in December but were not unloaded except for food for the soldiers who lived in homes along the shore.

The Acadians sent messengers to French commander Ramesay in the Chignecto area and told him that the Americans were not prepared for defence. Ramesay sent a detachment to attack, although the men had to march from Chignecto to Grand Pre on snowshoes, with the Acadians acting as guides. The attack on Grand Pre took place during a snowstorm and the Americans were practically wipped out.

The Acadians were expelled eight years later.

1813—104th Regiment of New Brunswick began march from Saint John to Quebec to play important part in War of 1812.

1839—British parliament received Durham report.

1907—Supreme Court of Alberta was established.

By FRED L. KARPIN

In the 1969 World Championships — which Italy won for the 10th consecutive time — a neat defensive play by the United States West defender, Sidney Lazard, of New Orleans, prevented the Italian declarer from fulfilling his contract. Sitting South was Camillo Pabis Ticci.

Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ◇ (!)	Pass	2 ◇
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

When South opened with one diamond, it was his intention to rebid one no-trump. In the Arno System of bidding which North-South were employing, this artificial sequence denotes a balanced hand containg 17-20 high-card points. With North responding two diamonds, the no-trump game was reached automatically.

Lazard opened the queen of spades, which was permitted to win the trick. He then continued with the spade jack, dummy's king winning. A low diamond lead to South's queen was made next, and captured by West's ace. West's remaining spade was now led to dummy' ace.

The club finesse was then taken, South winning the trick with his queen. His last diamond was now played, and captured by Lazard's king. Lazard returned his remaining club, South's ace capturing East's jack.

Declarer next laid down his ace of hearts, and he followed up leading the king. On this trick, Lazard played his 10 of hearts. When South then led the queen of heats, West tossed away his jack! Thus South's seven of hearts was promoted into a winner, and gave him his eighth trick. But after cashing it, he had no choice but to lead a club, and East's king and nine took the last two tricks.

Had Lazard not "unblocked" by tossing away his jack and 10 of hearts, declarer, after cashing his three top hearts, would have played his fourth heart, thrusting West into the lead. With only two little diamonds remaining, Lazard would then have been compelled to lead one of them, and dummy's jack and 10 of diamonds would have captured the last two tricks, resulting in a fulfilled contract.

'That's Really Wild' Curtis Reply to Bill

An amendment to the Municipal Treatment Plant Assistance Act proposed by the provincial government was greeted with astonishment Tuesday by Hugh Curtis, president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

"That's really wild," Curtis said of the change which would permit municipalities to repay treatment plant loans over 20 years instead of 25 years.

"It will be of minor assistance to only one or two municipalities," said Curtis, who is also mayor of Saanich.

He said the UBCM's proposal to the cabinet last year was for a composite, integrated approach to pollution control.

But the government has apparently responded with a change in the Treatment Plan Assistance Act under which the municipalities pay the first two mills of costs each year for the life of the loan and the province pays 75 per cent of the remainder.

The formula has been criticized in the past as helping few municipalities because the two mills effectively covers the full costs of most sewage treatment plants.

Shortening the term of repayment would increase the potential share to be paid by the province, but it is meaningless to most communities which still must bear the full cost.

"This is all-out commitment to sewage control?" asked Curtis. "Is that all?"

He described the measure as "lip service".

It is understood the new measure still falls far short of helping the people of view Royal in sewage treatment costs in that area. In Central Saanich it is believed the formula would be of some assistance.

The problem in View Royal is that the government's share of the cost is figured out on a wide assessment basis including Esquimalt, Victoria and Saanich but the View Royal area pays the cost.

The UBCM wants the government's share to be figured out on the basis of the assessment in the area actually benefitting from the treatment plants.

NEW HALL SOUGHT

A special Sidney council committee meeting will be held today to discuss ways of assisting Silver Threads to find new accommodations.

Silver Threads discontinued using the Pythias Hall when the rent was increased from $110 to $400 a month.

Mayor Stanley Dear said there are no small halls available in Sidney for rent on a monthly basis.

He said Sanscha had offered council a piece of property to build a hall but funds were lacking for its construction.

Quebec Response Gratifying

French language advertising of Vancouver Island charms produced "gratifying" response from Quebec last year, Visitors' Bureau commissioner Mike Heppell says.

But to translate and produce ads in French on any scale is costly for a limited budget, he said, commenting on a mainland tourist association's decision to develop French language business.

LOOK TO WEST

Victoria and Vancouver Island Visitors' Bureau depends largely on English-speaking tourists and hence spends most of its advertising budget in western newspapers and magazines, most of these in the U.S. Some have national circulation in both countries.

Last year, the bureau advertised in La Presse, of Montreal, with French language copy produced by a commercial advertising agency.

When the bureau is approached for French language brochures about Vancouver Island, it sends English pamphlets and a Butchart Gardens folder printed in several tongues, including French.

The mainland organization planning to draw more Quebec and Ontario tourists to Vancouver, Fraser Valley and the Sechelt Peninsula is the Mainland Southwest Tourist Association, which held a convention in Chilliwack last week.

Class Sought At Hospital

Greater Victoria school board will write to the department of education requesting permission to establish special classes at the Eric Martin Institute of Psychiatry.

EMI officials had earlier contacted the board with a request that the board provide three teachers for between 24 and 30 pupils.

If the board gets permission to set up the classes, cost of running them will be included in the government's basic education grant to the Greater Victoria district.

Rules Hindering Director Role

Greater Victoria School Board plans to write to the department of education with a request that the role of directors be left open to interpretation by individual boards.

Dr. John Wiens, the board's director of instruction, explained the move at a meeting of the education committee Monday.

He said school board directors can now walk into any classroom in the district for the purpose of inspecting teachers. But they cannot issue directives to principals, even though they rank higher than principals.

Wiens said the result is when principals have problems large or small they tend to take them to the district superintendent rather than to the department head concerned.

TRIVIAL MATTERS

"One of the things that has puzzled me is the number of principals who go straight to the superintendent with the most trivial things."

Besides Wiens, the Greater Victoria administration has five directors: Vic Thompson, director of secondary instruction; Harold O'Donnell, director of elementary instruction; Jack Dalgleish, adult education; Dennis Brown, curriculum services; and Ted Callbeck, special educational services.

'OPEN' RULES

The role of directors as it is now defined is outlined in the rules of the council of public instruction. The board will write to superintendent of education Frank Levirs requesting that the rules applying to the work of a director be left open for interpretation by boards as they see fit.

Wiens said in recent months he and other directors have been issuing directives to principals, and fortunately principals have been co-operating. But, he added, they were acting illegally, and the administration would be in an embarrassing position if "somebody called our bluff.

"I can't conceive of an organization chart where someone who's higher on the chart can't issue directives to someone who's lower on the chart."

Trustee Allan McKinnon hoped the move would not prove detrimental to relations with principals.

Wiens replied redefining directors' roles should not be interpreted as centralizing power in the district.

"The school to me is still the key decision-making unit in the district."

Vocational Transfer Seen

Analysis of the provincial education budget indicates the government could transfer vocational schools under jurisdiction of regional colleges, Jim Campbell, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, said in Vancouver Tuesday.

Campbell met members of the BCSTA executive to study the provincial budget which was introduced in the legislature Friday.

He said during the current fiscal year grants to the vocational-technical schools totalled $25 million.

During the 1970-71 year, however, they have been reduced to $21 million.

Grants to regional colleges, meanwhile, are up $16 million.

There are nine vocational schools, and six regional colleges in the province.

Transfer of the vocational schools under jurisdiction of colleges would not come as a surprise. Education Minister Donald Brothers last year initiated a feasibility study on the subject.

A report on that study has been in Brothers' hands since last fall.

Campbell said as for the rest of the education budget there is "not a great deal that is very different" from last year's budget.

He said it barely keeps pace with the population growth in the province and there is little room for growth in the quality of education.

The BCSTA cancelled a press conference on the budget because they thought it wasn't worth calling newsman in.

Delegation Victoria-Bound To Lobby for Renter Rights

A delegation of tenants will visit the Legislative Building next week to lobby for a bill of rights for renters.

Between 50 and 100 persons are expected to come from the Vancouver area and will be joined by Victoria tenants.

The lobby is being organized by the B.C. Tenants Association, comprising 13 local tenant councils including one from Victoria.

Organizer Bruce Yorke of Vancouver said a petition in favor of a new Landlord and Tenants Act is being circulated and between 4,000 and 5,000 signatures have been gathered.

"Our delegation is going to attempt to present this to as many MLAs as possible Feb. 17," he said.

"We have written all MLAs asking for interviews and also the cabinet and the Liberal and NDP caucuses. The last two have agreed to meet us. None of the MLAs have replied yet."

Yorke said that in general, his group would like to see any rent increase publicly justified before municipal rental boards.

The tenants bill of rights proposes that notice to vacate would only be valid for five causes: That the tenant was wrecking the place, he was two months or more in arrears with rent, he was a nuisance to neighbors, illegal activities and that the landlord requires the premises for himself or his immediate family.

The present law, said Yorke, only recognizes the landlord's rights.

There would be a prohibition on the landlord changing locks or padlocking out tenants.

The right of the landlord to use a bailiff to seize property under the Distress Act would be abolished. If the tenant was behind in rent, the landlord should proceed through normal legal processes, said Yorke.

Other features in the proposed bill are minimum service requirements from landlords, outlawing so-called security deposits or if they are retained to be strictly and publicly controlled and tenants rights to privacy.

"Except in Vancouver, landlords can come or go in people's suites as they please," said Yorke.

U.S. Bans Erie Drilling, Canada Allows It

By DAVID BIRD

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (NYT) — The United States and Canada are in growing disagreement over drilling for gas beneath Lake Erie.

Canada, which controls half of the lake, believes that drilling for gas — and some day for oil—is merely tapping a valuable natural resource. The U.S. which controls the other half, believes that drilling holds the threat of further pollution disaster for the lake, which is already extremely polluted.

Drilling is allowed now only on the Canadian side. On the U.S. side there has been next to no drilling and all plans have been held off as a result of the disastrous blowout from a drilling rig off Santa Barbara a year ago that spread oil over miles of California beach.

Asked why the Canadians are apparently less worried about the dangers, an American, Dr. Gordon Everett of the Department of the Interior, suggested that there were different priorities in Canada, a thinly populated land of cold temperatures that needs fuel.

The Canadian attitude was reflected by H. W. Thompson, an engineering adviser to the Canadian Government, who said, "we're not as excitable a people."

Additionally, when Canadians are challenged by Americans about pollution, they tend to point at the much more heavily populated U.S. side of the lake, which produces far larger volumes of the sewage and industrial waste that, in the view of experts, have been hastening the death of the lake.

For example, the international joint commission, the body that handles problems between the U.S. and Canada, has just been told by a Canadian official that it needs more power to control pollution.

D. S. Caverly, general manager of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, said at a hearing of the Commission at the University of Western Ontario that such control required "more teeth to put the bite on some states or provinces." He was especially critical of what he termed a lack of pollution control at Cleveland and at Naigara Falls, N.Y.

The dispute about pollution of Lake Erie has intensified with the introduction of high-speed drilling rigs like one called the Mr. Neil, which is tied up in Port Colborne for the winter, its twin hulls jacked high above the ice.

The Mr. Neil and similar rigs that work around the clock when weather permits are operated by Consumers Gas Company, a Toronto-based utility that is by far the largest prospector on the lake. Consumers gas holds exploration rights to more than 1.4 million acres, on 47 per cent of the bottom that is in Canadian waters.

Consumers Gas denies that its operations could contribute any significant pollution, and, indeed, contends that the gas it gets is helping to control contamination on shore.

Opponents of the drilling fear that brine associated with petroleum deposits or oil will leak out of the gas wells.

CANADIANS BACK FREEZE PLAN

Times News Services

TORONTO — Latest Gallup poll surveys indicate Canadians strongly favor a plan to impose wage-price freezes as a curb to inflation.

In the survey just released six out of 10 adults (60 per cent) favored a freeze while only half that number (31 per cent) dissented.

In 1966 a similar survey showed only 54 per cent in favor of a freeze, with 34 per cent opposed.

Following is a breakdown of the results according to occupations across Canada:

Policing Key To Price Curb

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Federal and provincial governments next week will be asked if they are ready to police Canadian firms which seriously violate a proposed program of voluntary price restraints.

Their answer will go one step further in determining the success of this week's meeting between the prices and incomes commission and leaders of business, industry and professional groups.

Pricing Policy Announced

Monday commission chairman John Young was able to announce a broad consensus for a policy of pricing criteria had developed from the meeting.

This policy was developed simultanously with a review program to ensure that firms would abide by the rules of the game, which in the commission's words are:

"Revenues produced by a price increase are to be less than the increases in costs that led to the price change, unless the increase in price is needed to improve a demonstrably inadequate rate of return on capital investment."

The commission itself does not have the strength necessary to deal with instances of "flagrant non-compliance" and this added muscle would have to come to a great extent from government.

It is proposed to set up a small review staff consisting of senior government officials and business executives seconded to work with the commission on a temporary basis.

Questions from Staff

The review staff could request information needed to determine relevant revenue and cost changes from firms, as well as studying operating records.

One of the main reasons for conducting detailed reviews would be to differentiate between cost changes arising from a change in sales volume, and those caused by a change in the price of inputs.

For review purposes 1969 would be used as the base year, except for speical cases when this period was obviously unsuitable.

The commission proposed that the reviews would be concentrated on "important price increases by major firms and by market leaders in smaller sectors."

Less important price increases could be drawn to the commission's attention through such channels as the Consumer Affairs Department which now operates Box 99 specially for consumer complaints.

Unit Cost Variations

The commission said that in 1970 some firms might well experience unit cost increases as a result of a temporary decline in their sales volume or output because of adverse market conditions.

"Such costs increases cannot be regarded as automatic justification for an equivalent price increase," it said.

On the other hand, other firms might have decreased costs because of greater efficiency or increased sales.

Such firms would be expected to pass on some of these savings to the consumer in the form of lower prices.

No indication was given as to what possible penalties offenders might face if the program goes forward.

Presumably this would fall under the term "appropriate action" which the prime minister and the premiers will be asked to consider at their meeting next week.

Other Agreements Made

Following are other areas of agreement reached at this week's meeting:

● Business firms generally, if called upon to do so, would reduce the number and size of price increases they would normally make in 1970.

● The conference recognized that domestic price criteria should not be applied to goods sold mainly in export markets. The commission will keep the position of export industries under review and if it appears that some developments in this area are impairing the general price restraint program, it will seek "appropriate solutions" to the problems.

● Business firms would be prepared to co-operate with the prices and incomes commission in such reviews as it might decide to conduct.

● The conference recognized that farmers do not

Spending Hike Held to 7.5%

OTTAWA (CP)—The government asked Parliament today for $14,812,786,336 to pay its bills, including old age pensions, for the new fiscal year starting next April 1, an increase of 7.5 per cent from spending estimates for the current fiscal year.

Tabling the spending budget in the Commons, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the increase is mainly due to the growing cost of carrying the public debt, paying higher grants to the provinces and supporting programs already authoribed by Parliament.

In the limited field in which the government has room to adjust its spending from year to year, the increase for 1970-71 is only 3.8 per cent.

Last year at this time, the government asked for $13,617,651,503, an increase of 9.4 per cent over the previous year. Since then, supplementary spending appropriations for 1969-70 have amounted to $66,446,526, and a further $94,000,000 may be needed in the next few weeks before March 31.

MORE FOR AID

Mr. Drury said major increases in the new year will go towards regional economic expansion, the government's bilingualism program, postal services, Indian and Eskimo affairs, foreign aid and some other programs.

This will make it necessary to rein in many other services, and the number of government employees will be cut to 247,859 by March 31, 1971, from 255,401 on March 31, 1970.

Mr. Drury called the restraint on government spending increases and reduction in the government's staff as important contributions to the government's fight against inflation.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson will present his taxing budget early in March, showing how he intends to raise the money to cover the spending estimates. It is expected he will end this fiscal year with a surplus of about $500,000,000, and plan for another surplus in 1970-71 as an anti-inflation move.

FORM CHANGED

The 1970-71 estimates were presented in the traditional blue-covered book, but in a new form containing many more summaries and descriptions of individual programs. The new 1¾-inch book is printed in English and French.

By major categories, and in rounded figures, government outlay increases in 1970-71 will be: Health and welfare up $415,000,000, to $3,149,800,000 from $2,734,800,000 in 1969-70; economic development and support programs up $149,300,000 to $1,817,900,000 from $1,668,500,000; educational 600,000 from $301,900,000; and interest on the public debt up $143,100,000 to $1,799,700,000 from $1,656,600,000.

The defence budget for the new year is $1,816,600,000, an increase of only $700,000 from 1969-70.

The government does not count payments from the old age security fund, for basic pensions now amounting to $79.58 a month to everyone 65 and older, as part of its budgetary expenditures. These pensions are paid out of special income, sales and corporation profits taxes, but they are part of the government's total outlay.

In addition to actual outlays in 1970-71 for all government services, including old age pensions, the government plans to make loans and investments — principally in Crown corporations—amounting to $842,508,100.

Estimates At a Glance

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the government's main spending estimates for the 1970-71 fiscal year starting April 1, presented to Parliament today:

Total outlays set at record $14,812,786,336, up 7.5 per cent from $13,778,098,029 for 1969-70.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury says "controllable expenditures" held to 3.8-per-cent increase.

Health and welfare expenditures mount to $3,149,800,000 from $2,734,800,000. In addition, old age pension payments climb to $1,903,000,000 from $1,760,000,000.

Public debt charges climb to $1,799,700,000 from $1,656,600,000.

Defence budget held to $1,816,600,000, an increase of only $700,000.

Medical care insurance, if all provinces participate, climbs to $440,000,000 from $370,000,000.

Foreign aid increased to $192,700,000 from $179,200,000.

Danger to B.C. Feared In New Tanker Route

Oil tankers bringing petroleum from the newly-discovered Alaskan oil fields might present a pollution problem to B.C., Hunter Vogel (SC—Langley) said Tuesday in the budget debate.

Vogel told the legislature that a fleet of three 100,000-ton tankers owned by the Atlantic-Richfield company will be transporting oil from Prudhoe Bay to a new $100-million refinery on Puget Sound.

"The point is what route will tankers take," as they pass the B.C. coast?

"Will it be through the Strait of Georgia or on the outside along Vancouver Island and past Victoria?"

The MLA said he thought the provincial government should have a voice in what route will be taken and who will have jurisdiction over the coastal waters.

The problem of oil tankers in B.C. waters will have to be faced regardless of whether any oil drilling is done off the coast, Vogel said.

Vogel said that he wanted the Gulf of Georgia protected from pollution, and the federal government is not the power to turn to for protection.

He said that the only offshore oil drilling going on at present is under the auspices of the federal government, and charged that this was being done in spite of pollution risk.

"Ottawa claims jurisdiction," Vogel stated, "but Ottawa has demonstrated that

OTTAWA MAY SEEK RIGID CONTROLS

TIMES NEWS SERVICES

OTTAWA — Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday more rigid controls governing tankers in territorial waters may be considered as a result of the grounding last week of the Liberian tanker Arrow off the Nova Scotia coast.

He suggested as well that additional navigational aids may have to be considered and said the grounding incident may give some indication of how controls should be applied.

The stern of the tanker, meanwhile, has broken free of the rock on which it grounded, but is being held in place with three tugs. Salvage officials plan to tow it 400 miles to sea and sink it off the continental shelf.

Phosphate Limits To Be Established

Accused Soviet Spy Posts Bail

SEATTLE (AP) — A Russian accused of spying in the United States was freed on $75,000 bail today after his scheduled preliminary hearing on espionage charges was postponed until Feb. 19.

Alekandr V. Tikhomirov, arrested here Saturday, prereturn to New York where he is a translator of the UN secretariat.

The hearing was postponed by U.S. Commissioner Walter A. Reseburg at the request of U.S. Attorney Stanley Pitkin, who said it shouldn't be held until the United States replies to a formal protest by the Soviet Union that Tikhomirov had diplomatic immunity.

Pact Accepted By Nurses

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nurses at 69 British Columbia hospitals have voted 94 per cent in favor of accepting a new two-year contract providing a 15.5 per cent wage increase and a shorter work week.

140 Top $200,000 In Earnings

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics tabled in the Senate finance committee today show that 1,665,920 Canadian taxpayers earned less than $3,000 in 1967—and 140 Canadians made more than $200,000.

The committeee, considering the government's policy paper on proposed tax changes, received the figures from Arthur W. Gilmour, senior adviser to the committee.

Mr. Gilmour's statistics showed that approximately 65 per cent of taxpayers earned less than $5,000 in 1967, representing 3,698,530 of the 6,655,683 taxpayers listed.

Of those 6,655,683 taxpayers only 8,388 made more than $50,000.

. . . But Labor Leaders Cool

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian labor leaders today termed price-restraint policies announced at a prices conference in Ottawa Tuesday as a "ploy," "bluff" and "joke."

Others said business would use their price restraint as an excuse to hold down wage offers in labor negotiations.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said that if Canadian businessmen "want to hold prices for about 10 years and let the rest of us catch up, that's fine."

"It's another Trudeau ploy. . . . I don't believe it."

"I think this all just a big bluff," said William Houle of Ottawa, president of the 16,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

"If the corporations can restrain their prices now, it proves they've been gouging all along. Why are prices cut so much after Christmas . . . ?"

Francis Eady, executive assistant of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, questioned business intentions. He cited a recent announcement by Falconbridge Nickel Co. Ltd. that profits for 1969 had increased despite a three-month strike.

"These are the people who are going to co-operate with price restraint? Big joke!"

Murray Cotterill, director of the United Steelworkers of America, criticized the conference for failure to require business to get advance approval for price increases.

Th' fed'ral gov'mint estimates are out an', well, they're sure estimable.

An 'Independent' Western Canada Being Studied by Prairie Businessmen

CALGARY (CP) — The vision of an independent western Canada is playing on the minds of a group of business and professional people who have launched a study into the feasibility.

Lawyer A. M. Harradence said Tuesday the group is gathering a team of consultants who will study the economic, financial and political aspects of an independent western Canada.

The group does not want to raise the spectre of a Quebec-like movement, Mr. Harradence said, and resents "very strongly the term separatism or secessionist."

"We want to know exactly what the situation will be if western Canada should be forced into independence by the economic problems that beset the West today."

Mr. Harradence, former Alberta Progressive Conservative leader, said results of the study are expected to reinforce the feeling among group members that an independent western Canada is not only feasible and desirable, but profitable and necessary.

The group envisages an independent western Canada that would be part of the Commonwealth and loyal to the British crown, he said.

The area that might be included extends from the head of the great lakes to the west coast and takes in the northern areas west of Hudson Bay.

The group has about 15 members, was formed three weeks ago at a "spontaneous meeting," has no name and, for its purposes, has unlimited resources.

Chairman is S. M. Paulson, president of National Nickel Co., but Mr. Harradence declined to disclose the names of other members.

The approach of eastern Canada and the federal government to the West has shown a "callous disregard and a deliberate blindness" for its economic problems, Mr. Harradence said, and has led to the feeling of alienation.

Prime Minister Trudeau "completely misunderstood" the plight of the prairie farmer when he compared him with the corner grocer.

When the prime minister visited the prairies in early 1969 he asked why he should help prairie farmers market their grain, Mr. Harradence said. But the prime minister was able to come up with $200,000,000 to cover the deficit incurred by Expo 67.

The white paper on taxation was also biased against western Canada by cutting exploration incentives and was aimed at benefitting manufacturers in the "golden triangle" of Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

The group wants to gather facts, not emotions, before planning any action, Mr. Harradence said.

"We are not going to rely on just the opinions of the consultants we are dealing with.

"This group, I think, is intelligent enough, well-informed and experienced enough to form their own conclusions.

"But you don't go off half-cocked; you look at the matter and you look at it carefully and coldly and without emotion."

Mr. Harradence said the group would contact other organizations, mostly agricultural, which were conducting similar studies.

Roving Gangs Smash Mail Pickup Trucks

MONTREAL (CP) — One man was injured when roaming gangs smashed two mail-delivery trucks near the city's main post office Tuesday night during a rotating strike.

It brought to six the number of trucks damaged since Feb. 3 when mail truck drivers began a rotating strike to protest expected layoffs March 31.

Meanwhile, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said that outside contractors will be hired to take up the slack in mail delivery.

The government will not submit to "blackmail tactics" by a union representing 450 mail truck drivers, he told a news conference.

SHOW STRENGTH

A large group of car drivers circled the main post office building in downtown Montreal at about 10 p.m. blowing their horns and cursing drivers who stayed on the job.

Police converged on the area and stopped the parading cars. Police asked each driver for his license and registration, then checked car trunks for weapons. The drivers were then told to return home.

The truck drivers, employed by G. Lapalme Inc., are protesting layoffs expected when the company's exclusive mail delivery contract expires March 31. Five new companies will take over pickup and delivery to sub-stations April 1.

Sheep Don't Solve Royal and Ancient Grass-Cutting Job

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—About 4,000 golf course superintendents have gathered in Houston for the 41st International Turfgrass Conference.

Also here is one links supervisor, John K. Campbell of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, Saint Andrews, Scotland.

Campbell doesn't have that problem. In the world of golf, Saint Andrews is sacred ground.

A bald, stocky, red-faced man, Campbell looks after the cradle of golf. He supervises the maintenance of four courses, Eden, Jubilee, the New Course and the Old Course.

Since the records only go back to the 15th century, nobody knows precisely how long the old course has been in existence.

VISITORS KISS TURF

"You know, I've seen American visitors come to Saint Andrews, walk down the steps to the No. 1 tee and bow down and kiss the turf," says Campbell, who delights in telling his stories.

"Just recently," he said, "I saw an American leave the clubhouse with only a driver in his hand. When he got to the No. 1 tee, he took off his top coat and suit coat and piled them in a neat bundle.

"Then, he teed up his ball and drove it down the middle. He slipped on his suit coat and his top coat and walked off the course, saying: 'I hit a golf ball at Saint Andrews. Now, I can die happy when I go back home tomorrow with my wife and children.' "

IN NATURAL STATE

Campbell has a 50-man crew to maintain the four courses, but his budget for equipment and maintenance is roughly $8,000, about one-tenth of what is spent on the finer country clubs in America.

But Saint Andrews is almost in its natural state, and Campbell admits that "manicuring" is an American invention. However, he mows the greens every day, just like the Americans.

He estimates that 123,000 rounds of golf were played at Saint Andrews last year, but, compared to American standards, the green fees are trifling.

The local residents pay only $7 a year, while guest fees are about $1.50 American for 18 holes.

There's no pro or golf shop. If a golfer wants to purchase clubs or equipment, he can go into town.

Action Theme Set for Show At Esquimalt

"Action" is the theme for the fourth annual Kiwanis Sportsman Show, which will be presented at Esquimalt Sports Centre this year from Thursday, April 2, through Sunday, April 5.

Lew Sutton, president of the sponsoring Kiwanis Club of Saanich, has announced that the show will again feature several live demonstrations, including judo, golf, archery, fly-tieing and tips on angling.

Numerous exhibits of the latest in outdoor equipment will also be among the show's highlights.

Sensational New Hearing Aid Costs Less Than 10 Cents Per Year To Operate

Space age technology has come to the hearing aid industry. A new hearing aid has been developed that actually costs less than ten cents per year to operate. This is a far cry from the $25 to $70 a year the average hearing aid costs to run. Aid also automatically controls speech interfering noises and can be custom adjusted for correct hearing on the spot. For information write SILVERTONE HEARING AID CENTRE, Simpsons - Sears Hillside: 3190 Shelbourne Street, Victoria.

City Golf Team Has Big Lead

(Special To The Times

LAS VEGAS—A ten-man golf team from Victoria holds a commanding lead at the halfway mark in the northern section qualifying playoffs for the Gold Cup.

Victoria players Tuesday posted a net 262, 24 under par on the Desert Inn course here, to move 11 strokes ahead of Calgary Golf Club's team. Six strokes further back, at 279, was another Calgary team from Canyon Meadows.

In the unique event, entries are divided into five two-man teams who play off their best ball. Only the best four of the five scores are used.

FINAL ROUND TODAY

Leading the way Tuesday was a Colwood combination of Ken Leslie and Roger Ross, who scored a net 62. Another Colwood pairing, Bill Kirstine and Fred Ranson scored 65, one stroke ahead of Jack Kenney and Al Vey. Malcolm MacKay and Max Yates produced a 69 for the fourth score. Also on Victoria's team are Tom James and Ches Hays of Uplands.

Backup Boat To Campaign

SEATTLE (AP) — The unlimited hydroplane that has served as backup to Miss Budweiser for the last two racing seasons will campaign in 1970 as Miss Burien.

The boat, which ran as Miss Budweiser in 1967, has been purchased by Bob Murphy, a businessman in Burien, Wash.

Murphy said George Henley will drive the big boat next season. The hydroplane was built in 1962 and subsequently campaigned as Notre Dame and Shu Shu before going to the Budweiser camp.

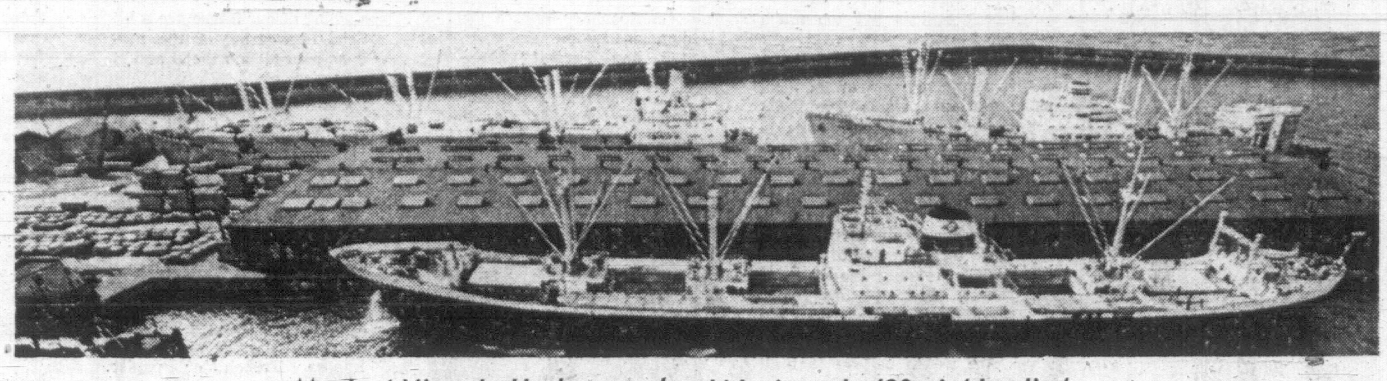
VICTORIA HARBOR:

Make It Good, Keep It Small



Much of Victoria Harbor, on the skids since the '20s, is 'derelict'

By JOHN MIKA

As a community, Victoria emerged from the sea and it's more than time to revitalize the harbor that links it with the past and future.

But University of Victoria geography department head Dr. Charles N. Forward today said a realistic appraisal of alternatives should not be clouded by futile dreams of raising Victoria even to the junior leagues of world shipping.

Forward, author of a special study on Land Use of the Victoria Area just released by the federal department of energy, mines and resources, said in an interview he was pleased to see city hall and the community shifting some attention to the waterfront "much of which is derelict or near-derelict."

His study, undertaken in 1961 although the 1964 publication was delayed until now is a thorough catalogue of the geography of the Greater Victoria area and how that geography was used by the residents up until the last decade.

It notes that James Douglas chose Victoria as the site of his Hudson Bay Company post in 1842 because it provided a sheltered harbor with gentle open woodland slopes around it for vegetable plots and grazing land.

The harbor was crucially important until Vancouver became a railhead and forged ahead of Victoria as it became the natural maritime outlet for handling Canadian exports of raw products in huge volumes.

Victoria's harbor has been in sharp decline since the 1920s despite the efforts to refute economics and match or follow Vancouver's development.

Forward, who also is the author of a federal survey of waterfront use in Greater Vancouver, said the local lumber trade and the potential of trans-shipment of prairie grains is far-too small to support any "ideas envisioning Victoria as a cargo port of world rank although there may be some-limited-increase in this area."

He applauded current plans to improve the efficiency of lumber loading and storage at Ogden Point to advance that type of shipping business as far as possible.

But while the cargo development potential may be limited there are many other alternatives we should be examining carefully," he said.

"These cruise ships that have begun calling here in the past year add a new dimension to our port business, which is particularly in keeping with out tourist business development, and they should be encouraged.

"But even if we develop it into, say, 20 calls per year that still will not be enough to justify heavy expenditure for a new dock so Ogden Point should continue to be used for that."

Forward said marginal expenditure in improving Ogden Point, as planned would provide the optimum development and he discounted suggestion of creating large new facilities in Rock Bay, Esquimalt or elsewhere.

"But there are many other things that should be examined beside the commercial docks — waterfront renewal certainly, marinas, maybe some marine industries and there could be other alternatives."

The apartment-commercial redevelopment complex proposed for Wharf Street "is the sort of waterfront renewal that would realize the great potential but there is an awful lot of redevelopment needed and not all of it can be done through the private sector."

For instanc, did you know that while rainfall here is less than 35 inches a year, on average at Bear Lake, only some 30 miles west of city hall as the weather travels, the precipitation hits an average of 115 inches annually.

The contrast results from the highland barrier to the east but its consequences color life here in many ways because the moisture that works its way down to the lowlands allows such diversity in plant life and productive agriculture with marginal soil bans.

Brothers Heckled by PTA

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

'I Don't See How You Can Blame Me'

By BOB MITCHELL

Education Minister Donald Brothers today came under bitter barrage of heckling from 150 Parent-Teacher Association delegates.

It was PTA Day at the legislature and representatives came from Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island points to air grievances with MLAs of all parties.

They reserved their strongest words for Brothers when they met him at 11 a.m. in the Newcombe Auditorium of the Provincial museum.

Most of the questions centred around education finance, particularly the freeze on school construction announced last November by the government.

In the middle of the question period, some 50 people from Coquitlam stood up as a group then sat down again while a spokesman exchanged words with the minister over the situation in Coquitlam.

100 ROOMS NEEDED

She said as of next fall 30 per cent of the 23,850 children will be on shift, including grades one, two and three. The district needs over 100 new classrooms to catch up with enrolment.

Brothers replied last fall he had authorized the Coquitlam schoolboard to buy as many portable classrooms as it needed. The board turned down the offer on the grounds portable classrooms are inferior to permanent ones.

"I don't see how you can put the blame on my shoulders," Brothers said.

One delegate described reliance on portables as "false economy." She said a single portable unit costing $18,000 provides second class service for five years and then must be disposed of.

"I find it strange that in the wealthiest province of Canada we are told there isn't enough money for education."

MAN SENT OUT

John Harris of the Monterey PTA said his group will present a brief to Dr. G. Scottt Wallace (SC-Oak Bay) on conditions at Monterey elementay.

"It's pathetic to say these conditions should exist without being brought to your attention."

Brothers replied as a result of Wallace's efforts the department of education has sent a man to look at conditions at Monterey.

Nine officials from the department of education including Dr. Neil Perry, deputy minister, and superintendant of education Frank Levirs were in attendance. Brothers consulted with them on several occasions.

About one dozen Social Credit backbenchers also sat in at the back of the auditorium.

When Brothers started to say school boards are increasingly receptive to community use of school facilities such as libraries and gymnasiums he was interrupted with shouts of:

"But we don't have the libraries, we don't have the gyms."

'LADIES,' HE CRIED

"Ladies," cried Brothers, "all our energies are being utilized in building central classrooms."

"But don't you think physical education is as important as classrooms?" shouted a woman.

Brothers agreed physical education is important but said the first priority must go to classrooms.

"Where does our tax money go," a young woman shouted in anger.

'LOOK AT BUDGET'

"Look at the budget ladies — 31.5 per cent of it goes into education," was the harried minister's reply.

"Last year it was 32 per cent, and next year it will be 30," another woman cried.

Brothers said he has a daughter who enjoys going to school in a portable classroom.

Shouted one Coquitlam woman: "I have one that enjoys going out in the rain to the bathroom." She referred to a portable classroom with no toilet facilities available.

"What are we going to tell our kids," she asked. "We can't say dear, you have to choose between books and bathrooms."

City Lights Won't Dim Telescope's Starry Aims

The glow from Victoria at night is influencing research at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory but isn't about to put the giant telescope there out of business.

Four years ago the Times reported George Chatterton, then MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, saying the 72-inch telescope would have to be closed down after 10 or 20 years because urban light was interfering with viewing.

Tuesday the Times reported polishing and shaping of a new two-ton mirror for the telescope would be getting underway soon.

How come a new mirror for a telescope which is doomed?

The amount of light from the city at night does hamper direct photography but little of this is done now.

Instead the observatory staff concentrates on spectroscopy, analysis of stellar light, and for this the bright lights of the city are no problem.

They would be if the day ever came when houses surrounded Observatory Hill on the West Saanich Road and that is why some of the land adjacent has been bought by the government.

The observatory will get good value from the new six-foot mirror, said Dr. Wright.

Made of a new glass ceramic material called Cer-vit, it will require about 12 months of grinding and polishing. The 50-year-old original mirror can still be used in research.

Abortion on Demand To Be 'Going Thing'

Dr. Hugh Borsman, a Victoria gynecologist and obstetrician, estimates that abortion on demand "will be the going thing" within five to seven years.

Borsman was on a panel held Tuesday at a meeting of the Volunteers Group, Canadian Mental Health Association, in Spencerhouse.

He said that under the current abortion laws it is difficult for doctors to make the decision whether to abort a woman.

"My dilemma is when and how you make the decision. That's why I think abortion on demand will come."

He commended Mrs. Elizabeth Murrison, another panel member, who is heading a campaign for abortion legislation reform.

He agreed with another panel member. Msg. M. T. O'Connell, who stressed that legislation must be based on respect for all human life.

In her presentation. Mrs. Murrison said that abortion would help solve the problem of overpopulation.

The fourth panel member, psychiatrist Dr. J. T. Wood said "this is the most ridiculous comment I have ever heard."

MENTAL ANGUISH

He warned that abortion "is no trivial thing" and could result in mental anguish.

He gave as an example a case of a head nurse in a hospital, who was treated by him for depression.

"She had had three pregnancies out of wedlock. Two of the children she had given away and the third was aborted. She had terrible feelings of guilt."

Wood argued that some biological control would have to be devised to combat overpopulation.

"A medical way must be found — not abortion — to prevent pregnancies producing children that cannot be supported."

SELF-DESTRUCTIVE

He said that promiscuity was often a self-destructive process used by teenage girls to protest the way they are treated.

"I know one girl who had to sleep with a man — a different one each time — at least three times a week, and wake up hating him. I dread to think of what a child born of that situation would be."

Borsman said he could not help feeling sympathetic when women came to him asking for an abortion, but individual responsibility was of prime importance.

"When I get a young couple, intelligent enough to know, asking me for an abortion because they don't want a child until their education is finished I say 'Like hell you're going to give the baby up. You made it, you keep it'.

"Most of the time they do."

Borsman said it's a matter of priorities. "First, contraceptives must be made freely available, secondly, sterilzations, and third, liberalization of abortion laws. They should come in this order."

Injured Navy Diver In Good Condition

A navy diver, whose lungs were damaged when he failed to surface during a diving exercise Friday night, is in good condition today.

A spokesman for Canadian Forces Hospital, Esquimalt, said LS Stephen Duffy, 26, is expected to be released today or Thursday.

Duffy was one of a six-man team taking part in a simulated sabotage attack on the destroyer-escorts HMCS Qu'Apelle and HMCS Mackenzie at Patricia Bay.

When he failed to surface, a search was held and Duffy brought to the surface, treated aboard Mackenzie, and admitted to hospital after being taken to the decompression chamber at Colwood.

LOW BIDDER NAMED FOR PAT BAY STRETCH

Edco Construction Ltd. of Vancouver submitted the lowest bid of $1,728,487 for reconstruction of 2.95 miles of Pat Bay highway from Rogers Avenue to Cherry Tree Bend to four-lane divided highway standards.

Second lowest bid among seven opened Tuesday was for $1,822,845 by C.O.W. Construction, Victoria. Highest was for $2,083,502 from Emil Anderson Construction, Hope.

Contract for the project, to be awarded in a week or so, includes substructure for overpasses but a separate contract will be let let later for the overpasses themselves a highways department spokesman said.

Arthur Mayse...

WITH LAST WINTER TO remind me that anything can happen in Victoria, I have held back from predicting an early spring even when the signs seemed obvious. But it's plain beyond doubt this week that our winter, such as it was, is over and gone. Sure, we could still get snowed on. If we do, however, I expect no more than a whirl of goose-feather fun flakes, the sort that begin to melt almost before they've landed.

The green haze in the undergrowth is still so faint as to suggest optical illusion. But look closer, and you will see that the leaf sprays of the bitter cherry are unfurling to reveal small white flower clusters.

The alders have broken out a new crop of catkins, the salmonberry is sprouting leaf-buds, and in a sheltered corner this morning we spotted golden sunbursts of dandelion.

No doubt there's plenty of rain and wind in store. However, the Japanese plum that makes a fair city lovelier is opening fluffy pink blossoms. The first daffodils are bursting their sheaths, and the birds that were silent in January have found their voices.

Also—and this I hate to admit—the lawn grass could stand cutting.

Spring in the second week of February? It's fantastic, it shouldn't be happening, but, glory be, it is!

LAST YEAR I CAME UP with a notion which I thought, and still think, would give Victoria a profitable and very worthwhile tourist gimmick.

I suggested that E and N Railway steel on which passenger service has been reduced to Dayliner trips would provide an ideal route for a Train from Yesterday.

Perhaps in your travels you've happened on such trains. There's a dandy in Colorado. Another hoots through Blue Ridge Mountain country on a tri-state run, and I believe that California boasts several such.

All are steam trains, and each offers for the price of a ticket, a sentimental journey back through time.

Any number of Victorians have told me they'd be delighted to see a pioneer train of ornate day coaches roll from Victoria behind an oldtime steam locomotive.

It's worth noting that the most enthusiastic of these callers have been practical-minded railwaymen both active and retired. Some of these have assured me that rolling stock for such a line could be located and restored to service without too much trouble. And Lord knows the Victoria E and N depot would pass for a pioneer station.

I've also been assured that the parent CPR would be quick to knock the idea on the head: Perhaps so. But we never know about these things until we try our luck, and I hope that Victoria Chamber of Commerce will do more than nibble at the idea.

We have another centenary coming up next year . . . the hundredth anniversary of British Columbia's entry into Confederation.

How better could the CPR, and the B.C. government, mark that railway-induced linkup than by putting a train from our colorful past on Vancouver Island steel?

Between summer visitors and winter conventioners, I have a hunch that a Line of the Pioneers would do much better than pay its way.

A FEW DAYS BACK I passed on to you the sorry case of the young woman who discovered after four academically-successful years as an education student that she couldn't handle a classful of lively kids.

Her plaint: "Why wasn't I given a chance to find this out early in my training?"

Answers received range from the sympathetic to the sardonic.

One writer-in blames her plight on regular teachers "who couldn't bear to leave a trainee in sole charge of their classes during her earlier student-teacher experience."

Another finds it impossible to believe that her melancholy discovery could have been made so late. "She must have been kidding herself all the way through," he claims.

Not necessarily so, says one teacher, who asserts that the girl's case is by no means an isolated one, and results from "a soft attitude" on the part of those who teach would-be teachers.

In any case, the subject of this still-open discussion is looking for a job—one in which she won't have to come within a country mile of a classroom.

Clyne Repeats Coward Charge

The chairman of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. today repeated charges of cowardice against MLA R. A. Williams over accusations made in the legislature about government links with the company.

J. V. Clyne, chairman and chief executive officer of MB Ltd., made public a letter to Williams, the NDP member for Vancouver East, following an exchange of telegrams last week.

The executive was replying to Williams' speech Feb. 3 in which he was reported to have implied the forest industry giant is in a privileged position with the provincial government.

'CLEVER WORDING'

"I have received your telegram of Feb. 9 which I think is quite cleverly worded," Clyne's letter said.

"You say that because I have said that you are unfit to hold public office I have maligned the judgment of the voters of Vancouver East who have chosen to elect you on three occasions.

"I certainly do not malign them. Nothing could be further from the truth. Voters in Vancouver East and elsewhere have made mistakes in the past and may do so again in the future.

"The point that I am making is that you lack any sense of appreciation of the responsibility required of a member of the legislature. Responsible members of any legislative body do not make derogatory statements about others without stating facts on which the remarks are based so that those attacked may have the opportunity to reply.

NO JUSTIFICATION

"If a member of a legislative body makes an unsupported attack under protection of parliamentary immunity he is a coward. You have said MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. deals in privileges. At the time you made the statement you did not even attempt to prove it and you do not try to justify it in your telegram which I have just received.

"You are unable to adduce any proof because the statement is untrue.

"You say in your telegram that you believe in freedom of speech. I wish that your belief in the freedom of speech would induce you to make the same remarks outside the legislature that you make within it under the cover of protection. You are obviously afraid.

Ottawa Must Help

EDMONTON (CP) — Highways Minister Gordon Taylor told the road builders' and heavy construction section of the Canadian Construction Association convention here Tuesday that cities and provinces cannot handle all the problems of mass transportation and must have federal help.

Face Crackdown

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The United States government is asking the New York Stock Exchange to put up $250,000 to help crack down on Mafia operations on Wall Street, Attorney-General John Mitchell has announced.

He said the money would be used to buy stolen securities from middlemen operating for the crime syndicates, thus giving undercover agents a lead to the racket organizers.

ARCTIC
DEATH OF A CIVILIZATION

The midnight sun is setting on a dying way of life.
Only a handful of Eskimos still know how to live off the land.
They hunt caribou, stalk seal and share everything —
even with strangers. But their life-style is doomed by the white man's civilization. Before it fades forever,
writer-photographer Fred Bruemmer spent six gruelling months
recording how these northern nomads survive.

OUR LAND MAY BE LOST

Will Canada get its fair share of the rich northern pie? Not unless we act soon, says lawyer Michael Galway in Weekend Magazine. Unless the government takes a firm stand, we could lose out on offshore resources of gas and oil. But international law can settle the question of ownership. Read how Canada can avert a northern takeover — and what we'll lose by waiting.

REDRAWN MAP OF CANADA as presented by Commissioner of The Yukon Jim Smith would establish a single northwest unit he says would be America's greatest economic bloc. Spending Hike Held to 7.5%

OTTAWA (CP)—The government asked Parliament today for $14,812,786,336 to pay its bills, including old age pensions, for the new fiscal year starting next April 1, an increase of 7.5 per cent from spending estimates for the current fiscal year.

Tabling the spending budget in the Commons, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the increase is mainly due to the growing cost of carrying the public debt, paying higher grants to the provinces and supporting programs already authoribed by Parliament.

In the limited field in which the government has room to adjust its spending from year to year, the increase for 1970-71 is only 3.8 per cent.

Last year at this time, the government asked for $13,617,651,503, an increase of 9.4 per cent over the previous year. Since then, supplementary spending appropriations for 1969-70 have amounted to $66,446,526, and a further $94,000,000 may be needed in the next few weeks before March 31.

MORE FOR AID

Mr. Drury said major increases in the new year will go towards regional economic expansion, the government's bilingualism program, postal services, Indian and Eskimo affairs, foreign aid and some other programs.

This will make it necessary to rein in many other services, and the number of government employees will be cut to 247,859 by March 31, 1971, from 255,401 on March 31, 1970.

Mr. Drury called the restraint on government spending increases and reduction in the government's staff as important contributions to the government's fight against inflation.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson will present his taxing budget early in March, showing how he intends to raise the money to cover the spending estimates. It is expected he will end this fiscal year with a surplus of about $500,000,000, and plan for another surplus in 1970-71 as an anti-inflation move.

FORM CHANGED

The 1970-71 estimates were presented in the traditional blue-covered book, but in a new form containing many more summaries and descriptions of individual programs. The new 1¾-inch book is printed in English and French.

By major categories, and in rounded figures, government outlay increases in 1970-71 will be: Health and welfare up $415,000,000, to $3,149,800,000 from $2,734,800,000 in 1969-70; economic development and support programs up $149,300,000 to $1,817,900,000 from $1,668,500,000; educational 600,000 from $301,900,000; and interest on the public debt up $143,100,000 to $1,799,700,000 from $1,656,600,000.

The defence budget for the new year is $1,816,600,000, an increase of only $700,000 from 1969-70.

The government does not count payments from the old age security fund, for basic pensions now amounting to $79.58 a month to everyone 65 and older, as part of its budgetary expenditures. These pensions are paid out of special income, sales and corporation profits taxes, but they are part of the government's total outlay.

In addition to actual outlays in 1970-71 for all government services, including old age pensions, the government plans to make loans and investments — principally in Crown corporations—amounting to $842,508,100.

Policing Key To Price Curb

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Federal and provincial governments next week will be asked if they are ready to police Canadian firms which seriously violate a proposed program of voluntary price restraints.

Their answer will go one step further in determining the success of this week's meeting between the prices and incomes commission and leaders of business, industry and professional groups.

Monday commission chairman John Young was able to announce a broad consensus for a policy of pricing criteria had developed from the meeting.

This policy was developed simultanously with a review program to ensure that firms would abide by the rules of the game, which in the commission's words are:

"Revenues produced by a price increase are to be less than the increases in costs that led to the price change, unless the increase in price is needed to improve a demonstrably inadequate rate of return on capital investment."

The commission itself does not have the strength necessary to deal with instances of "flagrant non-compliance" and this added muscle would have to come to a great extent from government.

It is proposed to set up a small review staff consisting of senior government officials and business executives seconded to work with the commission on a temporary basis.

Questions from Staff

The review staff could request information needed to determine relevant revenue and cost changes from firms, as well as studying operating records.

One of the main reasons for conducting detailed reviews would be to differentiate between cost changes arising from a change in sales volume, and those caused by a change in the price of inputs.

For review purposes 1969 would be used as the base year, except for special cases when this period was obviously unsuitable.

The commission proposed that the reviews would be concentrated on "important price increases by major firms and by market leaders in smaller sectors."

Less important price increases could be drawn to the commission's attention through such channels as the Consumer Affairs Department which now operates Box 99 specially for consumer complaints.

The commission said that in 1970 some firms might well experience unit cost increases as a result of a temporary decline in their sales volume or output because of adverse market conditions.

"Such cost increases cannot be regarded as automatic justification for an equivalent price increase," it said.

No indication was given as to what possible penalties offenders might face if the program goes forward.

Presumably this would fall under the term "appropriate action" which the prime minister and the premiers will be asked to consider at their meeting next week.

Other Agreements Made

Following are other areas of agreement reached at this week's meeting:

● Business firms generally, if called upon to do so, would reduce the number and size of price increases they would normally make in 1970.

● The conference recognized that domestic price criteria should not be applied to goods sold mainly in export markets. The commission will keep the position of export industries under review and if it appears that some developments in this area are impairing the general price restraint program, it will seek "appropriate solutions" to the problems.

● Business firms would be prepared to co-operate with the prices and incomes commission in such reviews as it might decide to conduct.

● The conference recognized that farmers do not

Danger to B.C. Feared In New Tanker Route

Oil tankers bringing petroleum from the newly-discovered Alaskan oil fields might present a pollution problem to B.C., Hunter Vogel (SC—Langley) said Tuesday in the budget debate.

Vogel told the legislature that a fleet of three 100,000-ton tankers owned by the Atlantic-Richfield company will be transporting oil from Prudhoe Bay to a new $100-million refinery on Puget Sound.

"The point is what route will tankers take," as they pass the B.C. coast?

"Will it be through the Strait of Georgia or on the outside along Vancouver Island and past Victoria?"

The MLA said he thought the provincial government should have a voice in what route will be taken and who will have jurisdiction over the coastal waters.

The problem of oil tankers in B.C. waters will have to be faced regardless of whether any oil drilling is done off the coast, Vogel said.

Vogel said that he wanted the Gulf of Georgia protected from pollution, and the federal government is not the power to turn to for protection.

He said that the only offshore oil drilling going on at present is under the auspices of the federal government, and charged that this was being done in spite of pollution risk.

"Ottawa claims jurisdiction," Vogel stated, "but Ottawa has demonstrated that

OIL SHIPS FACE RIGID CONTROLS

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday more rigid controls governing tankers in territorial waters may be considered as a result of the grounding last week of the Liberian tanker Arrow off the Nova Scotia coast.

He suggested as well that additional navigational aids may have to be considered and said the grounding incident may give some indication of how controls should be applied.

The stern of the tanker, meanwhile, has broken free of the rock on which it grounded, but is being held in place with three tugs. Salvage officials plan to tow it 400 miles to sea and sink it off the continental shelf.

Phosphate Limits To Be Established

Resources Minister Ray Williston told the B.C. Legislature Tuesday Ottawa has agreed to draft pilot legislation to control the use of phosphates in laundry detergents. See Page 22.

● Socred Burt Campbell (Revelstoke-Slocan) urged a special system of subsidies to entice medical and dental practitioners to remote areas of B.C. Page 22.

INJUNCTION ORDERS END TO SLOWDOWN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three mechanical unions were ordered today to end their slowdown at Pacific Press Ltd., which produces the Sun and the Province newspapers in Vancouver.

An injunction sought by the company was granted in British Columbia Supreme Court after three days of argument.

Meanwhile, two unions involved in the contract dispute with Pacific Press Ltd. announced Tuesday they will hold strike votes in the next two days.

The Vancouver Mailers' Union said it would hold a vote today and the International Typographical Union told members they would vote Thursday.

Pact Accepted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nurses at 69 British Columbia hospitals have voted 94 per cent in favor of accepting a new two-year contract providing a 15.5 per cent wage increase and a shorter work week.

Accused Soviet Spy Posts Bail

SEATTLE (AP) — A Russian accused of spying in the United States was freed on $75,000 bail today after his scheduled preliminary hearing on espionage charges was postponed until Feb. 19.

Alekandr V. Tikhomirov, arrested here Saturday, prepared after his release to return to New York where he is a translator of the UN secretariat.

The hearing was postponed by U.S. Commissioner Walter A. Reseburg at the request of U.S. Attorney Stanley Pitkin, who said it shouldn't be held until the United States replies to a formal protest by the Soviet Union that Tikhomirov had diplomatic immunity.

140 Top $200,000 In Earnings

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics tabled in the Senate finance committee today show that 1,665,920 Canadian taxpayers earned less than $3,000 in 1967—and 140 Canadians made more than $200,000.

The committee, considering the government's policy paper on proposed tax changes, received the figures from Arthur W. Gilmour, senior adviser to the committee.

Mr. Gilmour's statistics showed that approximately 65 per cent of taxpayers earned less than $5,000 in 1967, representing 3,698,530 of the 6,455,683 taxpayers listed.

Of those 6,655,683 taxpayers only 8,388 made more than $50,000.

The 140 persons who earned more than $200,000 had an average taxable income of $261,428 on which they paid an average of $107,142 in federal and provincial taxes.

. . . But Labor Leaders Cool

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian labor leaders today termed price-restraint policies announced at a prices conference in Ottawa Tuesday as a "ploy," "bluff" and "joke."

Others said business would use their price restraint as an excuse to hold down wage offers in labor negotiations.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said that if Canadian businessmen "want to hold prices for about 10 years and let the rest of us catch up, that's fine."

"I think this all just a big bluff," said William Houle of Ottawa, president of the 16,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

"If the corporations can restrain their prices now, it proves they've been gouging all along. Why are prices cut so much after Christmas . . . ?"

Francis Eady, executive assistant of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, questioned business intentions. He cited a recent announcement by Falconbridge Nickel Co. Ltd. that profits for 1969 had increased despite a three-month strike.

"These are the people who are going to co-operate with price restraint? Big joke!"

Murray Cotterill, director of the United Steelworkers of America, criticized the conference for failure to require business to get advance approval for price increases.
